U. S. MOBILIZES DROUGHT RELIEF AS HEAT WAVE CONTINUES HERE

Ducks and Wheat.
Our Best Flier.
546,095,925 in 2030.
Gas Merchants, Attention.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN THE OLD days of oppression, a discouraged Irishman, sitting beside a little pool of water, with a few ducks swimming around in it, was asked by a British efficiency expert, "Have you any idea of the price you could get in London for those fine ducks?"

"I have," replied the owner of the ducks. "And have you any idea of the price I could get for that water in hell, if I had it there?"

News of the drought sends the price of wheat climbing upward. It rose three and one-half cents more early yesterday. When the farmer hasn't "got it there," wheat is high in Chicago.

CAPT. HAWKS, probably our ablest aviator, a product of the all-year-round flying field of San Diego, Cal., arrived at Columbus, O., at 7:48 yesterday morning, two hours and forty-eight minutes after leaving New York. Six minutes after landing in Columbus, Hawks started for St. Louis.

AT 2:45 P. M. YESTERDAY Hawks had reached and left St. Louis. He landed at Wichita, Kan., and was off immediately for Albuquerque. After five stops in all he arrived in Los Angeles with a new record for East-West speed.

Leaving New York yesterday at 5 a. m., Hawks was in Los Angeles 14 hours and 50 minutes later.

That is flying.

ON "CONTINENTAL United States" the population is 122,728,837. Uncle Sam says so. This does not include Porto Rico, the Philippines or Hawaii.

In 10 years population has increased 16.1 per cent. If that increase continues, our population 100 years hence, in 2030, will be 546,095,925.

LABOR UNION experts reading that will say "there could never be jobs for so many." Workers said that 130 years ago, when our population was 5,000,000.

Farmers would greet the idea of 546,095,925 population, with joy, exclaiming "that would give us people enough to eat all our wheat and pay a good price for it."

HOWEVER, big figures need not frighten us. The world's population, apart from famine, plague and war, will not outgrow the earth's fertility.

People, as they become more civilized and have greater luxuries, have fewer children.

And the old German proverb says truly "the Lord sees to it that the trees do not grow in the heavens."

FINALLY, no matter how many babies are born and how much the death rate diminishes, science will keep ahead of population.

Intensively cultivated, Texas alone could feed three times the 546,095,925.

And the 546,095,925 could all find comfortable, beautiful residences, with the aid of the flying machines, on hilltops, now neglected and empty.

IMPORTANT TO everybody, especially those that sell gasoline, is news of an Irish railroad car run by a new electric battery, developing a speed of 46 miles an hour, and using only two-thirds of the battery power.

An Irishman invented the battery, and the Free State finances it.

THAT IRISHMAN, with the invention, would have waited a long time before any part of this government would have financed him, even if he had been Fulton and Edison rolled into one.

If electricity could be economically stored, on a big scale in light batteries, something would happen to the stocks that depend on the demand for gasoline.

NEWS FROM India causes Mother Britain to feel safe. Mohammedans continue fighting and killing Hindus, 12 killed, 150 injured, in the latest clash based on revenge.

For a wonder the worm had turned, and a Hindu, son of a race ordinarily mild, shot and killed 11 Mohammedans, and wounded four.

That's like a sheep biting a wolf.

Such incidents take the Hindu mind off its grievances against Great Britain.

40 MISSING IN BORDER FLOOD

Nogales, Sonora Stricken; Confusion Widespread; Four Bodies Recovered

International News Service.

NOGALES, Ariz., Aug. 7.—Forty persons were missing and believed drowned and 6,000 rendered homeless today in the worst "flash flood" in Arizona border history.

The adobe-built town of Nogales, Sonora, separated from this city only by the width of International street, was wrecked.

Four bodies had been recovered early today.

Rain still was falling and adobe houses and walls of the patio gardens of the Mexican quarter were crumbling like so many lumps of sugar.

STREETS FLOODED

Streets of both Nogales were turned into rivers, filled with swirling cloudburst water.

When the flood swept into the Mexican town from the Santa Rita Mountains, the terror hushed jazz bands in the gay night clubs which form Arizona's wet oasis, only a few rods from the high wire fence which splits International street. Men and women who had been celebrants were al-

GIRL SOUGHT IN TAXICAB HOLDUP

With Boy Companion, 17, She Lures Driver to Robbers' Ambush Near Millvale

Police today are searching for a girl and a boy, aged about 14 and 17, respectively, for questioning in connection with the holdup and robbery of John Stevick, 28, and the theft of the taxicab he was driving in Shaler Township at 1:35 a. m. today.

The girl and boy, police said, hailed the cab at Penn avenue and Main street, and instructed Stevick to drive them to Millvale.

Upon reaching a driveway in the Seavey road they told him to stop. When the driver got out of the cab to let out his passengers, two men stepped from ambush and at revolvers' point relieved him of $28.

The holdup men and girl escaped in an automobile driven by an accomplice, Shaler Township police said.

DESTRUCTION THREATENS NATION'S FOOD CROPS; APPEALS BRING AID

By WILLIAM S. NEAL.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—The persistent hope that a sudden break in the drought might prevent destruction of the nation's principal late food crops was virtually blasted today as the Weather Bureau reported that there is no relief in sight.

Federal officials, from President Hoover down, surveyed the situation grimly and prepared to mobilize the government's entire resources to soften the catastrophe visited on the great Central Valley of the country by nature.

FIGHT TO SAVE LIVES

With hundreds already reported dead as a result of the succession of terrific heat waves throughout the nation, public health officers are doubling precautions to prevent a possible spread of disease as a result of the prolonged drought.

Direct danger lurks in the continuation of the drought, officials of the United States Public Health Service declared. Not only may disease result directly from the conditions brought about by the drought, but it also may exert an indirect influence upon health of millions, officials said.

The Federal Farm Board today promised to draw upon its funds for loans to farmers in drought-stricken areas of prevent the distress expected to follow the failures of crops.

LOANS ARRANGED

The board's proposed plan is to make loans on one and two-year time payments to be guaranteed

Haul Water For Dairy Stock

Dairy farmers of Western Pennsylvania today are facing a serious situation with the drought conditions in many sections so severe that it is necessary to haul water for the livestock.

Many wells for household supply in Kennedy Township and the Hanover plan, near Stowe Township, have gone dry, with the residents depending on one or two sources. The Oakdale and Harmarville districts are facing a shortage of water and restricted use has been ordered.

NO RELIEF SEEN

Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted no relief except slight for today through Sun. One-fourth inch rainfall was recorded during the 24-hour period ending at 10 a. m., at which time the temperature was 78 degrees.

Water is being hauled to the Zoar Home for Babies, on Mt. Royal boulevard, as the supply from wells for two tanks is diminishing. Seventy babies in the home faced suffering until Justice of the Peace Albert T. Lorch, superintendent of the Allegheny County Road Division No. 2, organized crews to haul the water from Etna. The supply is being carried in a county tank truck of

LANGFITT FAILS TO SEE BETTING

There was a new crowd of bookies at the Guyasuta Kennel Club race track on Freeport road last night—older hands at the game, and more tactful.

They did a fair business. Women, old and young, who stood on boxes and seats and cheered themselves hoarse when their favorite pups dragged home the bacon, but did not participate in the beting as they did the night before.

While reporters were followed about the grounds by County Detective Lawrence Kline, one bookie approached them several times offering odds on various races, emphasizing the wonderful posabilities of the fourth.

Acting District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt was in the grand-

'Cross' Pilot Gaining; Allowed to Smoke

VEERE, Holland, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, who underwent an operation for appendicitis Monday, has progressed so rapidly toward recovery that his physician today let him smoke a cigaret.

When he leaves the hospital the Australian, who recently flew from Ireland to America, again will become the guest of Hendrix Willem Van Loon, Dutch-American author, at whose home he had just arrived for a visit when stricken.

Tilden Loses To Young N. Y. Star

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(INS.)—William T. Tilden, perennial American tennis champion, fresh from his triumph at Wimbledon, suffered his first defeat in two years at the hands of an American today when he was beaten by Frank Shields, youthful New Yorker, in the quarter finals of the Meadow Club's invitation event. The scores were 6-1, 2-6, 6-1, Tilden being palpably off form except for a brief flash of speed in the second set.

Tilden's last defeat by an American occurred in 1928, when Fritz Mercur, former Lehigh University star, beat him.

Ex-Congressman Held as Distiller

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Manuel Herrick, former representative from Oklahoma, was arrested yesterday by prohibition agents in St. Mary's County, Maryland, on the charge of operating a still.

'NUMBERS' MAN HELD; 20 FINED

Magistrate Ray E. Schneider, in Penn Avenue Police Station this morning, held Harold Donahue, 27, of 3218 Ruthven street, reputed big "numbers" man, and announced his action was in accordance with District Attorney Andrew Park's plea to police magistrates to assist him in stamping out the "numbers" racket.

Schneider assessed $15 fines on 20 "numbers" writers and held Donahue as the operator of a big lottery which Acting Lieut. Michael Gunning raided yesterday.

Donahue and his associates were in the former's confectionery at 1118 Herron avenue yester-

Coolidge Deems United Europe Plan Premature

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 7.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Because of the natural and inevitable unity of the human race, some day there is bound to be a federation of the world.

Perhaps the League of Nations is a beginning. It long has been a vision of conquering nations, always in terms of the sword. France, Spain, England, Germany, all have been under its sway. But the sword has invariably failed.

Calvin Coolidge.

Now there is a proposal for a confederation of Europe. It is logical but probably premature. The national spirit has been of great benefit to mankind. Its work is not yet completed.

Britain not being a European but a world power, is out. The League of Nations could not be sympathetic with a league of Europe encouraging other leagues and challenging its supremacy. One league at the present time is about all the national instinct of people can bear. As we have receded from the war period, the desire to confederate for protection has weakened. With the Locarno treaty, with the world peace treaty, with the limitation of navies treaty, the immediate field is about exhausted. But the proposal is interestingly suggestive. Whatever insures peace and really promotes commerce anywhere in the world will be in harmony with the policy of our best thought.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Pittsburgh War Mother In Hospital

PARIS, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna Schmitt, Pittsburgh Gold Star Mother, was admitted to the American Hospital here last night with an infected finger.

Mrs. Schmitt

She arrived Tuesday with party N, which will leave Paris tomorrow for the battlefield cemeteries as party O reaches Cherbourg on the steamship America.

Mrs. Anna Schmitt, reported in a Paris hospital, was in the group of Gold Star Mothers who sailed on the Republic July 26 from New York. At her home, 4912 Scioto street, today it was said no word had been received from her. Her son, Corp. George J. Schmitt, of Company E, Three Hundred and Twentieth Infantry, was killed Halloween night, 1918, a few days after entering the Argonne trenches.

E. J. Clapp, Writer, Leaps to His Death

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—Edwin J. Clapp, 49, a former newspaperman and later public relations expert for an automobile concern, plunged to his death today from the roof of the fashionable Hotel Grosvenor on Fifth avenue.

Before he entered the newspaper business Clapp was professor of economics at New York University. He was a noted athlete at Yale and became world's champion hurdler as a member of the American Olympic team after he left college. His health recently had been poor.

NEW AIR RECORD SET BY HAWKS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—Capt. Frank Hawks was preparing to play golf with his father here today after resting from the strain of flying from New York in 14 hours and 50 minutes, completing the first crossing of the continent in full daylight and establishing a new East-West transcontinental record.

Hawks, making five stops, clipped 3 hours 5 minutes and 11 seconds from the East-West record of 18:42.54, made by Col. Roscoe Turner last May. Turner made one stop. Hawks' actual flying time, deducting the stops, was 13 hours and 31 minutes.

Hawks plans to take off Sunday in quest of another speed record on the return trip to New York, on which stops also will be made. He has set 10 hours as his goal, and expects to have the aid of tail winds over most of the journey. Head winds and thunderstorms delayed his westward flight.

On the eastward journey, Hawks hopes to better the record of 14 hours and 45 minutes made by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh last Easter Sunday. Hawks will make the same stops he did on the westward journey—Columbus, O.; St. Louis; Wichita, Kan.; Albuquarque, N. M., and Kingman, Ariz.

King Ends Vacation Over Afghan Unrest

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Former King Amanullah of Afghanistan, who has been summering in his place on the Bosporus, today embarked hurriedly on an Italian steamer presumably for Rome. Because of the disturbed state of affairs in Afghanistan, politicans expressed the belief that his departure might in some way be connected with events in his homeland.

Lewis Denies Pinchot Urged Visit to Vare

HARRISBURG, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Reports emanating from Philadelphia today intimating that Auditor General Charles A. Waters and Special Deputy Auditor General Samuel S. Lewis will visit William S. Vare in Philadelphia at the request of former Gov. Pinchot were denied here today by Lewis.

"We are going to see Senator Vare," Lewis said, "but on matters purely personal and not at the instance of former Gov. Pinchot, Senator Grundy or anyone else."

W. M. Patch, Former Theater Man, Dead

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS.)—William Moore Patch, 43-year-old widely-known newspaper writer and former Pittsburgh theater man, died in the General Hospital here today after a lengthy illness.

Patch, nephew of the late Alexander P. Moore, of Pittsburgh, was under sentence of from 10 to 20 years for defrauding the estate of Thomas McKean, of Philadelphia, of more than $1,000,000. He had been released due to his ill health.

Jackson, O'Brine Near Former Record

LAMBERT FIELD, ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—If the Greater St. Louis endurance plane piloted by Dale (Red) Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, is still in the air after 7:32 o'clock this evening the plane will have surpassed the former world's record of 420 hours and 21 minutes also set by O'Brine and Jackson, but later surpassed by the Hunter brothers in Chicago.

AIRPORT PRICES DEFENDED

The county airport, branded as a bungle by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, was alternately condemned and defended today in discussions of the project.

1—Attorney Henry A. Jones, representing owners of property taken for airport, disclosed that corporations have paid $1,000 an acre for adjoining land in answering McGovern's charge that the county was being fleeced by exorbitant acreage costs.

2—F. W. Chabal, vice president of the John F. Casey Company, declared the county's plans, if carried out, would cost $10,000,000, compared with the $2,000,000 available.

3—Norman F. Brown, county director of public works, championing the subject, revealed that 40 airplanes already have landed at the field and that it could be used now in emergency.

Corporations have paid $1,000 an acre for land adjoining the county airport site, Attorney Henry A. Jones declared today, in replying to charges of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern that half that sum was exorbitant.

Attorney Jones represents Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Lutz, owners of Picked Winners From His Own Punch Boards

He had a good racket.

He'd place punch boards in small stores and a few days later he'd return, as a customer, to punch out the winning numbers.

Boys in Tree 550 Hours Hold Birthday Party

Brushton's tree sitters, who today had been up in the air 550 hours, observed the birthday of one of their number yesterday.

Robert Gravely, sitting with his brother, James, in a tree in the Gravely backyard at 631 Sickles street, celebrated his tenth birthday. In another tree nearby perched their brother, Lawrence, and a cousin, Sam King, who partook of a large cake baked for the occasion by Mrs. Gravely. On the ground beneath the trees a table was loaded with birthday sweets, to which half a hundred youngsters from the neighborhood were invited.

"Yep, we're still here," called down Robert. "I feel like I could stay up till I'm 20. But we'll be down about school time. C'mon up, the breeze is fine."

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE PLANS 1932 PRESIDENTIAL FIGHT

DEMOCRATIC OPPOSITION FEARED

Dr. McBride Optimistic on Primary Results; Sees Peril to Drys in Morrow

LITTLE POINT SABLE, Mich., Aug. 7. — (AP.) — Executives of the Anti-Saloon League of America, gathered here in conference, already are preparing for another wet-and-dry fight in the 1932 presidential election.

The Democratic party, they concede, then will be stronger than it was in 1928, and in the words of Dr. F. Scott McBride, national superintendent of the League, the chances of having a Democratic nominee friendly to prohibition "are not very hopeful."

Gathered yesterday for the opening session of their conference in a little church almost hidden by sand dunes, on the eastern shore of Lake Michigan, League executives from all over the United States heard reports predicting few reversals for the cause of prohibition in the Fall elections.

URGES BIG WAR CHEST

Although those elections are the immediate concern of the League principal alarm was expressed over the activities within Democratic ranks thus far in advance of the next presidential election.

To counteract those activities, McBride urged accumulation of a definite offensive against the anti-drys.

"I am of the opinion, said Dr. McBride, "that the time is overripe to go to the public with a challenging call and program. A more adequate fund for a more adequate program is demanded if we are to meet the needs of the day."

STILL CHEERFUL

McBride sounded a cheerful note in his report of the political situation to date.

"So far," he said, "20 primary elections have been held. In most districts and in most states the primary is the real election. We have not forgotten, however, in caring for primaries, the nonpartisan methods of the league. Particularly in those districts where the vote is likely to be close in the election, we have made it a point to win drys in both major parties.

"These 20 primaries have embraced most of the doubtful districts. They have proved to be a cross-section of the country, extending from Oregon to Maine and embracing the very critical states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Illinois. It is within those states that the wets have had their chance to win.

"While the wets put on a big campaign and spent more money and effort than ever before, they have not made any worthwhile inroads on the prohibition majority in Congress.

"There has been no loss of drys in either house. They were badly routed and disappointed in Pennsylvania. They have, however, become greatly encouraged over the nomination of Dwight W. Morrow in New Jersey."

Water Plant Pays, Town Goes Untaxed

COLBY, Kan., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Colby citizens will have to worry along another year with no municipal water works to grow indignant over. For the third successive year the city council voted to let the municipal water plant wash away the city's bills. During two years earnings of the plant has paid all expenses and placed a balance of $45,000 in the city treasury.

Chilean Minister Ousted From Office

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Aug. 7. —(AP.)—David Hermosillo, minister of the interior, today was relieved of his post by the acting minister of the navy, Carlos Frodden. The president, who yesterday asked for Senor Hermosillo's resignation, accepted it immediately.

Although student manifestations continue, the situation in general is tranquil. In a clash with police yesterday several students were wounded and others were arrested.

Body of Woman Suicide Identified

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The body of a woman who had jumped into the Hudson River from a pier at the foot of Dyckman street was identified last night as that of Mrs. Maude Drew, 35, of Cleveland.

Identification was made by Mrs. W. F. King, of New York, who said Mrs. Drew came here to visit her, and had been staying at her home. She refused to discuss a possible motive for her friend's act.

The woman rode to the river in a taxicab, dismissed the driver and leaped off the pier.

stand and underneath it last night, but detected no evidence of gambling, he said today. County Detectives James McGinley, Philip Goldberg, John Carmichael and Harry Barker, also present, said they saw no open gambling.

Langfitt said:

"I watched closely, but could see nothing of any gambling. I observed several little groups together, but could see no money passed. To prove gambling there must be evidence of money passed. It is virtually impossible to prevent wagers between individuals. If one window of the booking stand had been open, we would have had basis for arrests."

Detectives were much in evidence under the grandstand, where betting seemed to have received a setback. The betting was on a smaller scale than the previous night.

Many of the hangers-on—small fry gamblers from the highways and byways—seemed disappointed at the scarcity of bookies.

HEFLIN AND SON HURT IN CRASH

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, suffered bruises and cuts and a sprained wrist, and three members of his party were cut and bruised today as their automobile crashed into a telephone pole to avoid striking a heavily-laden log truck that drove upon a highway from a side road, near here.

Senator Heflin and his party were brought to Decatur in a passing bus and three of them were taken to a hospital. The senator went to a hotel.

The injured included J. Thomas Heflin, Jr., the senator's son.

THIRD FINED IN PARK HOLDUPS

Samuel Medwed, of 1 Alexis street, admitted in Oakland Police Court, police say, he had held up seven parked cars in Schenley Park, obtaining from $7 to $120 in each robbery. No one appeared against him, but Magistrate J. J. O'Connor fined him $50 with the alternative of 60 days in the workhouse. He is the third of a gang given a like sentence, police said, for holding up parked autoists with a revolver. None of the victims would consent to appear.

Men Wait for Train To Return Trousers

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Embarrassing moments. Arrival home of the Southwestern Limited from St. Louis found a dozen or so of the men passengers in a state of perturbation. The club car in which the valet had their carefully pressed trousers, became attached to another train at Buffalo. All was well again after two hours when the errant car arrived.

GLAMIS AWAITS ROYAL BABY

GLAMIS, Scotland, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—Extreme quiet today hushed the vicinity of Glamis Castle, where the Duchess of York will shortly give birth to a new member of the British royal family.

Meager reports from the castle informed a waiting world that the duchess was resting comfortably, in better health than she has been in several months.

Inhabitants of the countryside will be informed of the event by the lighting of a huge beacon atop Hunters Hill, near Glamis Castle.

Woman in Factory Scorns Big Estate

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—While on a visit in Mississippi 24 years ago, Mrs. Addie Kingston did "chores" around the house for Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hendrix, of Richburg. Informed she had been willed 1,000 acres of land and $9,000 for her kindness, she has refused to accept it, declaring she did nothing to deserve it. Meanwhile, she is continuing her job in a mattress factory.

Wife of 156-Year-Old Turk Says She Is Destitute

ISTANBUL, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The municipality had on file today a protest from the wife of Zaro Agha, the Turk now touring the United States, whose birth certificate dates his age at 156 years.

His trip to America stopped a small pension customarily paid his family. As a result, his wife claimed, she is virtually destitute.

The Agha family occupies a small tumbledown house.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—Calvin Harris, American manager of Zaro Agha, said today that prior to the ancient's departure for this country, he had left his wife $1,000 in Turkish money. He said she was well-provided for and should not be destitute, as reported.

HEAT, DROUGHT CONTINUE

PASTURES BURNED

With pastures burned by the severe heat, majority of farmers have been compelled to place their cows on winter feed, according to Henry R. Eby, director of Allegheny County Agricultural Extension Association.

The Bentleyville district is reported to be hauling water, according to Elwood H. Fulton, Washington County farm bureau agent. Other isolated cases have been reported, he said.

The corn crop in both counties has suffered the heaviest losses. Sprayed potatoes are expected to be saved if rain arrives within a week, but the unsprayed plants are expected to be a loss. The market garden crops of Washington County have been virtually destroyed, with little produce to offer at the markets.

TOMATOES SPOILING

Tomatoes are rotting on the plants, according to Mr. Eby, with the apples shriveling from the severe heat and lack of moisture in the air.

The larger cities of Western Pennsylvania, gaining their water supply from the rivers, are in no danger of a shortage at present, according to Dr. John R. Conover, of the State Health Department. Some smaller communities have felt restrictions. Oakdale and Harmarville being the most badly hit, though the situation is not termed as serious.

State chemists are centered in Somerset County to test new water supply sources found necessary for the mining communities and small towns depending upon mountain streams.

The number of brush fires in the city and county showed a marked drop yesterday, along with the slightly lower temperatures. The high temperature recorded at the local weather bureau was 87 degrees. During the afternoon breezes brought slight relief.

The Pittsburgh water supply is virtually the safest and best in the state, Dr. Charles B. Maltis, public health director, said, reassuring residents as to the danger of contamination of drinking water as a result of the heat wave.

Ratification of Coal Pact Expected Today

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 7. —(INS.)—Indications that debate would be shortlived and that the new anthracite wage scale agreement would be voted upon today were plentiful as the tri-district convention of the United Mine Workers of America today went into its fourth consecutive session. Despite opposition to the new contract, International President John L. Lewis, presiding over the convention, today said he was certain a great majority of delegates would vote for ratification.

"FIX FAILS

All big lottery men from Penn avenue have friends, and these friends kept telephone wires hot yesterday and today in an effort to drive home the proverbial "fix." But the fix didn't work, and the numbers men dug up the fines imposed on them by Schneider.

STORE SWEPT AWAY

One of the largest stores in Nogales, Mexico, was swept away with its entire stock and a new apartment house was toppled to the ground.

The Nogales (Ariz.) chapter of the American Red Cross today telegraphed the American Red Cross in Washington, asking $25,000 for immediate relief of the 6,000 Mexican inhabitants of Nogales, Mex., rendered homeless in the cloudburst.

No Americans were known dead or missing.

Preparations of American Legion members here were swiftly turned into relief work and some funds were provided, along with platoons of rescue workers.

PENNA. CENSUS MAY COST TWO HOUSE SEATS

Loss of One in Congress Sure; Huge Redistricting Task Up to Assembly

HARRISBURG, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—With a 1930 Pennsylvania population of 9,638,698 shown by the Associated Press compilation of district census supervisors' preliminary reports, the state was confronted with the probable loss of two Congressmen and a consequent extensive revision of its present congresional districts.

This population total is only 92,178 above the aggregate required for 34 representatives on the basis of the provision of the national reapportionment act of one Congressman for every 280,780 inhabitants. It makes certain the loss of one of the present delegation of 36 Pennsylvania Congressmen and indicates the loss of the second unless a recheck of the Philadelphia population and variations elsewhere disclose upward of 60,000 persons not included in present totals.

With the congressional figure of 280,780 for each district as the yardstick, the current population total leaves the Pennsylvania General Assembly with an unwieldly task in re-drafting the county groupings. This task must be undertaken by the 1931 Legislature soon after it convenes so that the new districts will be decided in time for the 1930 congressional elections.

No change in the size of the Philadelphia delegation is probable, since its total of 1,961,458 gives that county 280,208 inhabitants for each of its present seven congressmen. Similarly, Allegheny County, with a population of 1,374,622, approximates the figure required to retain all of its present five congressmen.

Tomorrow morning there will be a business meeting for the hearing of reports and nomination of officers. During the afternoon there will be various entertainment features and at 7 o'clock there will be a parade. Following the parade a drum and bugle corps competition will be staged in the Point Stadium. More than 50 units are entered in the competition. The annual divisional ball also is to be held tomorrow night.

The final business sessions, including election of officers, will be held Saturday and in the afternoon there will be an air show at the Johnstown airport. At night there will be the divisional banquet at which Gold Star mothers whose sons served in the division will be honor guests.

Labor Peril Curbs Coolie Emigration

AMOY, China, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—British consular authorities today instructed shipping companies transporting coolies to the Straits Settlements to reduce the emigration by 80 per cent, or 100,000 annually. The low price of rubber and tin caused Straits Settlements authorities to seek restriction of the flow of Chinese labor. A severe unemployment problem is likely to result here.

HUSTON RAPS CRITICS AS HE QUITS

Forced Out by 'Whispering Campaign,' He Complains; Yields 'For Good of Party'

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7. —Claudius H. Huston sang his swan song to the Republican party today, and in so doing, as a final gesture, struck back vigorously at his critics within the organization, who had forced him out of the chairmanship of the national committee.

Huston first asked the committee to accept his resignation. James Francis Burke, general counsel for the committee, seconded themotion. After accepting the resignation, the committee gave Huston a vote of thanks for his services.

THEN FLAYS HIS FOES

Huston then issued to the press a statement attacking those who had been demanding the action he took today. It said, in part:

"In the past, it has been the policy of the party leaders to maintain a solid front when under the enemy's fire. But as this has not been the policy in the present case, I have reached the conclusion, putting the interest of the Republican party ahead of personal considerations, that I should tender my resignation, for I am wholly unwilling to be accused of imposing any burdens, personal to me, upon the party during the coming senatorial and congressional campaigns.

"I am sure no such risk exists, but rather than incur the charge of creating it, I prefer to withdraw."

Huston declared that he had been the main target of a constant whispering campaign, with its usual accompaniment of abuse and falsehoods.

SAYS CHARGES REFUTED

Adding that every accusation made against him by the Senate Lobby Committee, which investigated his activities in connection with private operation of Muscle Shoals, and his subsequent stock market manipulations, had been completely refuted by the final report of the committee itself, he asserted:

"I am conscious of my own integrity. I have never been accustomed to give ground under fire. Every personal inclination I have is to fight this thing to a finish, especially in view of the unfair tactics that have been employed, and it is on that account that I have delayed my present action until now."

He then pointed out that his withdrawal will give the G. O. P. the opportunity to select a leader free from factional opposition.

U. S. MOBILIZES IN CROP LOSS

by local private organization of business men and farmers.

Another week of the drought, it is declared by experts, will result in destruction of corn and other crops in low lands, which have thus far resisted the ravages of the "rainless summer."

Said R. H. Weightman, government forecaster:

"There have been scattered showers in the last 24 hours, and there will be other showers of the same character.

"However, there is nothing on the weather map today to indicate that there will be any general rains, or a real breaking up of the drought."

Telegraphic appeals for action continued to reach President Hoover, the Department of Agriculture, the Red Cross and other governmental agencies.

RED CROSS MOBILIZED

The Red Cross, it was announced, has authorized several local chapters to co-operate with other agencies in providing relief in drought-stricken areas. Acting Disaster Relief Director John Cramer said:

"Drought relief is not in line with our general policy of disaster relief, which is directed toward such calamities as floods and earthquakes. We have, however, authorized several local chapters to co-operate with other agencies, and we are studying the situation closely."

President Hoover, having received assurances that the railroads will aid the government's plan, was to confer with Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, who returns today from the West.

The possibility of a special session of Congress to appropriate $100,000,000 for relief was discussed, but the White House discounted such reports.

Anthracite Miners Ratify Agreement

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS.)—With the votes of only two district delegations counted, the tri-district convention of the United Mine Workers of America today ratified the new anthracite coal wage scale, to go into effect on September 1, 1930, and continue until April 1, 1936.

Safety Record of Driver For Hoover Perfect

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—President Hoover can reasonably expect to complete his years in the White House without an automobile accident despite his extensive motor travel.

His chauffeur, Francis H. Robinson, has been driving presidents since the first automobile was bought for the White House, in 1910, and has never had an accident. Unless the law of averages works against him, he says he never expects to have one.

Robinson came to the capital from Boston two decades ago, when President Taft gave the city a shock by ordering a car powered by steam to supplant the historic horse and carriage. As chauffeur to Presidents Wilson, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, since then he has driven thousands of miles.

Presidents Taft and Wilson are recalled by Robinson as the two presidents who liked to drive fast at all times.

Mr. Hoover is the most enthusiastic motorist of all the presidents. Almost every week-end he takes a three-hour drive to his lodge in Virginia and back. He seldom permits Robinson to exceed the Virginia speed limit of 45 miles an hour. Traveling about Washington he has set the precedent of conforming to the traffic lights. Only when he is on official missions does he permit the traffic laws to be ignored.

HEALY READY TO FACE TRIAL IN POLICEMAN'S DEATH

Wife of Titusville Man, Since Divorced, Also Hired Detectives to Shadow Him

Revelations of the marital woes of Luke B. Carter, Titusville, Pa., oil king, and his wife, Anne C. Carter, are disclosed in suits filed in the United States District Court by George Gordon Battle and nine other prominent New York lawyers, for counsel fees allegedly due them from Mrs. Carter.

Carter, who was divorced through a decree awarded his wife in the Crawford County courts more than a year ago, has since married Mrs. Beatrice Stevens Emerson, described as a dashing, widow of New Haven Conn.

$9,000 FOR DETECTIVES

In the suits filed here by Attorneys C. D. Scully and H. H. Brooks, the law firm headed by Battle has a claim of $3,500; Willcox, Swiger, Chambers & Brooks ask $7,598.40, and the Thomas J. Tunney International Detective Agency, the third plaintiff, has a bill for $3,150. The entire expense for detective hire was $9,000, as set forth in the suit.

Carter withdrew his suit for divorce, according to the claims of the lawyers, and made a settlement upon Mrs. Carter, giving her a home valued at $20,000 in Titusville, $10,000 in cash and $750 a month during her lifetime.

WIFE GIVEN DEGREE

Mrs. Carter, upon accepting these terms, pressed her claims for divorce in Crawford County and obtained a decree about 18 months ago. Since, it is set forth by the plaintiffs, Carter and Mrs. Emerson have been married.

Residents of Titusville say Carter has begun the erection of a costly country home on the outskirts of that city, where he will soon establish his new wife.

VETS' BUREAU OPENS BIG JOB

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The new veterans' administration, biggest government consolidation job this generation has witnessed, has swung into operation—though a number of administrative problems still are pending settlement.

Officials of the bureau, which will spend about $800,000,000 yearly on behalf of hundreds of thousands of former soldiers, today had before them a summary of their powers and responsibilities under legislation enacted by the last congress.

At the same time they considered reports on the business flowing in under this year's legislation. They estimated at least 1,000 applications for benefits under the new World War disability allowance have been filed in each of the 54 regional offices of the Veterans' Bureau. Sixteen thousand applications have been reported to headquarters here.

9,000 Firemen Meet At Shippensburg

SHIPPENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—More than 9,000 firemen from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia marched in a mummers parade here last night as one of the convention features of the Cumberland Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association. Parade marshals estimated that 104 companies were represented. The firemen elected Charles M. Webb, of Shippensburg, as president. They also voted to meet next August in Winchester, Va.

DOLORES, MATE ON HONEYMOON

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 7.—(INS.)—Dolores Del Rio, screen star, and her husband, Cedric Gibbons, motion picture art director, are honeymooning "somewhere in California" today following their wedding yesterday at the picturesque Santa Barbara Mission.

Before leaving, the couple had made it known that the honeymoon would be brief, as both must return soon to their film work.

The ceremony was performed last evening by the Rev. Father Augustine, of the Mission, following a flood of rumors, later proved baseless, that the priest would refuse to marry them because Dolores had been divorced from her first husband, now dead.

Mrs. J. L. Asunsolo, mother of the bride, was matron of honor, and Benjamin Glazer, scenario writer, was best man. Only a small group of invited guests were present.

Lynched Bomber's Victims Sue Estate

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Two suits totaling $100,000 against the estate of John Hodax, Plant City bombing suspect, lynched last April 27, were on file in Circuit Court today in behalf of Mrs. J. L. Waller, seriously injured by a bomb explosion, and her husband, a truck farmer. The Wallers each are suing for $50,000.

The Plant City bombings occurred April 24. Hodax, arrested in Tampa, was seized by a mob as an officer was taking him to jail at Bartow.

Baker Has Hard Time Getting To Europe

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 7.—Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, was obliged again to cancel reservations for a trip to Europe. Earlier in the summer, he was compelled to postpone the trip because of illness. Now he is the chief counsel in the Bethlehem-Sheet & Tube merger trial, which from present indications may last until September 1.

INSURANCE MEN HEAR HUEBNER

The life insurance business would be twice its present size if the proper viewpoint had been taken in selling it, Dr. S. S. Huebner, professor of insurance at the University of Pennsylvania and educational advisor of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, told a group of insurance men at a meeting at the Keystone Club today.

Too much stress has been laid on the death side of insurance and not enough on the life side, according to Dr. Huebner. Insurance should be brought before the public as an investment which, besides giving protection in the event of premature death, offers a good return on the money put into it.

He also stated that insurance, covering the actual value of the lives of individuals, has not been fully developed. While 80 per cent of property is protected against fire and 95 per cent of marine equipment is insured, life policies only cover 5 per cent of the existing values in their field.

GLOBE GIRDLER VEILS PLANS

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(INS.)—Mystery today shrouded the proposed departure of Ted Lundgreen, Hollywood aviator, on his flight around the world.

Lundgren, who arrived here yesterday in his plane from the West Coast, declined to comment on when the hop would be made. It was reported the aviator might be delayed two weeks for preparations.

Lundgren also would not comment on the report Roger Williams, noted flier, would accompany him on the globe-circling flight in an effort to lower the Graf Zeppelin's record of 21 days. He said, however, he planned to select a pilot and navigator-radio operator to accompany him.

ROYAL PAIR IN CRASH, UNHURT

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—A badly damaged car gave evidence today of the narrow escape from injury of young Prince and Princess Takamatsa of the Japanese imperial family, advices from Amsterdam said.

Their automobile was practically demolished when it crashed into a heavily-laden truck near Leiden, Holland, while the royal couple was motoring to the residence of Queen Wilhelmina for a courtesy visit.

WATKINS SUED BY 1ST WIFE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna van Stan Watkins, who says she is the legal wife of William R. Watkins, father of one of the infants in the Chicago baby mixup case, today filed suit for the divorce she claims her husband never obtained.

In her petition Mrs. Watkins says Watkins wilfully deserted her without reasonable cause more than two years ago.

In Chicago recently Watkins said he had legally divorced his first wife.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—The Watkins-Bamberger baby identity mixup was in a state of turmoil again today.

Mrs. Margaret Watkins, returning from a rest at the home of her parents, where she went following the excitement of the controversy, said she was convinced that she did not have her own child. Heretofore she has stated merely that she still was in doubt.

Mrs. Watkins and her husband, William, have a $100,000 damage suit on file against Englewood Hospital, where her baby was born.

PITTSBURGH BOY STILL DAZED

'Conscience Clear,' Says Lad, Who Insists He Had No Heart for Store Holdup

By LAURENCE DUMONT,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Thomas Healy, 19-year-old Pittsburgh lad, is ready to go back to Brookline, Mass., tonight to face a charge of murder in connection with the killing of Patrolman O'Brien, who was shot while investigating the actions of Healy and his companion, Paul Hurley. Healy told International News Service today that he had a clear conscience and was willing to return.

Sergt. John Donovan came here today from Brookline for Healy. The youth is to be arraigned immediately on his return, and held for the Superior Court, which convenes September 1.

BEWILDERED BOY

The youth, a little bewildered, his blond hair in disarray over a worried face, was brought before the magistrate in West Side Court today, where he was dismissed and turned over to Sergt. Donovan on the warrant of Gov. Frank Allen, of Massachusetts.

He was in the courtroom for only a moment, and then was hustled to the district attorney's office, where Sergt. Donovan went through the formalities of the extradition papers.

As he waited in the district attorney's office young Healy was interested in what the newspapers said about his case. He asked:

"Where did they get that stuff that I said, 'Sure, we shot the cops?' I never said any such thing."

Patrolman Williams who arrested Healy as he stepped off a Boston bus here Tuesday, interrupted:

"You've got a clear conscience, haven't you, Tommy, so why worry?"

"He's a nice clean-cut kid," added Williams.

PAUL TOO SLICK

Healy added:

"I just got into bad company. I don't see how they'll ever catch Paul. He's too slick."

He repeated his previous statements to police that he had not cared much about going with Hurley the night of the shooting when Hurley, according to Healy's story, had suggested they stick up a drug store to get some cash. Healy said he needed money to get back home to Pittsburgh, and Hurley had lost his job. Healy repeated also that he had not carried a gun, and had told Hurley before going that he did not want to be mixed up in any gun fire.

Answering a question, Healy said:

"No, I haven't heard from my parents, but they got in touch with a lawyer in Pittsburgh, who got me a lawyer here."

The boy's face was drawn from worry and sleepless nights.

Police here still are searching for Hurley, who was supposed to meet Healy in New York.

Salesman, Gunman Both Slain in Duel

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 7.—(INS.)—R. M. (Rube) Chisolm, oil stock salesman and prizefight promoter, and Frankie Mullen, an ex-convict, who attacked him, were killed here today in a gun duel. Accosted by the stick-up man, Chisolm fired. Mullen returned the fire. About 10 shots were exchanged before both men dropped dead in the street from pistol wounds. Chisolm wore $2,000 worth of diamond when his body was found.

Tribesmen Threaten Indian Border City

PESHAWAR, Northwest Frontier Province, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—This frontier city, important in the defense of Northwestern British India, was threatened today by an advancing force of hostile tribesmen. Sardines Provide Jobs for All Idle VIGO, Spain, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Sardines today temporarily solved the unemployment problem at this fishing port. Vast schools of them suddenly appeared on the coast, swarming for miles in almost solid masses, more fish at one time than the oldest inhabitants could recall.

Half a million baskets have been taken. The canneries have reopened and are operating at capacity. All the jobless are catching or packing sardines and making the most of the opportunity.

Wilbur Urges West Cherish Resources

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the Interior, last night urged the people of the West to treasure and conserve, not exploit, their great natural resources.

HIDDEN POWER PROFITS BARED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Disclosure of at least $16,000,000 of hidden profits, charged up to consumers in electric systems controlled by the Electric Bond and Share Company, gave promise today of prying open secret records the power trust has withheld from the government.

The hidden profits were piled up in fees collected by the Bond and Share Company from its scores of subsidiaries over the country for supervising their operations and helping them to build electric plants.

Both the fees and the profits they represent still are being collected. Swift growth of the plants has run up the fees to millions of dollars a year. Inability of state commissions to get information about them, and failure of the Federal Power Commission to act on them since they were challenged by its chief accountant at least five years ago, left the trade commission as the only agency likely to oppose them.

'Sock in Eye' Described At Hammerstein Trial

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—"The Battle of Broadway, or Who Hit Jack Haskell in the Eye?" will continue its courtroom run this afternoon.

Haskell, discharged dancing director for Arthur Hammerstein, the producer, charges the latter and Harold Rand, chorus boy from Kansas City, Mo., with simple assault.

The facts of the fracas aren't as simple as those of the Battle of the Marne, or the Sharkey-Schmeling affair.

Haskell testified he "got socked" by Rand after he had fired the 22-year-old "extra boy of the ensemble." His pretty sister, Sally Rand, known back in Kansas City as "Billie" Beck, a former movie actress, also was fired.

But it turned out that Sally kept her job as dancer in the show and Brother Harold still is understudying the chorusmen while Haskell is out in the cold or heat of Broadway.

Women Fliers Want Speed, So Special Race Is On

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Women fliers who want speed will have their chance at the National Air Races here this month.

In answer to protests by several well-known woman fliers over the power restrictions placed on planes in the two women's derbies arranged for the meet Maj. R. W. Schroeder, contest director, has announced a free-for-all race for women, without limitation as to power, over the same course as the Thompson trophy race for men, the country's speed classic.

The added race will carry a prize of at least $2,500, with a trophy, Maj. Schroeder said.

It will be flown around the five-mile course at Curtiss-Wright-Reynolds Airport, but, instead of 20 trips around the three pylons, as required in the men's race, the women's race will probably be for 10—50 miles.

Miss Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flier, is the center of the storm, Maj. Schroeder said. She, with Blanche Noyes, of Rye, N. Y., and Elinor Smith, of Freeport, N. Y., had announced their refusal to compete in the derbies because of power restrictions.

Land Near Airport Bought At $1,000 an Acre, Attorney Declares an 80-acre tract condemned for airport purposes. The jury awarded them $40,000, or $500 an acre, according to Jones. Both the county and the owners asked for a new trial, which has been granted.

WORK CONDEMNED

The airport situation was discussed informally at the weekly luncheon of the Aero Club in the William Penn Hotel today. Members were loathe to talk about the project as a bungle, but expressed individual opinions freely, condemning the work of county engineers and contractors as gross mismanagement.

Col. Harry C. Fry, a pioneer in aeronautics and a member of the city-county air board of management for Rodgers Field, rose to the defense of the new county airport with a remark that "regardless of what it costs, an airport was worth any amount of money in Allegheny County because of topographical reasons." He said:

"Allegheny County is so situated topographically that there never can be too many landing fields, no matter what they cost."

SEES BIG FUND NEEDED

P. W. Chabat, vice president of the John F. Casey Company, contractors and bidders on the county airport job, expressed the opinion that at least $10,000,000 would be needed to build an airport in accordance with the county plans. He added:

"But the County Commissioners could only get their hands on $2,000,000, so they took this and spent it, then let somebody else worry about where the rest was coming."

That the airport could be used for planes today, was the statement of Norman F. Brown, director of county public works, before members of the Kiwanis Club of Pittsburgh at the weekly luncheon today in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Approximately 40 planes have landed at the airport through mistake, he stated, but the fact has not been made known because it is not desired to encourage the practice. Mr. Brown cited the bond issue as merely covering the purchase price and grading of the airport and that the various projects would be operated by outside interests.

CITES RECORDS

Jones said that if the commissioners had investigated the deed records on file at the courthouse they would have found the following:

"That on March 11, 1927, the Carnegie Steel Company had purchased 23 acres of vacant land in the immediate vicinity of the airport site for $1,000 an acre as shown by Deed Book Vol. 2333, page 66; that on January 31, 1928, the Duquesne Slag Products Company had purchased 20 acres of vacant land for $1,000 per acre as shown by Deed Book Vol. 2341, page 596. This latter was part of one of the tracts which the county is taking for this airport site."

Jones declared while the Mifflin Township location was one of the best in the county, it was "folly" to choose a site adjacent to Bettis Field.

Jones continued:

"What the commissioners seemingly needed and still need was some financial advice. The acceptance of the lowest bid for grading and the taking of plenty of time would have provided quite a fund for paying for the land."

"NEED ADVICE"

"They should have been advised and should now be advised to do as the Carnegie Steel Company or any like business organization would have done, namely, acquire the land at a fair price first before going ahead with their plant.

"There has been no offer of any price made to these owners. The minority commissioner did not have the courage of his conviction to offer anyone even the sum of $200 an acre. Instead the land of these people has been taken from them, in some instances all that they own, including their available means of livelihood, with the prospect of being paid for it in four or five years."

Dead Whale Draws Curious on Beach

OCEAN CITY, Md., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—A whale 52 feet long, washed up on the beach 10 miles south of here, attracted the curious from many sections of the Eastern Shore.

The mammal, a female of the killer type, according to fishermen, was washed up by recent high seas at a point about two miles below the North Beach life saving station.

She thought:
"If I only dared tell you my real reason for refusing!"
Yet, to be polite,
She said:
"I'm sorry—I can't marry you. We wouldn't be happy."

He proposed three times...but couldn't win her until he ended 'B.O.'
(Body Odor)

IT WAS heartbreaking to refuse him so often and not give the reason. But even under the polite name—"B.O."—she couldn't bring herself to mention body odor. And even love itself can't overlook such a fault.

At last she confided in her uncle, a physician, and he came to their rescue. He had a frank talk with the young man—suggested a simple safeguard... Now she's wearing his ring—and he's wearing a smile that won't come off. "B. O." no longer bars his way to happiness.

Danger time for "B.O."!

Hot sun. High humidity. Breathless, stifling days and nights. Even sitting still, we perspire. It's natural—healthy—to do so. But take care that we don't offend. Others notice the slightest hint of "B. O.", though we are seldom aware of it in ourselves because we so quickly become used to an ever-present odor.

Don't take chances. End "B. O." worries this easy, pleasant way. Wash and bathe with Lifebuoy. Its lather is delightfully creamy and abundant even in hard water. Gently antiseptic, it penetrates and purifies pores—removes all odor—leaves you feeling gloriously clean and fresh. Lifebuoy's pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you you're safe from "B. O."

Guards your complexion

Lifebuoy's pure, bland oils are kind to delicate skins. Its searching, deep-cleansing lather gently frees clogged pores of impurities—coaxes back the fresh, radiant bloom to dull, sallow complexions. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

FALSE ALARM, GETS 6 MONTHS

George Habil, 21, of Butler, who was fined $100 and sentenced to six months in the workhouse after he had pleaded guilty in Criminal Court today to pulling a fire alarm box at Sixth and Wylie avenues, explained:

"I had just been robbed and somebody told me to pull the alarm for help."

A representative of the fire bureau told Judge Rowand that 397 false alarms had been sent in this year and that the fire apparatus had been in seven accidents answering the calls.

Vertical Landing Ends Helicopter Flight

LE BOURGET FIELD, France, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Juan De La Cierva, the Spanish inventor of the helicopter, made a dramatic landing last night on his arrival from a trip begun in England Tuesday morning.

The helicopter, which has a sort of a "wind-mill" apparatus that revolves above the fusilage, hovered over the field for 10 minutes and then descended vertically from an altitude of 1,000 feet.

De La Cierva left Croydon airdrome in England at 8 a. m., Tuesday and landed here at 9:15 p. m., Wednesday. The delay was caused by a landing at Abbeville, France.

BRUSH FLAMES HALT TRAFFIC

Street car and motor traffic was tied up half an hour in Evergreen road, Bauerstown, last night, when firemen were compelled to lay hose across the street to combat a brush fire in Millvale Terrace. Several houses were in the path of the flames, but were saved by prompt arrival of the Bauerstown Volunteer Fire Department.

Millvale firemen were again called to Sample's Hill, where they have combatted brush fires every day this week. Wilmerding firemen extinguished five fires in the borough, while the Greentree, Mt. Oliver and Tarentum companies each responded to one alarm.

Pittsburgh Girls' Shorts Cause Their Arrest

NEWARK, O., Aug. 7.—Four Pittsburgh girls, all about 18, were arrested and taken to headquarters here last night because they entered a restaurant wearing shorts. The woman proprietor, shocked when she saw them, telephoned for police.

The girls gave their names as May McCarthy, Anne Flaherty, Marguerite Keen and "Ducky" Siebert, of Pittsburgh. They were hitchhiking to Cincinnati. They were released and renewed their trip.

HEARST STOCK BUYING SHOWS WIDE APPEAL

People of All Walks, Many Women and Ever, Sailors Quick to Take Opportunity

(Universal Service.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 7.—Public response to the offering of the seven per cent participating stock of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., reflects the inherent wealth and solidity of America. Subscriptions have come from people in every walk of life, about equally divided between men and women. Seafaring men, among others, have been a noteworthy segment of the subscribers.

While this financing has been accomplished in a period of generally slowed up business, a typical reaction has been an expressed admiration for the daring and business genius of William Randolph Hearst. Acknowledging it to be the largest stock issue of the year, the magazine "Fortune" refers to it as "by all odds, the most dramatic piece of stock financing Wall Street has seen this year."

EARNINGS ON UPGRADE

It is recognized that the new corporation includes some of the strongest and most profitable Hearst newspapers. During the last four years the consolidated papers have shown steadily increasing net earnings: $10,009,806 in 1926, $12,854,626 in 1929.

The average has been $11,017,873—or more than one million dollars for each publication in the group.

FIXED YIELD ATTRACTIVE

In addition to the physical assets represented in the valuable properties, plants and equipment of the papers and the diversified territories from which the corporation obtains its income, the generous fixed yield, 7 per cent, and the participation feature have attracted special attention.

Under the latter provision, Class "A" stockholders share to the extent of an extra 3 per cent in any dividends in addition to the 7 per cent. If the properties continue to grow and prosper, the likelihood for the realizing of substantially greater returns than 7 per cent increases.

FIREMEN'S CASE AWAITS BOARD

The case against three city firemen, including one captain, arrested yesterday and lodged in Center Avenue Police Station charged with disorderly conduct, was held over this morning by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg at the request of Police Inspector Albert Beebe.

Magistrate Rothenberg will not hear their case until after a hearing Tuesday morning before the Firemens' Trial Board.

The firemen, Capt. Paddy Carroll, Charles Geis and Albert Zimmerman, all of No. 2 Engine Company, Penn avenue and Fourteenth street, were arrested for the second time in 24 hours yesterday when they are alleged to have attacked Lawrence Goodman, Hill storekeeper, as he left Center Avenue Police Station after testifying against them.

Goodman, proprietor of a fruit store at 2136 Wylie avenue, had testified that the trio, intoxicated, entered his place Tuesday and wrecked his stands.

OPEN CUT-OUTS MEAN ARRESTS

War on motorists driving with open cut-outs was opened this morning by Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh, in an order to traffic police and inspectors.

The order stated that driving with open cut-outs is most prevalent on boulevards and straightaways. Motorists arrested for such violations will be prosecuted under the state automobile law, instead of for violations of a city ordinance.

This, Walsh believes, will check the violators, as the state may revoke the licenses of those accused. Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey this morning relayed the order to his men and warned them to be on the alert.

Two other orders were issued by Supt. Walsh. One instructed police that all juveniles arrested in the streets shall be taken to the station in an emergency auto patrol wagon instead of the police patrol.

Injured in Canada, Word Awaited Here

Word was awaited here today of the condition of Mrs. Esther Greeney and son, John, 9, family of Patrolman John W. Greeney, of 764 Anaheim street, who were injured in an automobile wreck in Canada. According to a telegram received by Inspector Charles Faulkner from the patrolman, the mother and boy are in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Tugs Go to Rescue Of Stranded Ship

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Two tugs summoned by radio from Hackett's Point, several miles north of Annapolis, today went to the assistance of the freighter Exminster, a 4,958-ton steamer owned by the American Export Company. The ship ran aground in a light fog and was believed to be in no danger.

DRILLS FEATURE GUARD REVIEW BY SLADEN

Regular Artillery Units Perform After General Inspects 107th at Camp

CAMP HALL, Tobyhanna, Pa., Aug. 7.—The One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery was honored yesterday by the presence of Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding general of the third corps area.

The general's arrival was heralded by a blare of trumpets and the 15-gun salute accorded his rank. He proceeded to the parade grounds where the One Hundred and Seventh, under Col. Eric Fisher Wood and the One Hundred and Eighth, commanded by Col. William A. March, of Philadelphia, were waiting in a dismounted formation of batteries in line. With his staff of four aides, the general reviewed the dismounted gun crews.

Battery B Sixteenth Regular Field Artillery was the first to pass in review after an extended exhibition drill mounted entirely on black horses. They went into action" with blank ammunition. They were followed on the field by C Battery's White Horse unit.

Battery A was the last to take the field before the guest of honor.

The One Hundred and Seventh spent the entire morning on the target range and the Poconos resounded with the echoes of the 75 mm. projectiles. Successful problems were fired by Capts. John A. Carothers, of Pittsburgh; William S. Bailey, of Harrisburg, and Frank E. Geiser, of Phoenixville, and by Lieut. William B. Sloan, of Pittsburgh.

GUARDS BATTLE FOREST FIRE

MOUNT GRETNA, Pa., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Nearly 1,000 guardsmen turned firefighters to check a blaze that swept through 10 acres of woodland close to the center of the National Guard reservation. The fire for a time swept threateningly toward Divisional Hill, where the guard headquarters is located.

Officers as well as men answered the alarm. From the Colebrook reservation, Col. Arthur Cohlahan brought 700 cavalrymen equipped with wet blankets, brushes and other improvised fire fighting apparatus.

A change in the wind and the back-firing methods employed were credited with checking the blaze before it reached any buildings. A spark from a locomotive was believed to have started the fire.

The One Hundred and Third cavalry was called from the pistol and sabre range by the fire alarm. The cavalrymen also had spent the morning there. The One Hundred and Ninth and One Hundred and Tenth Infantry again were on the ranges and also received instructions in chemical warfare.

SCHOOL SURVEY AT WEST VIEW

So rapidly is the school population of West View growing, that the borough school board has appointed a survey committee to report on future building needs.

A new grade school in the Schwitter plan at the northern end of the borough soon will be needed, according to H. H. Wilt, chairman of the committee while the problem of a senior high school for West View, as well as surrounding districts, is pressing. George J. Lang and Dr. A. E. Torrens are other members of the committee.

Four rooms of the Ridgewood school, under construction, will be available for use at the beginning of the fall term, the architect informed the board, this week. This will relieve congestion in the Oakwood school.

KONJOLA VERY MEDICINE HIS CASE NEEDED

Former Sufferer Glad to Tell What New and Different Medicine Did for Him.

After all, what mightier recommendation can a medicine get than the grateful words of those who, to their everlasting joy, found in Konjola the very medicine they needed; the medicine they should have had in the first place.

MR. G. R. CHARLTON

Konjola wins victory after victory because all of Konjola's 32 ingredients work together in cleansing the system and stimulating the ailing organs, bringing quick and glorious relief from ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Consider, for example, the case of Mr. G. R. Charlton, 527 Woodward Avenue, McKees Rocks, near Pittsburgh. Think it over, and then resolve to meet the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city. Hear from him the remarkable record of this remarkable medicine. But now read the words of Mr. Charlton, who said to the Konjola Man:

"For years I suffered with a very bad case of stomach trouble. Food did not digest, and did me little good. I tried several medicines in two years, but none gave relief. Six months ago I started taking Konjola, and found it to be the very medicine I needed. I am feeling better than in years, and can eat all kinds of food. Gladly I recommend Konjola to all who suffer as I did. Konjola relieved constipation, too, and I do not have to take laxatives of any kind."

So it goes, everywhere Konjola is put to the test. Konjola is for the aged or the infant; for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

HERBERT OPERA AND SPEECH BY JAMES J. DAVIS MARK RADIO PROGRAMS

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

Victor Herbert's amusing opera, "The Red Mill," will be given over KDKA at 10 o'clock tonight by a New York cast.

On WCAE at 10, the RCA Hour will present Gene Austin in "My Blue Heaven" and "For Sweethearts Only."

"Serving in the Cabinets of Three Presidents" will inform the nation at large of tribulations confronting a secretary of labor when James J. Davis speaks over the Columbia Broadcasting System at 10:30. WJAS will be the Pittsburgh outlet.

Arpo's Birthday Party on WCAE at 9 o'clock will be in tribute to Izaak Walton, great lover of the out-of-doors.

Dick Ridgely, KDKA's 19-year-old xylophonist, has left for New York, where he will be a soloist Sunday in the Victor Herbert Foundation Concert, which will feature Fritzi Scheff, of fond memory in "Mlle. Modiste" and once of the Metropolitan.

Which reminds us that Dick played the role of hero last Sunday at Beaver Falls when he rescued Lloyd Drake from drowning after the Washington (Pa.) artist had been knocked unconscious diving into shallow water.

* * *

Drake, whose sketches of radio artists are prominently displayed in Pittsburgh studios, suffered a broken nose and lacerations of the scalp. He's recovering.

QUESTION A DAY:

Grace Johnston, South Side—Who is the Fleet Wing baritone?

Ans.—Frederick G. Rodgers.

Since those girls crashed the Naval Academy mess hall in midshipmen's uniforms, why not change the school song from "Anchors Aweigh" to "Flappers Away," suggests A. Nonymous, in a note to this department.

Greatest admirer of Robert Brown at WLW is his caddy, little Joe Stolle, aged 14. As a special reward to little Joe for adding four and four to make three, Bob took the caddy to the studios recently and showed him "the works."

Malcolm Thompson tells us this story of Reinald Werrenrath, who sang so beautifully in the Camel Hour last night:

At a police officers' dinner in New York, Werrenrath was disguised in the uniform of one of the "Foinest."

During the entertainment that followed it was announced that "Patrolman Werrenrath, of Traffic A, will sing." As the strains of his great voice rang out through the big hall a police officer leaned over to Capt. Harry Eason, Werrenrath's host, and whispered excitedly:

"Say, that guy is wasting his time on the force. He could get a hundred a week singing in a night club."

New Way Closes Ugly Pores

—blackheads disappear!

Whenever I see a face that would be beautiful—if it weren't for disgustingly large pores, blackheads and oily skin that spoil make-up—I feel sorry.

For our in Hollywood they have a wonderful recipe for a lotion that so easily corrects these flaws and quickly makes the skin nice and smooth.

The very minute you pat it on the face and neck it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt. It removes blackheads, closes the pores and erases tiny tell-tale wrinkles. Soon the skin becomes silken in texture, youthfully fresh and healthy. There is no oiliness to fight or perspiration to damage make-up and make you look done-in.

Just get 3 ounces of Orchard White from any druggist, mix it with the juice of 2 lemons and you have a full quarter-pint of a lotion far finer and more effective than any special soap, cream or liquid you have ever used.

Note: In the summer this Hollywood recipe keeps the skin free of freckles and guards against that leathery look caused by wind and sun.

Science Ends Stomach Pain

New Formula To Banish Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Sourness, Gas and Resulting Nervousness and Sleeplessness

Burning acid stomach, pain after eating, belching gas, bloating, heartburn, dizziness, and the resulting nervousness, sleeplessness, and colds won't trouble you if you use the new formula Acidine.

"I had trouble for four years with my stomach," says Mrs. B. C. Hill, 285 Harrisville Avenue, Ogden, Utah, "and had taken baking soda and many medicines but they would give me only momentary relief. I tried the sample of Acidine which you mailed me and it was so good that I bought a large can and after using half of it, haven't had a pain in my stomach since. Acidine sure is wonderful."

"Muriel never gives us a bit of trouble," says her mother, Mrs. Sarah Lander of 3504 West Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill., "because I make sure that her little stomach is always sweet, so no sour food can hurt her. I give her a little Acidine, which tastes just like peppermint, at night. That takes away the acidity which comes when children eat too much cake and candy."

A well known doctor says: "I am convinced that Acidine is an antacid of first rank. For those who are troubled with gas on the stomach, heaviness after eating, heartburn, belching, bloating, usually due to excess acidity, I generally prescribe Acidine."

No formula for acidity surpasses Acidine. It's instantaneous action in cleaning up the troubles that commonly lead to stomach distress is more pleasing than you would believe possible. Acidine is safe, harmless, and pleasant for adults and children. Used by millions of people. It costs you nothing if it fails for the Acidine people say to every druggist, "If any customer in dispensed with the results obtained from Acidine, give them back their money immediately. We stand behind this product absolutely." Keep Acidine in your home always.

'Falling Star'

MRS. SIBLEY FREELY ADMITTED TO CAPT SOMMERS THAT THERE HAD BEEN A HEATED ARGUMENT DURING WHICH SHE HAD GONE SO FAR AS TO THREATEN IRMA GLADDEN IF SHE PERSISTED IN HER DESIGNING ATTENTIONS TOWARD WARREN SIBLEY
MRS. SIBLEY
CAPT SOMMERS
ROBIN DALE

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Irma Gladden, famous film star, is found murdered in her own car, which is parked on the grounds of her Beverly Hills home. The star's boudoir is completely ransacked. Robin Dale learns that Irma Gladden, recently divorced for a third time, left a party the evening of the murder with a former husband, Mindino, Filipino houseboy, discharged by the star for theft, is about to be arrested for the crime. Dale convinces the police of Mindino's innocence. A search proves that robbery was not the motive. Questioning Mathilda, the maid, the police learn of the frequent visits of various men since the star's latest divorce.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER IV.

"Did Miss Gladden ever explain why there were no parties?"

"Since Mr. Leighton go she been afraid . . . she never tell what it is, but always she tell me make sure doors locked and sometimes she tell me to say she not be at home for anybody."

"This young man named Worth—what did he quarrel with your mistress for?" The District Attorney and Capt. Sommers remained near the window during Dale's interrogation and made no attempts to interfere or change the course of the reporter's routine of questions.

"That was the first husband . . . don't you read about it how they were married in Atlanta when they were poor and then she comes in the moving pictures und is famous und divorces him? He still is crazy for her und wants them to come together again. He even says he would kill her before someone else gets her."

"Did you hear him say that?"

"Sure! More than once he says that!"

"Do you know what happened when Mrs. Sibley called?"

"They go upstairs and close the door, but when the lady go out she looks mad und slam the door very hard. Miss Gladden don't feel goot, too, und she stay in her room und call Mr. Sibley. That night he comes und they go out in the back garden."

"You say Mr. Forsythe also called on your mistress quite frequently?"

"Oh, yes.....he crazy for her, too, like all the men."

"Thank you, Mathilda. I think that'll be all for the present. If there's anything else we may want to ask I'm sure you won't mind telling us."

"Sure. I be glad to tell to the nice young man."

She was a decidedly calmer and more cheerful woman when she left the room. Capt. Sommers was rather thoughtful as he crossed the room with the district attorney.

"There's groundwork for any number of theories, Mr. Kenton, and it'll be up to us to see which one fits in with the facts we can obtain regarding the movements of those associated with Irma Gladden.....Dale, what particularly were you driving at in your questioning of Mathilda?"

"I had a feeling that Irma Gladden feared that she was in danger. The strange theory regarding the crime, that suggests itself to me, would have exploded if that fear had not been verified. But at best it's little more than a vague theory that will require a lot of substantiating facts before I even dare advance it. By the way, Captain, there's something on the garden hammock I'd like to have. May I?"

Sommers readily agreed and Dale went into the rear patio. The object he found on the hammock was a copy of the script of Irma Gladden's last picture. The title of the story was "Falling Star." The story and dialogue were by Rex Forsythe. A sticker had been attached to the linen cover. On it the following legend was typewritten: "Approved by Joseph Gold, Supervisor." And with a blue wax pencil, upon the linen cover itself, was written: "Mr. Sibley's Copy."

Robin Dale wired his story to the Daily Journal and also requested Elbert Bailey, the city editor, to instruct him with reference to remaining on the job in Beverly Hills. Rex Forsythe had not yet returned from the studio when the reply came. It was characteristic of Bailey:

"You always were lucky; stay and get sunstroke. It's raining here."

Dale had been apprised that at 4:30 Mrs. Sibley was to be questioned at the office of Capt. Sommers. He drove into Los Angeles to be present at the interview.

Mrs. Sibley, a tall, stately woman, modishly gowned, had no hesitancy in explaining her visit at Irma Gladden's home. She had gone to warn the film star against breaking up a home (the Sibleys had two young children)

Mrs. Sibley freely admitted to Capt. Sommers that there had been a heated argument during which she had gone so far as to threaten Irma Gladden if she persisted in her designing attentions toward Warren Sibley. The director's wife stated that she was not ashamed to fight for what was rightfully hers and explained that she felt no remorse over the untimely death of the screen star. She even stated she would have had no compunction in going to the extreme of committing such a deed herself.

In almost every respect Mrs. Sibley proved herself a most unusual witness. She did not refrain even from breaking down a possible alibi which might be required of her, by explaining that on the night of the murder she was at home alone and that Warren Sibley did not arrive until 5 o'clock in the morning, having worked the greater part of the night at the studio.

Warren Sibley had previously been questioned and admitted that the "shooting" of a picture had been called off at 2 a. m. after a disturbance created by Andre Leighton, who came to the studio in search of Miss Gladden. When he found that she was not present he had, in his half-drunken state, accused Sibley of being the cause of his troubles, and members of the crew barely were able to halt a fistic encounter between the two men.

Leighton was escorted from the studio and Sibley called off work for the night. He admitted that he did not go directly home but, after the excessive heat of the studio lights, had driven alone to the beach road, followed it as far as Point Dune and then returned home over Ventura boulevard, arriving about 5 o'clock.

Capt. Sommers considered both Warren Sibley and his wife as definite suspects in the case, but no police action was taken until the rest of those connected with the case had been interviewed. He told Dale that all efforts to locate Andre Leighton and Robert Worth had been unsuccessful. He did learn that Leighton had returned home after daybreak and had left again before noon.

No information whatsoever as to the whereabouts of Robert Worth was in the hands of the police, although a dragnet had been placed about the city and a warrant issued for his arrest.

Democrat Nominees Visit Two Counties

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—John M. Hemphill, Democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania, and Sedgwick Kistler, candidate of the same party for United States Senator, mingled with voters in Fayette and Westmoreland counties yesterday on their handshaking tour.

Headed by J. Edgar Hustead, Fayette county Democratic chairman, the party visited Masontown, Brownsville, Uniontown, Connellsville and Scottdale. Large delegations welcomed them at each place.

Father's Truck Kills Boy Greeting Him

ST. CLAIRSVILLE O., Aug. 7.—Returning from delivering milk, J. G. Russell, dairy farmer, was greeted as usual by his two small sons running toward his truck. Lawrence, 4, dashed in front of the machine and was killed before Russell could stop.

I Was Skinny, Run-down. Gained 34 lbs in Few Weeks

"I was so skinny and run-down friends thought I had a fatal disease. At last I tried Ironized Yeast and gained 34 lbs. in few weeks."—Paul Blanch.

"Skinny," weak, nervous people are delighted as new Ironized Yeast adds 5 to 15 lbs in 3 weeks. Changes "scarecrow" body quick to strong, well-developed form. Blotchy skin clears like magic. Nervousness, indigestion, constipation end overnight. Sound sleep, pep quick.

Two great tonics in one—special weight-building Brewer's Yeast and strengthening Iron. Pleasant little tablets. Far stronger than unmedicated yeast. Results in ½ time. No yeasty taste, no gas.

Don't be "skinny," tired, unattractive. Get Ironized Yeast from druggist today. Feel great tomorrow. Money back from manufacturer if not delighted with results.

"Be a snob" says College Prof.

Promotion depends on appearance as well as brains

MAYBE this sounds foolish at first glance, but is it? How many men do you know who need just a little grooming to give them a better place in the world? Two things will improve your appearance immensely. Well kept hands and a good smooth shave! And "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly makes it possible to have both.

Take the shave, for example. Tomorrow morning spread a light film of "Vaseline" Jelly on your face before you work in the lather. Then shave and see the difference. After you try this once you'll be a "Vaseline" Jelly fan for life.

As for the hands—when you come in from doing any form of manual work, apply "Vaseline" Jelly and rub it in briskly before you wash. It softens the cracks, loosens the dirt, soothes the irritation.

ASKS BUILDING BE REMOVED

Charging the new King Edward Apartments building Craig and Bayard streets encroaches on his adjoining property, Attorney John H. Lauer of State Building seeks damages in a petition for a mandatory injunction.

A. W. Peterson was named as defendant in charges that the foundation of the nine-story structures protrudes 4½ inches on the Lauer property at 212-14 and 16 Craig street. According to Attorney Raymond B. Gabler, representing Mr. Lauer, this encroachment occurs at the Craig street line and extends approximately 60 feet towards the rear of the building. The rear portion of the foundation, however, does not encroach, he said.

The petition seeks removal of the encroachment and asks the court to award damages.

We are proud to call them

"STANDARD"

dealers ★

MUCH of our remarkable progress during the past year and a half has been due to the dealers who have represented us in Western Pennsylvania. To their loyalty and their consideration for the best interests of their customers.

To the ranks of these older dealers have recently been added over 200 dealers who formerly handled the gasoline products of the Waverly Oil Works Company, making what we believe to be the most representative and highest type group of gasoline retailers in this section of the State. We are proud of them, of the confidence their customers hold in them, and in the products which they sell.

For a square deal every time, deal with a "Standard" Dealer. Then you too, will say "Good luck with 'Standard."

HAVANA, Aug. 7. — (AP.) — Scores of persons have been arrested in all parts of the island as the first measure in a nation-wide campaign against Communism.

Hearst Papers Now to Share Profits
Under Public-Employe Ownership Plan

Employe-customer ownership gained its first foothold in the United States—it had long been an established success in Great Britain—in the public utility field fifteen years ago. The soundness, the logic, the very naturalness of the plan has won ever-increasing public approval and acceptance—and participation. This plan is now almost universal among the public service corporations. It is not new in the publication business. Several outstanding concerns have adopted it with marked success.

FOLLOWING THE PARADE OF EVENTS IN HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM

Use of Babies for Twenty Minutes in Movies Costs $125

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 7.

Youth will be served. The Board of Education compels motion picture producers to pay a minimum salary of $125 for the use of babies between the ages of one and 30 days. Moreover, they cannot be worked for more than a total of 20 minutes.

Warner Brothers have just paid $250 to Mrs. Shirley Swarbrick, of Beverly Hills, in behalf of her twin daughters, two weeks old. They were used in the filming of "Mother's Cry."

Regulations for fledgling actors are the strictest on record. They cannot be under the lights for more than 30 seconds at a time. After this, 90 seconds must elapse before the next shot. In the interim, the lights must be dimmed and silence must prevail.

Dorothy Sebastian.

The Board of Education means business, too, for its standard contract requires that a special nurse, a doctor and a teacher must be on hand with a stop watch while the youngsters are at work. The Warner Brothers production department figures that the cost of hiring the Swarbrick twins, exclusive of studio overhead, was in excess of $1,000.

According to the mother of these tiny film debutants, their salaries will be invested in securities that will bring in $1,000 for each by the time they are 21.

JUST A SUGGESTION

"I notice in the papers," postcards Al Roasberg, "that the country is over-run with flag pole sitters and tree sitters. Why don't they give a prize to the Hollywood extra who sits the longest in the casting office?"

HOW EMBARRASSING

Our sympathy goes out to a certain Hollywood scenarist, who is in a lamentable predicament. Recently, he purchased a boat. While he was working, he had the money to pay for it, but no time to ride in it. Now, he has been laid off, and he has the time to ride in it, but no money to pay for it.

TIPS TOO SLOW

A Hollywood charity organization planned to pay for a $300 icebox with the tips given to the wives of prominent film executives, who volunteered their services as waitresses. 'Tis said, however, that there was a shortage of free-spenders. Hearing of this, one of the New York composers, now working in the movies, sent his check for the amount. Do I dare to say the icebox was bought for a song?

BREAK FOR DOROTHY

A well-deserved break has come to Dorothy Sebastian. She'll play the feminine lead opposite Bert Lytell in the talkie version of "Brothers." This is the melodrama in which Bert and his new wife, Grace Menken, played around the country.

Columbia will produce the movie.

By the way, Dorothy and Bill Boyd are still very much that way. They'll be married one of these days, no doubt. Dorothy just came in for some nice notices here for her performance in "Our Flaming Brides." She has one of those soft southern voices that register over the microphone.

FRED STONE HERE

Fred Stone, well beloved musical star, is out here, and they say Broadway will never see him again—at least as a performer.

He is staying at the home of his pal, Will Rogers, and, according to reports, has put his eastern property up for sale. There's been a very close friendship between Stone and Rogers for a long time. When Stone was injured in an airplane accident, Will stepped into his place and kept the show going.

GLORIA'S PLANS

Despite cautious denials by all concerned, rumors persist that Gloria Swanson will go to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to make two pictures upon the conclusion of her United Artists contract. One of them, it is said, will be a talkie version of "The Merry Widow," which Jack Gilbert and Mae Murray made as a silent film.

Gloria Swanson

As matters stand, Gloria has two more pictures for the U. A. This may be the reason why negotiations are not progressing at M. G. M. The members of the motion picture Producers Association have an agreement that they will not dicker with a star while he or she is under a contract to somebody else.

BARRYMORES BACK

The John Barrymores didn't take their baby daughter vacationing after all. As a result, they are home from their northern cruise 10 days earlier than had been expected. Dolores was too lonesome for the baby.

You'll recall it's a girl, Dolores Ethel and that it is three and one-half months old.

Versatile!

Introducing Jack Carney, athlete, student and music maker. Right now he is leading Ty Sawyer's Carolina Buccaneers at the Willows.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

COPYRIGHT 1930 DAILY MIRROR INC.

Man About Town

The Broadway Menagerie, ladies and gentlemen, the greatest of all the zoos. Be careful please and do not get too near the cages.

That's Officer No. 1576 of the 47th Street Precinct. It probably is the warm spell. And he has been baking in the traffic all afternoon. Don't mind him. He likes an audience, though. The other evening he caused such a scene near 48th Street and the Canyon.

Two blind musicians were slowly walking up the Artery, playing their mandolin and guitar. Poor fellows. So hot and stuffy. If only they could have drawn the crowd that 1576 drew.

"Get off this street!" bellowed 1576, "it's congested enough. C'mon, hurry up!"

Congested, he said. Blind men congesting Broadway. It is all right for the Chinatown and sight-seeing buses to clog up the corners, you see. It is all right for the tall, lanky uniformed movie attendants to stand in the middle of the most congested pavements in front of cinema cathedrals and congest things.

"C'mon, you guys, keep moving," growled 1576, "or I'll take you to Night Court!"

"I don't know where I'm going as it is," said one of the blind lads, "so I might as well go to Night Court."

Now in this cage, if you please, is one of the city's better known jewelry monarchs. He's married and all that sorta thing, but She Was So Beautiful and Was He Drunk! At any rate, they Went For each other in the Blazing Manner, and he spent plenty on her. So what happened? One of his best friends, a famous millionaire, met her and, not knowing that she was his pal's gal, he Gave Her That Certain Routine, and did she go limp!

After a month of crossing her jewelry joy-boy and her other Sapidilio, the jewelry man learned about it and started thinking fast. Instead of going crazy and starting a lotta fuss, he told the millionaire that he thought his new girl was very nice, but that she would look nicer in a lotta diamonds. The millionaire, in fewer words, spent over $75,000 on her in her jewelry sweetie's shop—the jewelry man considers things evened, the millionaire won't know about it until his attention is called to it here, and the gal is probably choking this very minute.

This is an interesting cage. He had two million dollars two years ago. His wife, a renowned actress in legit plays, who inherited a mess of it, too, from a former flame, started going gay over gigs, so he divorced her. Then he encountered a lovely little person from the Ziegfeld ensembles. It must have been the genuine thing because it has been a year now and they still go hungry together.

Well, the sour breaks came. The Wall Street thing, you know. Not a dime! Plumb busted, millions went phffft! Did she strand him? No siree. Friends just as broke, and anyway, there was that pride business. It is very sad. Last night, for instance, he parked her outside a night club and he went in to see the owner of the place. When he was in the money he spent plenty in that place.

"My wife and I haven't a place to sleep tonight," he said, "would you please okay me in any hotel just for tonight so we can get some sleep?"

The night club owner got them a room in a hotel where the tariff is very reasonable.

Last year they dwelled in the Ritz.

I wonder where they are sleeping tonight.

Here's a species of something or other. They are four German musicians working in one of the hof braus. They play dance music from 6 p. m. until 3 a. m., and they play incessantly. Very fine music makers, too. And when they are not playing dance tunes they do individual specialties.

The hof brau agreed to pay them $400 weekly and each man is entitled to a pair of beers nightly.

After the first week, however, the owner of the place went to the leader.

"I'm sorry," said the owner, "but business isn't what I hoped it

MEMBERS OF SEVEN FRATERNITIES IN ORCHESTRA

Ty Sawyer's Carolina Buccaneers, now playing at the Willows, is an orchestra of several distinctions. For one thing it is a collegiate orchestra that lives up to its name. All of its members are college boys.

The orchestra is directed by young Jack Carney. And he is a versatile fellow. He knows how an orchestra should be led. He is a singer, too. But his talents all aren't toward music. As an athlete his name figures big in the realm of collegiate sports. He was captain of track at his college and a member of the football squad. On the campus and in classroom he was prominent also, being president of the student council and a Rhodes' scholar candidate.

The 11 members of the orchestra are representative of seven fraternities. These are the Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Pi Kappa Alpha, Theta Kappa Mu, Sigma Phi Sigma, Delta Tau Delta and Delta Sigma Phi.

The organization was recruited by Ty Sawyer at the University of North Carolina. Unheralded and little known at the time, a trial concert won it recognition with the National Broadcasting Company. Since that it has been heard in many radio presentations.

Mr. Carney, too, has been featured in several commercial radio acts. Also he is a Brunswick recording artist.

Members of the orchestra include Ike Hughes, Frank Adams, Osdell Forehand, Joe Hines, Hugh Sawyer, Otis Haslip, Red Waddell, Tom Teer, Buch Trotman and Bill Thompson.

The orchestra will conclude its Willows' engagement Saturday.

WALTER WINCHELL

would be. People are away and I cannot afford to pay you that figure. I have another orchestra who are willing to work for $145 less."

The owner imagined the leader would reply:

"We'll take a $50 or $100 cut in wages if you will only let us stay here," but the leader floored him with this answer: "Dot's all right. Ve vurk for $145 less on von condition."

"What's that?" asked the owner.

"Dot instad of only having two beers each night ve all get five beers."

And in this cage is a group of chaps who call themselves members of the New York Theater League, Inc. The League is dedicated to the control of ticket speculation, but it is working out a plan with the Postal Telegraph Company, which reveals the scheme as being just another form of business enterprise. In other words, this league which aims, it asserts, to help the playgoer and save him from the ticket brokers, is going to co-operate with 900 telegraph offices outside the Metropolitan district. These offices are to be used by playgoers for reserving seats for Broadway shows.

Now, that sounds very nice. But there will be a service charge, of course. The theater patron will have to pay the cost of the telegrams and money orders. You do not understand, you say? Well, some of us do, and here it is. Let's say my name is Sam Longbloomers. It is October 15, 1930, when Broadway will have a few hits running. I'm getting ready to visit New York on business, again, and some pleasure. I want to see one of those hits. So I go to a Postal Telegraph branch in my home town, which, let us say, is Buffalo, and I send the League a wire:

"Reserve two seats for me down front Ziegfeld's show. Sam Longbloomers."

So what happens? So this happens. They charge me $6.60 each for my seats, box office price plus the 79 cents on each ticket for the broker. Instead of giving $8.80 each to a spec, I spend more. Because the wire costs me about 60 cents, and there's the money order fee. Perhaps a few hours later I receive an answer from the League. It wires me:

"Seats reserved in your name."

I wire back: "What are the locations?"

The League wires back: "Sixteenth row."

I'm a regular theater-goer and I do not want to sit in the sixteenth row. I can afford to pay for better locations. So I wire back:

"Cancel seats for Ziegfeld show, get me Jed Harris show."

All the time I am making the Postal people richer. So what do I do? I discover that I have spent about $9.40 on telegrams and I am burning up. I long for the good old days when a guy like me could go to a broker and pay for good seats and be sure to get them.

What I am trying to show is that this league gag is impossible. I'm an out of towner, don't forget. I'm from Buffalo or Washington, Pittsburgh or some place. To see a New York hit I have to pay telegraph charges! People will only wire for the hits. Anyone can come to New York and buy front row seats for flops.

I wind up coming home and instead of telegraphing to the League for tickets I stay home, and go to the movies, and hock my wife's jewelry, and with the coin I buy Postal Telegraph stock and live happily and prosperous ever after.

Dawes' Expedition 'Merely Vacation'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(Universal.)—The archeological expedition which Ambassador Dawes will undertake this month to France and Spain is merely a vacation, it was said at the State Department last night and without political significance.

The ambassador still has a fortnight of his 60-day leave, and he plans to be with the archeological party only for that length of time.

State May Be Sued For Return of Taxes

HARTFORD, Conn. — (INS.)— The state of Connecticut now stands a chance of being defendant, through its officials, in a series of suits to recover succession taxes imposed on estates outside the borders of Connecticut. The Supreme Court of Errors has ruled that a statute imposing such a tax is unconstitutional. The estate of Allen McMurtry, late of Greenwich, brought the suit which led to the decision.

Sailor Kills Another With 'Unloaded' Gun

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Aug. 7. —(AP.)—Paul Pratt, a young sailor in the United States Navy, accidentally killed a fellow sailor, Cecil Wesley Steward, Memphis, Tenn. Pratt picked up a pistol in the tent he and Steward occupied and not knowing it was loaded, shot him through the heart.

CHARGE TRAINS UNDER-MANNED

HARRISBURG, Aug. 7.—(AP.) —The Public Service Commission heard testimony in the complaint of the A. L. Dunbar Lodge No. 112, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Meadville, alleging inadequately manned freight train operation on the Erie Railroad.

The complaint was directed against the practice of reducing freight crews on trains operating over the Meadville and Mahoning divisions, a trainman with the crew on the New York end of the trip being taken off at Niobe Junction when the train enters Pennsylvania. The complainant's witnesses alleged the practice left the trains undermanned.

Officials of the railroad testified that the additional men required by the New York State "full crew" law were not essential to safe operation in Pennsylvania.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Our request to the multimillionaires of Pittsburgh for a half-milion dollars to establish the William Pfarr Foundation for Leisure has met with results of a sort. The mail brings a check for that amount from a gentleman who last week tried—the time waster!—to borrow $2 from us.

The rotund, elderly, good-natured gentleman who greets you as you enter Carnegie Hall for a lecture or concert is Mr. Robert Fulton, captain of the guards. Mr. Fulton knows more patrons of the Hall than anybody else does. Too, he knows all the celebrities who have entertained from the stage. His favorite was Victor Herbert.

Herbert was the most temperamental of them all, Mr. Fulton tells. At rehearsals of his orchestra he would jump up and down in anger, turn suddenly on an offending musician and berate him for what Herbert considered a poor interpretation of the music. But he recovered quickly, for the next minute he would be smiling graciously and distributing valued praise. He used to say that Mrs. Wunderly, his harpist, was the best he ever heard.

Herbert was not particularly careful of his words in the presence of Mrs. Wunderly. But after he had exercised his healthy vocabulary on one of the musicians, he would turn to her and apologize successfully with all the finesse of a mid-Victorian gentleman.

Herbert's royalties were rolling in those days when he had the orchestra at Carnegie Hall and he was generous beyond bounds. After rehearsals and concerts—four and five times a week—he would lead a dozen of his musicians to the Hotel Schenley and there he would entertain lavishly, in those pre-prohibition days.

Clarence Chamberlin, the flier, called up Morrie Scharff, the general manager of Wilbur Main's aviation activities, one day and told him he was sending around a coal miner who wanted to fly. In due time the so-called coal miner appeared at the Main field in Greensburg and demanded a plane in which to hop around. While Scharff explained to him that one needed much experience first, the visitor insisted he was already an able pilot. There was one argument after another, all of which ended with the visitor hopping into a ship and taking off.

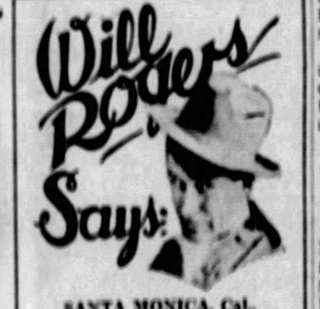
And for the next half-hour Scharff and the attendants watched the best and most exciting exhibition of stunt flying they had ever seen.

They learned later that the visitor, far removed from the estate of a miner, was a British war ace, an Australian by birth, who had later transferred to the United States air service. Following the war he migrated to Uniontown and obtained a job with one of the coal companies, only to be nipped again by the flying bug. Today he is chief pilot at the field where last summer he had so much trouble going for a ride. He is "Hen" Henrikas.



SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 7.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

I thought the California papers were exaggerating, as usual, the heat in the East, but I guess the rascals were right at that. What has the poor farmer done against the Almighty, and the Republican administration, that he should deserve all this? If it's not the heat it's the deep snow; if it's not the drought, it's the floods; if it's not the boll-weevil, it's the tariff; if it's not the chinch-bugs, it's the Federal Reserve; if it's not relief he needs, it's rain. But there is one pest he is always free from: that's the income tax.

Yours, WILL.

Clark Upheld in Dismissal of Clifford

PARLEY TO DISCUSS 'RIB' PRICE

KLINE'S 'SPOILS' POLICY AGAIN TRIUMPHS

Civil Service Commission Sustains Malone Ally's Ouster From City Post

Mayor Kline's policy of "to the victor belong the spoils" scored a new triumph yesterday when the Civil Service Commission upheld the dismissal of Joseph M. Clifford, of 741 Bryn Mawr road, assistant in the building inspection bureau and political ally of James F. Malone.

In a decision announced shortly before the City Hall offices closed, the commission said:

"We sustain Public Safety Director James M. Clark, who suspended Clifford July 11 last, on charges of being tardy, absent from duty, insubordination, neglect of duty in failing to comply with instructions from superiors and not keeping his filing system up to date."

CHARGES POLITICAL MOTIVE

Clifford charged his dismissal was prompted by the desire of Harry Feldman, Mayor Kline's political patronage dispenser in the Fifth Ward, to make a place for his friend, Louis A. Schwartz. Director Clark, it is said, is about to transfer Schwartz from the job of assistant chief clerk in the Safety Department. At the time of his suspension and discharge, Clifford appealed to the Civil Service Commission for a hearing and at the same time denied the charges.

Clifford, in his reply to Clark when notified of the director's action, explained he was absent July 7 because it was the last day of his annual two-weeks vacation. Feldman had previously threatened him with his disfavor, he said.

RESIDENCE QUESTIONED

At the Civil Service hearing, following which decision on the case was reserved until yesterday, Clifford's length of residence in Pittsburgh was questioned. Witnesses attempted to prove he conducted Burt's Inn, on Wyman road, Fairhaven, which is outside the city.

Clifford admitted visiting the inn, but insisted he resided at the Bryn Mawr road address.

Dr. F. H. Frederick is president of the commission. Dr. S. H. Johnson, Mayor Kline's brother-in-law, is a member.

HUNT CONVICT IN BEECHVIEW

City detectives armed with riot guns early today combed the hillside overlooking Cape May avenue, Beechview, after receiving information that R. B. Canfield, of North Bessemer, who escaped from the Western Penitentiary July 24, was in that vicinity. The search was in vain.

Last midight detectives received a call requesting them to meet a deputy warden at West Liberty and Cape May avenues. The sleuths, armed with riot guns, sped to the scene, picking up two Allegheny County motorcycle policemen while passing through the tubes.

Upon reaching the scene they were informed by the deputy that Canfield was believed to be at the home of a resident of the district. The sleuths surrounded the home, but did not find the escaped prisoner. The search was continued after leaving the house, some of the sleuths believing that Canfield may have been in the house and fled when learning of their approach.

Canfield fled the prison with two other convicts by sliding down a rope from a tower at the prison. Ralph Minter, 29, of Johnstown, and Freeland Preston, 29, also of North Bessemer, his companions, were captured. Preston was caught when he reached the ground and Minter broke his ankle in the descent.

FIREMEN SAVE 2 CHILDREN

Mary Ann and Frances Butler, aged 4 and 2, respectively, were carried from their home at 324 School way, Lawrenceville, last night when the house became filled with smoke from a fire in the kitchen. They were carried to the street by firemen from No. 6 Engine Company.

The children, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Butler, were alone in the house when a neighbor discovered smoke pouring from the kitchen. Firemen investigated and discovered an overheated electric iron had caused a small fire, filling the dwelling with smoke.

The firemen searched the house and discovered the children asleep on the second floor. The damage to the building was estimated at $10.

Three Towns Hold Kennywood Picnics

Volunteer fire departments of Brownsville, South Brownsville and West Brownsville today sponsored the annual community outing of those towns at Kennywood Park. John Sabin, of South Brownsville, is general chairman of the committee in charge. Other members are N. M. Rice, G. W. Stevenson and George Vickers.

Fifty thousand are expected to attend the annual Westinghouse picnic at Kennywood Saturday.

TWO MILLIONS FOR DISTILLERY

Executors of the late Frederick C. Renziehausen announced today that the plant of the Large Distillery Company, at Large, near West Elizabeth, has been sold for approximately $2,000,000, the articles of agreement having been signed yesterday. The identity of the purchasers was not made known.

Representatives of the Fidelity Title and Trust Company who closed the deal denied that the buyer was the Overholt company. They stated that the deal was closed in behalf of the buyer by New York capitalists. The New Yorkers spent most of yesterday at the plant and last night were in Butler, where they are believed to be negotiating another deal.

WORK AWAITS ARMSTRONG

Unless he changes his mind at the last minute and decides to continue his vacation, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong will be at his desk in the courthouse tomorrow.

He was to return from a vacation in Canada late today. William H. Ziefel, his secretary, said, and be at his desk tomorrow morning.

Work on reaching some solution for the County-City Airport project, far from completion, probably will be started following his return, Commissioner E. V. Babcock said.

A number of bids for county improvements will be opened.

Despite badly bruised limbs and a lacerated eye suffered in two automobile accidents within the past few days, Babcock has been on the job. Since Monday he has been the only commissioner in town. Commissioner C. C. McGovern having been called to testify at the senatorial investigation of the recent primary election in Pennsylvania, heard at Washington. Armstrong was invited to testify, but his vacation interfered.

NORTH SIDERS ENJOY PICNIC

Five thousand lucky packages along with "hot dogs" and hundreds of gallons of coffee were given free at the North Side Board of Trade's twentieth annual picnic held in West View Park yesterday.

Numbered among the 15,000 or more persons assembled were State Senator Morris Einstein and Councilman Harry Little, who acted as honorary judges in the athletic contests.

The dancing exhibition, an annual feature, was given by Verna Ulhich.

The outing was sponsored and supported by business men of the Manchester district. Albert Eber, president, and William Doench, vice president, of the organization, were in charge.

Mrs. Benner and her husband were on a vacation trip when Mrs. Benner became ill. She was rushed to the hospital and operated on for appendicitis.

Ruse to Get Back to U. S. Seen in Fire Confession

A photograph of Anthony Brevuly, who is alleged to have confessed to Hamburg (Germany) police that he burned a building in Coverdale in which a woman and her 9-year-old daughter were fatally burned, was identified as that of Emil Cipcich, a priest and a brother of Anton Cipcich, owner of the building that burned.

In a letter today to Gov. Fisher, Assistant District Attorney George Langfitt expressed an opinion that Brevuly confessed the crime to be returned to the United States. Upon returning to this country, the attorney stated, the man would repudiate his confession.

Anton Cipcich said his brother visited him in Coverdale three weeks following the fire, and was informed of the details of the death of the woman and her child. Cipcich said his brother was in California at the time of the fire.

In his confession, Brevuly said he was paid $1,500 by Peter Cywic to burn the store. County detectives, investigating, learned the address Brevuly gave for Cywic was the site of Arsenal Park, Lawrenceville. Hamburg police are holding Brevuly.

CHAPTER XX.

Raquel continued to struggle there in the jungle dimness of the Bosart indoor garden. Until she had dragged the pink Elsworth, now red and inflamed with wine, across the white marble bench.

Her physical strength was multiplied by fear and loathing. Yet it was no match for that of the man, in his muddled state. His arms held, tightening around her body until she breathed with difficulty. She must use other than her woman's strength against his. Her woman's wit.

Slippers with high thin heels, like stilts!

She ceased to struggle, leaned back limply against her captor.

"There now, that's better," he mumbled. "Naughty Princess, running away from Ellie." His hold on her relaxed.

In that instant Raquel raised her right foot, and with all the strength at her command, brought it down, heel first on her captor's instep. She could feel the crunch of it against flesh and bone.

"Pink pig! Puerco!" she gasped. His arms fell away, dangled helplessly at his side. The pain of the impact left him strength for no more than a low moan. Raquel wheeled to face him. A fierce hatred of this pink man, of all men, flared up so that she raised her slim white hand and pushed him, viciously, from her. He reeled backward into the tiled fountain. His head struck against the basin with the staccato sharpness of an exploding gun.

Suspicious

Mrs. Bosart Asks Raquel About Husband

Was he hurt, badly, this pig of a man? The question crowded out all other thoughts as Raquel sped back along the path by which she had reached the sequestered nook. Not dangerously. Drunken men seldom if ever suffered dangerous hurts. As for pain, she hoped he would know pain now and for some time to come. He deserved as much, and worse.

In the arch opening onto the garden Raquel paused. She must compose herself. The pulse fluttered in her creamy throat like the wing of a frightened bird. She must still it, mask the dark passions written so plainly on her face. Mrs. Bosart was hurrying jerkily toward her, ignoring the smiles and nods of guests who watched her progress along the hall with sly eyes.

"Ah, Princess," she said, a senile croak in her voice, falsetto with excitement, "you have been in the garden? Perhaps you found Elsworth, my husband, there. I have been looking for him."

Mrs. Bosart suspected she had been in the garden with the pink one. If Mrs. Bosart went into the garden, she would surely come upon that soggy figure in the fountain. She must not go into the garden.

"I just stepped inside for a moment," said Raquel, her voice cool, indifferent. She craned her neck so that she might have a better view of the corridor. "I've been waiting here for Alphonse. We have a—rendezvous."

Raquel Happy

Delighted When Alphonse Finally Appears

Her information had all the hesitancy of an intimate admission.

Mrs. Bosart's suspicion lifted. Her stretched lips would have spread into a smile of understanding, of relief, could they have managed it.

"I'm afraid poor dear Elsworth has made too free with the wine," she confided uneasily. "He's quite unmanageable when he has—a few glasses. Such a child!"

Child? Raquel shuddered. Beast!

"You must be mistaken," she said reassuringly. "Mr. Bosart passed here only a few moments before you came. I'm sure he was all right. He was with a girl, a very young small girl in a pale blue dress."

The agate eyes of Mrs. Bosart fairly popped from their ringed sockets.

"Which way did they go?" she quavered.

"That way," said Raquel, indicating the length of the hall with a nod of her head. "Toward the supper salon."

Mrs. Bosart did not wait to

MT. LEBANON RECORDS SCANNED

Citizens May Be Asked to Pay On Same Rate Basis Set For Public Buildings

The Pittsburgh Coal Company is expected to offer coal pillars for surface support to property owners of Mt. Lebanon at the same price charged for supports of public buildings and streets, if a satifactory rate is agreed upon in the negotiations between township and company officials.

This adjustment of the condemnation proceedings planned by the township is the prediction from a well-informed source in touch with the negotiations.

The question of price to be paid by the township for coal pillars underlying its buildings and streets may be taken up for discussion today by township and company representatives.

EXPERT ADVICE OBTAINED

Since the initiation of the negotiations Monday, township officials have been in close touch with company officers and engineers, making a survey of coal underlying public buildings and streets and obtaining expert opinion as to required surface support.

Yesterday Township Solicitor E. B. Goldsmith and members of the board of township commissioners examined records and charts of the company and consulted with company engineers and officers, after receiving a report from W. F. Vegeler, township engineer.

The section of the township, roughly about 5 per cent of its entire area, affected by the "retreat" of the mining operations, was charted in 20 blocks of coal supports, and the workings were visited, to enable the township commissioners to determine the number and position of coal pillars to be required.

AUTHORITY LIMITED

G. J. Irwin, township manager, with Goldsmith and Vegeler, bore authority merely as a representative of the township, in entering the negotiations launched by the company to adjust amicably the proposed condemnation, ordered by the township commissioners in connection with an injunction action to restrain undermining of public buildings and streets.

Any adjustment would have no effect on private property owners, with whom separate negotiations have been conducted by the company, which offered coal pillars at 75 cents a ton, or 50 cents a ton in groups, with the alternative of withdrawing this surface support.

SILENT ON INDIVIDUALS

While the conferees refused to make any statements as to whether the plight of private owners would be taken up ultimately, there were indications that the subject would be broached at the conclusion of the present negotiations in the event of a compromise.

The latest word is that the company will extend a similar compromise price to individuals as a concession to public good will and to terminate the controversy growing out of the original offers.

If the question of price, which was deferred pending the survey, is taken up today, the offer of the company and the engineering data will be laid before the township commissioners at a meeting next Monday night, according to present plans.

Two Women Freed on Bail After Tea Room Raid

As a sequel to a raid on a tea room at 135 North Craig street, yesterday, two women were at liberty today on $2,000 bail each, according to prohibition agents who staged the raid.

Irene Pallo, 31, alleged operator of the place, and Agnes Berg, 33, an employe, were arrested, agents said, after a pint of moonshine was found in the place. The bond was furnished immediately after their arrest.

A 150-gallon still and 48 barrels of mash found in a dwelling at 2502 Glenmawr avenue, resulted in the arrest of Henry Etmon, 37, it was reported.

Janitor Acting Queerly For Week, Steel Company Physician Tells Detectives

Erick F. Ernst, 54, of Waddell avenue, Carrick, was believed to have been driven insane by the heat when he shot and fatally wounded William May, 46, superintendent of the marine ways of the Carnegie Steel Company at Coal Valley yesterday, county detectives announced today after an investigation. Ernst killed himself a moment after shooting May.

Ernst, a janitor at the plant for five years, entered May's office and, leveling a revolver at him, fired. The bullet struck May in the neck. Ernst then placed the muzzle of the revolver in his mouth and pulled the trigger. Both men were dead when carried into the company's emergency hospital at Clairton.

A company physician told deputy coroners and detectives that Ernst had been singing German songs and talking incoherently during the last week.

May's home was in New England, near Clairton.

WATER CUT OFF, USERS PAY UP

The Bureau of Water's policy of shutting off the supply of delinquent payers has wrought no hardships anywhere in the city, according to City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, but is forcing payment by many of those who would otherwise forget their bills of long standing.

Collections in the bureau for July are greatly in excess of those of July, 1929, the treasurer said, but actual figures have not been compiled. The gross receipts for the first six months period are expected to show a decided increase over those of last year.

Schooley said:

"If a consumer has a reasonable excuse we do not turn his water off. We give him two weeks to pay up. In homes where there is sickness we do not cut off the supply."

Schooley has permitted employes of the bureau who are assigned to meter and supply duty to accept checks from consumers for payment of water rent.

Because these employes are not under bond, they were not permitted to accept cash heretofore, he said.

Unless an additional appropriation of $165,000 from some other fund is made available, 200 of the laborers will be laid off indefinitely, and an equal number will be placed on a three-day-a-week schedule.

LAW PERMITS JUNKING, SAYS BAILEY

Official Declares Owners Have No Redress; Honest Weight Drive to Continue

Shopkeepers whose allegedly inacurate scales were confiscated in raids by operatives of the Division of Weights and Measures have no redress, it was announced today, as they cannot demand the equipment back or bring action against the city.

Raiding several score of shops, markets and stores as the opening gun of a campaign to rid Pittsburgh of dishonest weighing machinery, inspectors of the Division of Weights and Measures, under James N. Bailey, incurred the wrath of many proprietors.

The scales were destroyed with sledge hammers and then junked.

LAW FOR DESTRUCTION

A state law permits destruction of the scales, according to Bailey, and owners have no comeback.

Bailey said:

"We are not in the least afraid of any threats of action against us. The storekeepers know we have the goods on them. Our operatives tested the scales, found them shortweight and then confiscated the equipment.

"We made no arrests. It is only when our men purchase items at stores and markets that we make informations and cause prosecutions. Those who say we have no right to destroy the scales and claim we are working on a form of 'summary justice,' are wrong. The state law provides for such action."

OFFENDERS WARNED

Asked for an opinion on such procedure, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt said he believed it was usual to file informations before an alderman, charging violation of the weights and measures law, and then destroy the scales.

He said:

"A warning has been issued to the offenders. Should they continue, prosecutions no doubt will be made."

RAIDS TO CONTINUE

Inspector Bailey announced he intended making Pittsburgh "safe for housewives" so they could get honest weight for their money. The raids wil continue at intervals until it is considered the abuse is ended. Just before the raids took place Bailey "shook up" his staff of undercover men and inspectors. This procedure was in the form of a transfer, he said, to prevent possible collusion with offenders.

WRIT REFUSED IN BUILDING

Judge Harry H. Rowand has refused to grant an injunction aimed to stop the erection of a house in Atlantic avenue, St. Clair terrace, Mt. Lebanon Township, which, it was asserted, would cost less than the $10,000 building restriction set on homes in the district.

Suit was brought in Common Pleas Court by James C. Logan, a taxpayer, against John F. Curran, and Beck, Keim & Burns, contractors. Logan claimed the plans for the house indicated a $7,500 building. Curran said the plans had been altered by finishing the second story, so the cost would exceed $10,000.

LETTERS LEAD TO WEDDING

A love affair that blossomed in Palestine two years ago culminated here today when Miss Sonia Boulos, daughter of the Rev. Solomon Boulos, of Dawson street, Oakland, announced the date of her wedding to Dr. Elias Sabbagha, of Palestine, who has traveled 6,000 miles over land and sea to marry the "only girl."

Miss Boulos met Dr. Sabbagha, superintendent of the Greek Orthodox Community Hospital at Gaffa, Palestine, while touring the Holy Land with her mother two years ago. They saw much of each other for 18 days, and, following Miss Boulow's return to Pittsburgh, a correspondence courtship followed.

What the letters contained became evident when Dr. Sabbagha arrived here and plans for a wedding followed. The ceremony will be held in St. Nicholas' Church, South Dithridge street, Sunday evening at 9 o'clock.

After a honeymoon in Paris the couple will make their home in Palestine, where the bride will assist her husband with his duties at the hospital.

COURT THROWS POOL OPEN

Negro children will be permitted to swim in the new municipal pool in Avalon, at least during the balance of this season, under continuance of a preliminary injunction against interference by the town authorities, until the regular fall equity trial list is argued.

Judge Harry H. Rowand took this action in Common Pleas Court after listening to arguments of the attorneys.

Catharine Stokes, 11, a Negro child, had been sold a regular permit allowing children of the borough to use the pool, but was ejected when she went to bathe last July 4. Her father filed the suit to enjoin the borough from restricting the child's swimming. Attorney William H. Stanton, representing the child, attacked the legality of the ordinance passed by Avalon Council, in which it was stipulated colored residents of the borough could use the pool only on Monday mornings. He said the pool was drained each Monday noon, and claimed the ordinance discriminated against colored taxpayers and residents.

AUTO KILLS BOY, 3 OTHERS HURT

One boy was dead and three others were in hospitals today as a result of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district late yesterday and last night.

Sylvester Bajcek, 16, of 24 Federal street, Natrona, was killed last night when struck by an automobile driven by Lewis Augustine, of Railroad street, Natrona, deputy coroners reported. The accident occurred on the Birdville Hill in Natrona.

Augustine was ordered to post bond at the coroner's office today.

Arrested after his automobile struck a boy in the Boulevard of the Allies at Grant street, last night, W. J. Sullivan, 35, of 2021 Tustin street, was held after he was pronounced under the influence of liquor by Chief Police and Fire Surgeon D. E. Sable, according to police. The victim, Louis Visgley, of 109 Grant street, suffered fractures of the legs and internal injuries. He was taken to Mercy Hospital.

HIT BY RUNAWAY AUTO

Struck by a runaway automobile while playing near his home, Edwin Leshinski, 12, 170 Forty-fifth street, suffered a foot injury, and was taken to St. Margaret's Hospital. The car, parked a short distance above the boy's home, descended when its brakes became released accidentally.

AUTO HITS SUN PARLOR

The sun parlor of the home of Mrs. Mary Pearson, at 3235 Allendale street, was badly damaged when an automobile driven, according to police, by Harry Astor, 21, of 3239 Ashlyn street, crashed into it. Astor suffered cuts on the arms and legs and was treated by a physician.

Walter Recklein, of Saltsburg road, and Patricia O'Kane, 6, of 7227 Sprague avenue, Wilkinsburg, were cut and bruised when machines in which they were riding collided at Sterrett and Bennett streets today. The boy was riding with his mother, Mrs. Walter Recklein, 31, and the O'Kane girl was riding with Vincent Deer, 24, of 4118 Gittens street. The youngsters were taken home, and the drivers were arrested.

The women were representatives of groups throughout the county who each year serve as volunteer workers in behalf of the Salvation Army.

After securing a description of her "friend," police found DeAngelis near the Armstrong Tubes. He was taken to the hospital, where the girl accused him of throwing her from the car. DeAngelis admitted that he and the girl took a ride last night, but denied throwing her into the street, police say.

DeAngelis will be arraigned tomorrow morning in Morals Court. The Yansura girl is recovering from a fracture of two ribs and bruises about the body.

Ingram Vigilantes Curb House-Breaking Epidemic

The Vigilance Committee organized in Ingram many years ago is active again.

An epidemic of house-breaking resulted in Burgess Carl C. Dittmer ordering out the 25 reserve officers for night duty. Each night a different group patrols the borough, permitting no one to pass unchallenged unless they are known.

Since the reserve force started work more than a week ago, four men wanted by police in other states have been apprehended.

Two men, wanted for robbery in Mansfield, O., were picked up Monday night, and the same evening two others wanted in West Virginia were placed under arrest.

The four were committed to the county jail. They were to be returned to their respective states today.

According to Burgess Dittmer, several residents of the lower Ingram district have reported their homes entered by prowlers at night. The latest report was made last night by Mrs. Harry Lane, of Kohala street and Schley avenue, who reported seeing a man on her back porch. The man fled before police arrived.

Each of the 25 reserve officers has full authority to make arrests. They serve at a salary of $1 a year, working directly under the burgess along with the regular officers, Louis Wagner and William Shaffer.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mountains Appeal to Society

From time to time news comes from the White Mountains of the delightful summer days of Pittsburgh colonists at the various resorts there.

The Roy E. Hunts and their four children are at "Sugar Hill," the home of the novelist, Ernest Poole, for the summer, and are taking a prominent part in the social life of the community.

While abroad on a tour of the Garden Club through the British Northwest, Mrs. Hunt received a telegram from friends in the mountains asking her to be one of the judges at the second annual flower show of the White Mountain Garden Club. And Mrs. Hunt arrived for the event.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vankirk, of the Kenmawr Hotel, motored to the mountains to join their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Vankirk, in Whitefield at The Mountain View House. The Vankirks have been at the Southport, Conn., place for some time.

Mrs. James W. Friend and Mrs. W. H. Parke are at the Mountain View House, too, and R. E. Maxwell has arrived.

Helen C. Rush and Hazel Ruth, who are at the Twin Mountain House, will take part in the weekly clock golf tournament on Friday.

At the Ravine House at Randolph, where folks who enjoy mountain climbing usually stay, are the Walter W. Havilands and the Paul A. Havilands. And I might add that the Randolph Mountain Club maintains over 75 miles of trails in this vicinity.

Many of the Pittsburgh folks summering in the White Mountains went this week to Dixville Notch to see the international lacrosse matches, between the Brooklyn champion team of the Crescent Athletic Club and the Montreal, Canada, Canadian champions.

Anne and Helen Greene have joined their grandparents, the Isaac B. Johnsons, of New York, at the Mount Washington. At the Crawford House are the H. M. Eavensons and the C. A. Armstrongs, of New Kensington.

More and more folks are being attracted to Saratoga Springs by the races, to Southampton by the horse show to be held August 16, to Watch Hill, where Pittsburgh society has a large colony.

The city is deserted now of the greater part of its families. Those who are still here are foregoing all large social events, and finding diversion in golf, tennis, swimming and bridge on shaded terraces of country clubs. For news of society doings one must turn to the resorts.

The J. Frederic Byerses are still at Saratoga Springs. And were among the guests at a large dinner party the Charles Minot Armorys gave at the Arrow Head Inn Monday night.

And did you hear about the dinner George Bull, president of the Saratoga Racing Association, gave over the week-end?

LONG EVENING WRAP REPLACES BRIEF JACKET IN LATEST MODE

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, AUG. 7.—The little wrap has but little time left in which to go places and do things, and generally disport itself. For, with the advent of Autumn, the wrap gorgeous will again step forth in all its majesty to suggest the luxurious elegance of the formal functions that always grace the Autumn and Winter season.

However much one likes and admires the wee wrap, one must admit that there is nothing like the long, richly furred wrap to confer an air of opulence and well-being, or effectively combat a bad case of sartorial inferiority complex. Halfway between the little wrap and the very long one, there are to be found, this year, some most attractive coats cut on full lines, and reaching midway between the knee and the ankle. These are cut on definite coat lines and trimmed with fine furs to contrast with the dull weave of the material which is of crepe marocain or, often, heavy georgette. Such a coat offers a successful in-between-season solution to the evening wrap question, which this season is particulary difficult, due to the universal acceptance of the very little wrap.

TO GIVE YOU a definite idea of the type of in-between-season formal wrap current here, we are sending you a sketch of such a model from the house of Mirande. This collarless coat is of heavy black crepe marocain. Its lack of collar is amply compensated by the huge shirred cuffs and the deep rippling bands of silver fox that trim the most unusual godets.

* * *

IF YOU ARE inclined to hanker after a coat-frock, now is a good time to gratify your hankering. For the leading houses are offering such creations that are ever so trig and good-looking enough to serve a variety of needs and purposes. We think that you will like Lucile Paray's version of the coat-dress in which she achieves a stunning effect with the black hassouna crepe combined with snowy georgette. The unusual sleeves and the two small pleated godets are items of more than passing interest.

Of all toothpastes on the market—Colgate's holds overwhelming sales leadership

For 30 years—toothpastes have come and gone. Today—as 30 years ago—and all the years between—Colgate's is still the biggest seller.

COLGATE'S has healthfully and completely cleansed more people's teeth than any other dentifrice the world has ever known.

COLGATE'S has done this for more years and more people than any other dentifrice ever made.

* * *

COLGATE'S has been more universally recommended by dentists than any other dentifrice ever made.

* * *

COLGATE'S is advised by leading authorities who have been retained to make analytical tests and render expert opinion. Such eminent authorities as Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Health of New York City, Dr. Hardee Chambliss, Dean of School of Sciences, Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., and others agree Colgate's has cleansing properties found in no other dentifrice.

WHY?

BECAUSE dentists and users alike know that Colgate's gives the maximum results in thorough and healthful cleansing of the teeth. And because more people use Colgate's than any other make . . . because it outsells all others . . . and has for 30 years . . . the manufacturer can continue to sell you the generous, full-size tube at the low price of 25 cents.

BE guided by this overwhelming preference. Clean your teeth tomorrow—and every day—with Colgate's—the world's most popular toothpaste.

RAILWAY TRUCE OFFERED

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—The Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railways Company, through its president, David McCahill, late Wednesday made a proposal to Mayor W. H. Gillespie, Councilman C. H. Reeves and City Solicitor, R. M. White to surrender all its franchises on streets of this city, give the rails to the city to salvage, and a private right of way from East Washington street to Taylor street, which is of great value to the city, providing the city would cancel all obligations of the company to the city and would join with the company in seeking permission for a change of service in the city by the company from interurban cars to buses.

The proposal is considered favorable by the city officials and will likely be approved. The new service is to become effective August 18, if approved. The company will continue to operate its interurban line to the city line.

President McCahill in a statement said that the present tendency of the traveling public is to travel on rubber instead of steel rails and that for this reason the company would give up its franchises on the city streets to avoid many thousands of dollars expense for paving on streets on which it operates.

MRS. SCHENCK SUES VAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—Mrs. Lillian Schenck, widow of Joe Schenck, member of the famous vaudeville team of Van and Schenck, wants $52,000 paid her by her late husband's partner. She had on file today a suit asserting that George Van owed her husband that sum when he died in Detroit in June.

Mrs. Schenck claims that Van borrowed $27,000 from her husband, and the other $25,000, she alleged, was due her under an agreement by which the widow of the first of the vaudeville team to die was to receive that sum. She said under the latter agreement Van had collected $75,000 on an insurance policy but, she charged, had failed to pay her anything.

ADMITS KILLING WIFE BY BLAST

STINNETT, Tex., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—A. D. Payne, Amarillo attorney, charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Eva Payne, in a bomb explosion June 27, admitted his guilt.

In a statement to Chief of Police W. N. McDowell, Payne said he was the "meanest man in the world" and upheld the reputation of Mrs. Verona Thompson, his former secretary, who made a statement last night which resulted in Payne's arrest. She said Payne was infatuated with her.

Payne was brought here after Mrs. Thompson's statement had been made public, Amarillo officials fearing mob violence.

STEEL WORKER SADLY IN NEED

Mr. J. Javorski, residing at McKeesport, Pa., who, after a visit to Poland, returned to McKeesport. He was formerly an employe of the Pittsburgh Steel Co. works for years, his health got so bad that the doctors advised him to go back to his native country, as the climatic condition here did not agree with him. After spending six months in Poland, his native country, using medicines such as used in that country, he recovered his health. His doctors there told him they believed it would be all right for him to return to America as he was well again. His old affliction returned to him and he was forced to quit his job after he was here a short time. He was out of money and too sick to work, and the doctors advised him the only way that he could get permanent results was to return to his native country and remain there.

Some of his friends, who came from Poland, who had been advised some time ago to go back to their native country to regain their health, advised Mr. Javorski to try the new medicine that is creating so much excitement in Pittsburgh. They had used it and got well, saving them a trip to the old country. This is what Mr. Javorski had to say today when interviewed: "This is my third bottle of WORLD'S TONIC and I am now going back to my old job at the Pittsburgh Steel Co. works feeling just as good as I did when I was in Poland." Health Evangelist Dyar when asked about his case said: "The reason WORLD'S TONIC is helping so many people to get well who were of foreign birth was due to the fact that the ingredients used in WORLD'S TONIC are gathered in different parts of the world, and is the same kind of medicine that is used in different parts of the world. Naturally it will give permanent results on foreign born people when American medicines fail, as it was intended to work not only on Americans but on foreign born people for the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and bowel trouble, and other disorders such as the average working man and woman have. It has been the means of saving many other people expensive trips back to their native countries after other methods and medicines had failed. I know you will hear of many hundreds of other cases similar to this in a short time, just as soon as all the people wake up to the fact that there is an entirely new medicine to be had in Pittsburgh."

WORLD'S TONIC is for sale at $1.00 for a large bottle at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and all other modern drug stores. (A-53)

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Do You Sincerely Approve Of Long Engagements?

Do you believe that a couple of youngsters can go on for years and years of waiting . . . seeing each other every day . . . longing for each other every hour . . . belonging yet not belonging to each other . . . without at last going stale on each other?

And suppose that is the almost certain risk—is it then better to decide to go free "until we can afford to marry"—or take the chance and marry on a little and work together for success?

That's the question that had Dad Jenkins up a tree. Dad has a beloved motherless girl whose Romeo wants her to go on for six or seven years, waiting for a wedding ring. And Dad is worried.

He doesn't believe that long engagements pay. Do you? Do you know of any that has? Then, when you get through reading his letter, send your answer in to Dad.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Here is a problem that is very serious to me, and to my daughter, and we are anxiously waiting for what you have to say. I have persuaded my daughter to follow your advice if you will give it.

"For about a year now she has been keeping company with a young man who works where she does. He is 25, and she is 19. He is a very nice fellow, and I was more than glad for her to go with him, so I never mixed in or asked any questions, until she had a talk with me, and told me that he is a college graduate and is preparing to take up dentistry, commencing next September, and that he will not be finished with that for some years. And that until he is established in comfortable circumstances, he will not think of getting married. He has saved up money to put himself through dental college because his parents are poor, and not in a position to help him.

"As a sincere father and meaning well, I objected to having her go around with him for another five or six years, not knowing definitely where she stands, and I had an open discussion with both of them, in which I suggested that either he should not be tied up with any girl while he's studying, or else that they should make up their minds to get married, get a small apartment or flat, and she keep on working to help him out. I offered, at my own expense, to furnish and fix up a home for them, and insisted that they talk it over, and decide, one way or the other.

"Finally, after thinking it over about a month, the young man told me he definitely decided that until about six years later he will not only not think of getting married, but not even talk about an engagement. I suggested then that they break up, but the fellow convinced my girl that he's known several couples who kept company for six or seven years and then got married, and he can't see why they can't do the same.

"I think it's apt to turn out unhappily, but my girl says I'm wrong. She has no mother to talk it over with. I therefore ask you to help me and give me your honest opinion about it. Am I wrong? Shall I keep out of it and not bother about them? Or should my girl take my advice and snap out of it, and find another position so she'll be away from him and can forget, and go with someone else? I am afraid that if she puts in all this time with him, she'll just find, after the six or seven years are past, that all she has for her pains is a broken heart. What do you think?

"HENRY JENKINS."

HEART IN RIGHT PLACE

Isn't that a great letter? Wouldn't you just like to reach out and give dear, worried Dad a hug? I would! Right or wrong, his heart's in the right place!

And personally, I suspect he's right. A long engagement is a grim risk. The liveliest love is apt to slow down into boredom—or sour to actual hate unless it swings into the greater adventure of marriage. Little rankling resentments—little secret disappointments — accumulating — swelling — you know the rest of that story.

Then what's a girl or a man to do? Well, I know what I'd do! If I were in love and old enough to marry, I'd take the chance even though I had to step it in rags! And I'd never waste a moment of young reckless joy because I feared the future!

But we're not all so keen on a gamble. Then what? Must Juliet break with her Romeo because she can't marry him tomorrow? Not necessarily. There's no reason why she shouldn't continue to be friendly with him . . . . . But why give him all her time? Why not have other friends, too? Go places and see things?

Then, if his love for her, and her love for him, is the real thing, she'll know it and he'll know it, because it will have been tried and tested. And if not, then both of them will have had their chance to find some one else.

That's my slant on this question. What's yours? Perhaps you have known of . . . . . or lived . . . . . one of these long engagements. If so, let's hear about it. Did it end happily? And if not, why not?

Tell the tale, and see yourself in print!

Fay King Shows by Parallel Plain, Sincere Girl Gets Farthest

THE GIRL WHO IS THE LIFE OF THE PARTY IS TOO APT TO INTEREST THE WRONG MAN!
HER AFFECTATIONS AND ARTIFICIALITY ARE VERY FASCINATING AT FIRST SIGHT!
FAY KING
THE REAL GIRL, WHO GROWS SWEETER AND DEARER THE LONGER YOU KNOW HER!

By FAY KING

Some girls are very vivid in an artificial way. They have attractive little affecations and a forced gaiety that instantly registers favorably wherever they appear.

For the moment they are the most popular creatures in any gathering. Other girls, more quiet and serious, seem painfully plain by contrast.

It is surprising to learn later that many of these glorious girls are left stranded along the happy highway of life.

"What ever became of Sally So-and-So." You hear the question frequently.

She did not marry at all. Or she married several times and failed to find the happiness in life the plainer girls did.

Sincerity and lasting qualities are not flashy, nor do they register so instantly, but they attract the real things in life more slowly and lastingly!

Madge Tells Harry of Savarin's Last Gift to Lillian

I did not wait to see what response Henry would make to William's demand that he take back the epithet "mollycoddle" which the younger boy just had hurled at his older brother. There was that in both their strained young faces which made me step between them and put a hand upon each shoulder.

"Steady! William!" I told the elder boy, wishing to bring back to him the memory of the promise he had volunteered the night before, "to straighten out" his brothers if they made trouble for me: "this isn't the way to help me."

My fingers were tightened upon Henry's arm so that he could not move without jerking rudely away from me, so I did not look at him, but turned my gaze full upon the angry face of his older brother. All my sympathies were with William, and if it had not been for the imminent necessity of getting the boys out of the way before Dicky and Harry should reach us, I am afraid I might have permitted William to deal with his younger brother as he evidently was longing to do.

William's fists unclenched themselves and his white face crimsoned.

"I'm sorry, Aunt Madge," he said, "but that word just made me sick. It isn't the first time —" he broke off abruptly, then rushed into more rapid speech. "I'm not a sissy, nor like a girl, either. Aren't there plenty of men, regular men, who don't like to kill things or see them killed?"

"Many, many men." I told him promptly, " just as there are many kind-hearted men who like to go hunting. They do not like to see anything suffer, but they reason that they shoot so well the animals or birds are killed instantly. But remember this, both of you." I swung Henry around so that he also faced me, "kindness and tenderness are two of the best qualities any man can have. The best soldiers in war loathe the things they are compelled to do. Sometime, if you haven't already, you will read a wonderful poem which concludes—'The bravest are the tenderest, the loving are the daring.'"

Henry's eyes, unlike William's had not met mine. But at the last words he lifted them and looked at me squarely, though a bit shamefacedly.

"I know that!" he said. "We had it in school."

"Then I hope you'll always be able to remember it," I told him, added hastily, "Now, boys, I'm not going to say anything more about this. But I want your promise not to quarrel or to say anything to irritate each other, at least until I get back to the farmhouse. I want to talk to your uncle Dicky and Mr. Underwood for a minute or two, and I want you to go on ahead down to the farmhouse. Have I your promise?"

"You bet," William responded promptly, and Henry's "Sure thing!" was but an instant delayed.

"Thank you," I answered. "When you get down, give your rabbits to Jim. He'll take care of them for you until your uncle comes and you decide what you want to do with them."

They turned and scurried off just as my husband and Lillian's came within speaking distance. The faces of both men were grave, but Dicky's eyes held a mocking sardonic expression which I knew and dreaded.

"'Lo, old dear!" he said. "I see you've been the soul of discretion and banished the 'little pitchers' or the big ones, rather. Now spill us the beans. What was in the big box from that fossilized old nanny-goat, Savarin? I thought he was safely parked among the daisy roots long ago. When did they dig him up?"

The letter of Robert Savarin's in my hand might have been a living thing, so clearly did its anguished words come to me. I looked at my husband steadily.

"You will be sorry for that speech, Dicky," I said, "when I tell you that Robert Savarin is very near death, and has sent a very wonderful portrait of Marion to Lillian with his wishes for her future happiness."

For an instant both men's faces showed shocked contrition. Then Dicky's hardened.

"That's just about the thing I'd expect him to pull," he said wrathfully, "something to upset Lil just as—I don't care if he is dying. I call it a scurvy trick—"

But Harry Underwood looked at the letter in my hand with sudden comprehension.

"How about it, Lady Fair?" he said. "Have you a message for me from Lil?"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND,

Mrs. Solomon Says—

Who is this, my Daughter that emergeth from the tabernacle, pale and trembling?

Who is this that dodgeth old shoes and bouquets and persecutors, and shaketh the rice from his collar with secret mutterings?

Who is this that unwindeth his car from white satin ribbons, teareth down placards, and curseth all bachelors with the curse of pity?

Behold, it is the BRIDEGROOM!

Lo, it is HE, the Dreamer of dreams and Vower of vows, who setteth sail upon the Sea of Matrimony, and embarketh upon the Great Voyage of Discovery.

Verily, verily, many things shall he discover, which he doth not now suspect.

He shall discover that his most cherished opinions of himself were merely illusions; and that to be "understood" is not always flattering to the vanity nor comforting to the soul.

He shall discover that a woman's hats and frocks do not GROW upon her, but more often come in flowered boxes with bills attached; and that the sweetness of her "personality" costeth ten dollars an ounce.

He shall discover that home is not ALWAYS a sanctuary, but a place where a man weareth off his grouches and a woman weareth out her old clothes.

He shall discover that the price of one evening's diversion might have paid for a ton of coal, a pair of candlesticks for the library, and a month's rent.

He shall discover that the little love-spats of courtship no more resemble the storms of matrimony than an April shower resembleth a Kansas cyclone.

He shall discover that matrimony is NOT a safety-vault where he may deposit a woman, and leave her until he happeneth to remember her.

He shall discover that theory is a beautiful thing: but that the running of an automobile or a woman requireth much PRACTICE, and the sporting spirit of a gambler.

And lo, my Daughter, when he hath made these discoveries, one by one, then shall he make the Great Discovery.

Yea, then shall he discover that he is a Married Man!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Safeguarding the Mothers and Babies

A few years ago the maternal mortality rate was a good deal higher than it is today. Most of our large cities have a tremendous problem in safeguarding the lives and health of the mothers and babies.

DR COPELAND

New York City is fortunate in the work being done by public and private agencies in promoting maternal and child health. In this connection a recent health inventory made by the Welfare Council of the city reports many interesting facts. To quote from this report:

"Every four minutes, day and night, a child is born in New York City, 128,000 a year. Seventy-two hundred of these babies die before they are a year old, more than half this number within the first month of their lives, and about 40 per cent within the first week. For every 200 children born in this city a mother dies at childbirth."

The welfare agencies, public and private, provide a great great army of social workers, nutrition workers, doctors, nurses, clerks and investigators. They are engaged in this great work of caring for the lives and health of the mothers and babies. Besides these, there are the thousands of doctors and nurses in private practice who assist in conserving the health of the coming generation. The recognition of the importance of pre-natal services in maternity work has rapidly advanced since 1915.

The visiting nurse has a very important part to play in this maternity service. It is reported that 63,000 visits were made by nurses from the pre-natal clinics of the city in one year. Besides this, several of the nursing organizations reported 157,000 visits made to the homes of maternity patients who were under the care of private physicians and midwives.

What a great humanitarian work this. Great aid is rendered by private enterprises for health conservation, such as the Rockefeller Foundation and the Commonwealth Fund, with the studies made under grants from them. The undertaking bids fair to bring about far-reaching results in health betterment for the coming generation.

It is only through preventive measures for health all along the line, from pre-natal days up through adult life, that mankind can hope to be free from illness and disease. Good health is the foundation of everything else.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

express her thanks. She was off, like a crazy mechanical toy, in the direction of the supper salon.

Raquel followed at a safe distance.

Men were closing up on her again. Tall men. Short men. Fat men. Thin men. She raised her head, set it at an angle of disdain. She would scare them off with her regality.

Alphonse. At last. There, outside the main entrance to the ballroom. She was a homing pigeon who had found its nest.

"Tired, ma petite?" asked Alphonse kindly, seeing her set smile, barren of joy.

"A little," she said.

He thought there was a glisten of tears in her black eyes.

"And this—your first ball?" His laugh teased her. "I thought you would be dancing the sun up."

"Too many sweets at once, and the appetite is gone," said Raquel.

"We shall go then. Your cloak. I shall wait for you."

Not until they were bowling along in the black town car, well away from the gray stone pile on Park avenue, did Raquel tell Alphonse what had befallen her in the sun-garden.

"You should have killed him, that great jellyfish! If you have failed, I shall kill him myself." Alphonse did not raise his voice, but there was death in its quiet determination.

"No, no," Raquel objected. She had recovered her spirits. She could even smile again, her red lips parted sardonically. "There is a better way, Monsieur Alphonse. We shall go often to the sand room of the Bosarts, by request of the pink pig himself. He shall approve many costly gowns, wraps, furs, peignoirs for Madame. And the pig shall squirm!"

Alphonse studied this exquisite woman by his side as if he looked on her for the first time. Then the volatile Latin in him rose to a full appreciation of the punishment she had evolved for her tormentor.

They laughed. Gleefully, as two children in anticipation of what a tack they have placed on the chair of a bully will work by way of recompense.

"But suppose this great fish shows his teeth? Suppose he refuses to request our presence in the sand room of Madame?" Alphonse asked when he could control his laughter.

"He has no teeth," Raquel answered. "Only soft gums. He will squeal like a pig that is stuck, but he will not squeal too loudly lest his Bonnie hear him and ask for the reason."

"This is as you wish it? You do not think it would be better that I thrash this rascal within an inch of his worthless life?"

"It is as I wish it. Please, monsieur—it would be a shame—to spoil my fun."

The car drew under the porte cochere of a glass-enclosed casino in the park. They breakfasted there. While the sky ran up its rose banners signaling the birth of another day.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

In every pore of the body, except the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet, is a tiny hair. Superfluous hair on a woman's face develops from these small fuzzers. There prevails the idea that some ductless gland is responsible for the change from fuzzer to bristle.

Borax is used in the satchets of some permanent wave machines. It softens the water, and the hair shafts absorb the steam more readily. It is doubtful if the borax does the slightest harm, as the hair is shampooed after the hard-boiled curls are acquired. Following a certain number of permanents, the glorious crown should have a course of oil treatments, one a week for two months or so.

Nervous fingers should not fuss with pimples on the face. There is not only a chance of spreading infection, but a possibility of tearing the complexion to pieces. Fancy that! Deep scars which cannot be erased result from careless pinching and pressing of pustules and blackheads. When it is necessary to lance an eruption, use a sterilized needle (hold the needle point in a flame), cover the fingers with antiseptic gauze and press gently. A small abrasion made by the finger nails can result in a scar that nothing will cure.

Brunets and Blonds

Dark hair usually looks better when dressed smoothly and along classic lines, but blond hair must have more freedom if its lovely color and brightness are to show.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, August 8

A day of momentous and stirring events must be predicted from the ruling position of Uranus in trine aspect with the solar orb. This is likely to precipitate sudden and quite unforeseen activities of far-reaching and radical nature. Change, travel, new position and interests are betokened, with change of environment and unexpected and surprising opportunities. Substantial progress may be looked for, but be careful of petty annoyances and disputes. Also small losses.

Those whose birthday it is stand at the threshold of a very eventful year, with radical and far-reaching occurrences and circumstances. Change and travel are imminent, with new environment and occupation. But progress and substantial foundations are assured if there be exercised prudence with money and control of tongue and temper. Disputes and extravagances are perilous.

A child born on this day should be ingenious, skillful, adventurous, original and independent, as well as practical and industrious. It may be free with money and disposed to be quick of temper and speech. However, it should reach high place in life through its fine qualities.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

When the Marriage Is Not Formally Announced

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

You give such good advice to other readers, that I, too, should like you to help me.

1. Is it permissible to send a wedding present to a young man who was married last month and from whom I never received an announcement?

2. Would a card of congratulation be sufficient, or is it too late for that?

3. If so, to whom should I send the card, as I am not acquainted with his bride and they live in another city?

WONDERING.

In answer to all three of your questions, I doubt if I would send a present or a note of best wishes yet, if I were you. Apparently they are waiting to make an announcement of their wedding in their own way later—maybe by a reception or something of the kind—and when they do make the announcement, you can make some gesture of congratulation.

In any event, don't send a card of congratulation or best wishes, for these, under all circumstances, are banned by good taste and good form. Nor should you send a present to the young man. The present should be sent before the wedding to the bride (whether or not you know her) and after the wedding address to the couple, or to the bride. Never to the groom only.

The Engagement Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

At a luncheon I attended a few months ago the hostess announced her engagement. I have never sent her a gift, but I intend to very soon. In doing so should I apologize for the delay? Would a note written on a calling card do to send her my best wishes, or would a note on a letterpaper be better form? Also what would you suggest saying in the note?

Indeed, B. D., it is not necessary for you to apologize for not sending a gift before, since engagement presents are not, by any means, taken for granted. Usually, as a matter of fact, nowadays the only people who give engagement presents are the close relatives and the close friends; and even from them presents are not taken for granted. With the appallingly increasing demand on the budget of the average citizen, plans for wedding presents are about all we can do.

Anyway, if you send the gift, don't apologize for the delay. Enclose with the gift a short, friendly note of best wishes for her happiness. Say too, how much you enjoyed the announcement party and how much you appreciated the honor of being included among the first hearers of the good news.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

I'm still wide-eyed with wonder over letters I get from women who say they got their husbands by correspondence and lived happy ever after. I still think there is something wrong somewhere, and perhaps it's only that they are the glorious exceptions. I still stick to my first statement, that you can't get a good wife or a good husband by advertising, or flirting with strangers, or writing to someone whose name you found in a stray book. Yet today comes a letter which tells of a happy ending to a very strange courtship.

The letter comes from San Francisco, and the wife says she and her husband want to tell me about it, because they know their story is most unusual. I'll let her tell it as she told it to me:

"Dear Miss Allard—A little over four years ago I was attending school in Washington, when one of my classmates ran away and joined the Navy. We corresponded. He was sent to electrical school and while there loaned one of his books to the school wit. The book had my name and address on the cover. The aforesaid, wit wrote me a letter about a "poor lonely sailor, with no papa and no mamma, no nothing!" It went straight to my school-girlish heart. He signed the name of a very popular young man at the school. I answered the letter. What a shock I got when the man wrote back that he never even heard of me, and didn't know what it was all about. I sent him the letter. He said he had a papa, a mamma and all the other family accompaniments.

"For no good reason, we kept up the correspondence. In a year we felt like old friends. Three years ago I came to San Francisco and he was here at the same time. We met. He was just back from Panama, and was black as could be with sun tan, and I was recuperating from a broken leg.

"We saw each other three times and then he went away. Six months later we met again and decided to get married, which we did three months later. I liked and respected him but didn't love him then. We spent our honeymoon getting acquainted.

"My husband is now out of the Navy and we celebrate our second wedding anniversary soon. We have a nice home, own things in it, and he stays at home nights because we are congenial. I say truthfully that I am thoroughly in love with my husband." A. J. M.

All I can say is, don't think when you read this, that it could happen to you. It's one of those once-in-a-lifetime affairs, full of romance, but you couldn't duplicate it to save your soul.

CHOCOLATE MAY WIN, DESPITE ODDS

NOT OFTEN HAS a non-title glove fight, particularly in the lighter classes, aroused so much interest or attracted such wide attention as has the 10-round meeting of Kid Chocolate and Jack (Kid) Berg, scheduled for tonight at the Polo Grounds in New York. But it's a number that looks to be well worth all the fuss it has kicked up. For one thing, there is a prospect that it will produce more real fighting than two or three average bouts of the same length, and for another thing the winner will loom up as the rival with whom Al Singer will have to reckon for the world lightweight championship which he recently wrested from Sammy Mandell.

Kid Chocolate

Chocolate is only a featherweight in reality, and is giving away poundage in this match by taking on Berg at 133½, but if he can get away with the job of beating the Whitechapel Jewish boy he will not have a great deal to fear at the hands of Singer. In fact, the Cuban Negro has already defeated Singer by a hair-line decision and would have at least an even chance to repeat if given the championship opportunity in the 135-pound class which Battling Battalino has denied him in his own division.

PICKING THE WINNER of tonight's tangle has the fistic fraternity stumped to a greater extent than that to which it has been puzzled by any other Queensberry debate in a long time. Possibly it won't look so close at the finish, but on paper in advance the principals appear to be so evenly matched that guessing the outcome is pretty much on the order of flipping a coin.

The men represent different styles. Berg depends upon rugged strength, amazing stamina and ability to absorb punishment, and a whirlwind two-fisted attack that never lets down to smother an opponent. He fights as Harry Greb did, and is always on the go with both hands. Chocolate combines the dazzling speed and highly-developed cleverness of a master boxer, but carries a kick besides. In 168 fights he has never tasted defeat.

If THERE IS any edge at all, it seems to favor the Negro, particularly as Berg may not be at his full strength after reducing to such a low weight. True, he defeated Tony Canzoneri after making that figure, but beating Canzoneri, though the latter is close to championship quality, is not quite equal to beating a perfect ring workman like Chocolate.

Jack (Kid) Berg

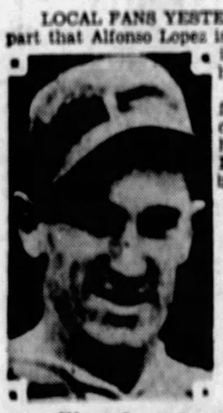
Nor will Berg's ability to make a foeman fight Jack's way by showering punches at him all the time bother the Negro. Chocolate can circle and box, step in and out, and pick his spots for sharp, accurate and forceful blows, or he can fight and slug with the best of them. In addition he is a harder hitter than Berg, and will tax the latter's remarkable store of steam and energy further than it has ever been taxed by any other antagonist. It's a battle that may go either way, but from this distance the chances seem to favor Chocolate as the probable victor, in spite of the betting odds on Berg.

THE PIRATES YESTERDAY came close to setting a record for wasting long hits and for small number of runs scored on an unusual swarm of extra-base drives. Not many times will you see a club held to four tallies in a game in which it hits safely in every inning, knocks two pitchers off the slab, and makes four doubles, three triples, a home run and five singles. That means eight extra-base wallops, and a total of 26 bases on 13 hits, generally enough to produce about three times as many runs as the Bucs succeeded in registering.*

THE EXPLANATION IS that three of the triples and one of the doubles came with two out and the bases empty, that the cushions also were vacant when the home run and one of the other doubles were made, and that in only one instance did the Rovers turn in two extra-base slams in the same inning. The eight long hits were distributed through seven different innings. If that isn't a record it ought to be.

It is equally improbable, happily, that the Pirates will repeat at an early date the alleged game that they put up in the field yesterday. The home defense was wofully off color, Dick Bartell and Paul Waner being the chief offenders. Bartell's fumble in the fourth round gave the Robins three runs, and he might have turned a later single into a double play if he had been a little faster in covering ground. Paul Waner handed the visitors another run in the fifth, after catching Lopez's short fly, by holding the ball until it was too late to head off Babe Herman scoring from third.

LOCAL FANS YESTERDAY saw more evidence of the important part that Alfonso Lopez is playing in the pennant drive of the Robins, who are now leading by three and a half games.



Alfonso Lopez

Not only is his clever catching a big factor in the improvement of the Brooklyn club this year, but he is helping along with his bat, his average up to today being .345. In his last six games he has hit .476, with 10 blows in 21 times up.

AFTER LIFTING A homer over the scoreboard with one on in the first inning yesterday, Lopez was given a pitchout in the fifth round with second and third bases occupied and the count two balls and no strikes. Instead of taking the pitchout, however, he reached wide and hit a short fly to Paul Waner on which Herman was able to score from third because of Waner's delay in throwing home. They don't go after pitch-outs often these days, and an odd coincidence yesterday was that while Lopez was pulling it here Randy Moore was doing the same thing in Boston, hitting a pitchout for a single that knocked in the winning run for the Braves in the ninth inning.*

FOLLOWING THEIR SUCCESS in winning seven of their first eight games with the Athletics, the Senators lost seven decisions in a row to the Mackmen before beating them yesterday. The clubs are now on even terms for the year, each having defeated the other eight times. Losing to the Senators yesterday spoiled the Mackmen's record of having won the majority of their games with every club in the league.

The defeat cut the pennant lead of the A's to six and a half games, but there is no immediate cause for worry on the part of the world champions. They have 45 games more to play, and if they win 23 of them, or only one victory better than an even break during the remainder of the season, the Washington club will have to play .667 ball and win 32 of its remaining 48 contests, or two out of every three on an average, to beat them out.

WILBUR COOPER refuses to quit. He believes he still has some

GIANTS BUY HURLER

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The New York Giants yesterday announced the purchase of Jim Mooney, big lefthanded pitcher, from the Charlotte, N. C., club of the South Atlantic Association. The price was not disclosed. Mooney recently struck out 23 men in a single game and is described by officials of the New York club as a youngster of great promise. He is expected to join the Giants this fall.

GIANTS' RALLY WINS

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The New York Giants scored eight runs in the last three innings to defeat Bridgeport of the Eastern League in a night baseball game here last night. The score:

LOCAL GOLFER DEFEATED IN FIRST ROUND

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 7.—(INS.)—M. W. Galido, one of the two Pittsburghers to qualify for the national public links tournament, today was eliminated in the first round of match play, the Schenley Park star bowing to Dr. W. A. Norby, of Portland, Ore., 4 and 2.

The elimination of Galido leaves Carl Lunden the only Pittsburgh contestant in the field. Lunden is meeting A. D. Fordham, of St. Paul, today.

CARL LUNDEN MIKE GALIDO

No. 1 Jacksonville golfer, survived the first round of the championship flight when he eliminated C. W. Spencer, of Sanford, Fla., 5 and 4.

Wingate concluded the first nine holes of the 18-hole match with a two-hole lead and shot par figures for the next five holes to end the match at the fourteenth green.

James Bushong, 19-year-old Portland (Ore.), High School student, defeated Gordon Kenny, Louisville, Ky., Harding Cup member, 2 up.

Michael Champi, 19-year-old Brooklyn star, moved into the second round when he easily won over Edward J. Brown, Jr., Baltimore, Md., 3 and 2.

B. H. Burrows, public links champion of Washington, D. C., downed Albert A. Cucinell, New York City, 2 and 1.

Brooklyn, whose four-man team won the Harding Cup with the brilliant score of 617, was represented by five mashie swingers in the match play to decide the successor to Carl Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, thrice champion, who was disqualified through an inadvertent error in scoring.

Portland, Ore., had three men in the match play. Louisville, which was second in team play, also placed two men in the matches. Jacksonville likewise had two men in the elect 32, as did Detroit.

To capture the qualifying medal Al Quigley, of Chicago, shot a sparkling 71 yesterday, which, coupled with his 74 of the first day, gave him 145, five strokes ahead of Bob Wingate, Jacksonville; Henry Frabrizio, Brooklyn, and Harry T. Givan, the youthful electrician from Seattle.

LOCALS MAKE GRADE

Although its star, Kauffmann, was disqualified, Pittsburgh placed two men in the qualifying list when Mike Galido and Carl Lunden passed the preliminary test. Galido completed the two test rounds with a score of 158. He had a 78 Tuesday and an 80 yesterday. Lunden finished up with 160, scoring 82 yesterday and 78 on Tuesday.

Andy Szwedka failed to gain the select group by two strokes, having rounds of 80 and 83 for a 163.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: IT IS POSSIBLE TO PLAY NINE INNINGS ON NINE PITCHED BALLS—First batter triples on first pitched ball. Pitcher takes position on mound to pitch to second batter, runner on third decides to steal home, pitcher steps from box and throws home. Batter interferes with throw. Therefore the batter is out and the runner goes back to third. The next two batters go out the same way. This is repeated for the entire nine innings, and only one ball is pitched each inning. Technically, this is possible, but, of course, highly improbable.

TOMORROW—LIVING IN THREE CENTURIES.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER

Well, folks, there's one that was hard to take. Everything we did seemed to be wrong while them Dodgers made their hits of Larry when they counted.

Larry looked like Jack Dempsey when he warmed up to pitch. He let his beard grow and was full of fight, but you can't tear into a home run and get a decision over it. Young Lopez was all cocked at the plate, and I think that pitch got away from Larry.

SUPPORT POOR

The gang didn't give my roomie much support and of course the loose play helped Uncle Robbie.

That was a fine panic his pitchers and catchers put on down in the bullpen. Robbie ain't gonna overlook any bets to cop the flag. Any time we made two hits in a row, you'd see Dazzy, Phelps, Heimach, Clark and some other snap into it.

Oh, yes, that gang is cool and nervous now, but that's the way any team would be if they was in their place.

RAZZED CUBS

We had a circus on the bench razzin' the Cubs when we was knockin' them off in Chi, but we didn't have much chance to pop off yesterday. We'll be out there today, though, with a lot of pep.

Jule says that all of us rookies who have been with the club all year will get a full share of any money we might get from the world series. It won't be hard to take fourth place money, and here's one bird that won't sink any of mine in a lot of stocks that some of our gang own.

Yours for some of that Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc. There's a lot of two dollar words, but they say they'll bring a lot of gravy.

The women have it again! A two-ball mixed foursome golf tournament is being staged at the Alcoma Country Club this afternoon under the auspices of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania, with Mrs. George Stengel chairman of the committee in charge.

Following the golf, a dinner-dance will be held. It is anticipated more than 200 will attend.

Yesterday the Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, held a one-day affair at the New Castle Field Club, with the New Castle chapter as host.

Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen, former National open champions, are playing Horton Smith, national sensation, and Jack Cawsey, the local pro, in an exhibtion match at the Chautauqua Golf Club today.

TRAINER VICTOR

G. M. Trainer, of New Castle, came through to cop the tournament for the Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, held under the auspices of the New Castle chapter, at the New Castle Field Club yesterday, when he returned a low gross score of 78.

Dr. C. G. Hughes, of Pittsburgh, won the low net honors with a net 70, while other prize winners

While a lot of wind was taken out of their sails yesterday by the rampaging Robins, the Pirates today were not ready to give any ground to the Brooklyn flag-hunters. A single contest this afternoon will wind up the short series, but Forbes Field will see a lot of the Robins before they fly back to the home coop.

Uncle Robbie and his hustlers are striving hard to experience a big Western invasion. They are on a long road tour which opened auspiciously for them yesterday when they took the Buccos, 7 to 4, in a rather remarkable game.

ROBINS OUTHIT

The Buccos outhit the enemy on total safeties and they banged out eight extra-base wallops, including a homer by Adam Comorosky, yet they were beaten nearly all the way. It was one of those days when the home players couldn't lay away a thing and some of them performed in a manner that indicated they were "down" physically.

The strain of trimming three pennant-seeking ball teams seven times in eight engagements may have been a bit severe on the Oaklanders. No matter what the reason, the team to more than five thousand spectators, did not appear to be the same club that recently toppled the Cardinals three in a row.

Remy Kremer will attempt to subdue the Birds this afternoon. He is likely to be opposed by Jumbo Jim Elliott or Ray Phelps.

Larry French started off like a champion yesterday, but Senor Alfonso Lopez nicked him for a two-run homer in the second round and the Visalia villain lost a lot of his cunning. Larry held the foemen to nine hits in his seven rounds of battle, but he seemed to drop some of his naturalness after the boundary belt had sailed across the scoreboard and into Schenley Park.

LOPEZ YOUNG STAR

Lopez is one of the big reasons why the Robins are three and one-half games ahead of the Cubs in the quest for the flag, and the Spanish kid does not confine his

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Brooklyn started its last western trip yesterday. The Robins will either come back stuffed by those Western taxidermists or with the sprig of laurel in their beak. Those Cubs are pretty tough to beat when they are getting a long stretch of home cooking, but I will say this for that Brooklyn outfit, if our club had as much nerve as the Robins, we would all be eagles. I have been awaiting all season for Robbie's boys to crack like a pair of patent leather shoes. But I guess they've been going barefooted. If they can pull through August the world will be their oyster by September.

BERG, CHOCOLATE ON EDGE FOR GO TONIGHT

ENGLISH BOXER CHOICE OVER CUBAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—On approximately the second anniversary of his first appearance in the United States, Kid Chocolate, the ebony flash of the featherweights, meets his second major rival, Jackie (Kid) Berg, in a 10-round duel in the open air tonight at the Polo Grounds.

Some of the heat of the present sizzling spell has seeped into the interest of the faithful in the final days of the ballyhoo and it appears that a goodly crowd will be there. All hope has been abandoned that the foul-fake-foozle-soaked fandom will rally in the numbers originally estimated to swell the gate beyond the quarter million mark. But a nice sociable gathering of about 18,000 with receipts bulging over the $100,000 mark are in prospect.

FIGHTERS CAPABLE

The fighting abilities and reputations of the sensational little Negro lad and the whirlwind Jewish boy from the Whitechapel district of London, have done much to encourage the faithful to gamble their dollars once more on the chance of seeing a real battle. Another fiasco such as the foul endings of the recent heavyweight brushes and the abrupt cessation of hostilities in the lightweight title tilt of Sammy Mandell and Al Singer before a round was completed, probably will end all hope of "uxom gates for the remainder of the outdoor season.

Chocolate is the superb boxer. Berg is a rough-and-tumble fighter, a perpetual-motion punching machine, who overcomes boxing ability with the sheer impetuosity of his attack. Considered the outstanding lightweight contender, Berg rules an 8-to-5 favorite.

Chocolate, whose career since he arrived here unheralded from Cuba over two years ago, is fiction material, must give Berg a weight advantage of close to 10 pounds. This is expected to add materially to the Bomb Bomb Keed's difficulties in keeping Berg at a distance where Chocolate must hold the whirlwind in order to hope for victory. The Keed is a genuine featherweight and probably will scale no more than 127 to Berg's 134½.

Although the managers of Berg and Chocolate differ as to the fact, actually the junior welterweight title, won by Berg from Mushy Callahan in London, will be at stake, as both will weigh many pounds under the class limit of 140 pounds. The bout is not scheduled as a title affair, although ring conditions make it possible for Chocolate to win the title.

NO OFFICIAL CHAMP

This situation is further complicated by the fact that the ring monarchs of New York State do not recognize the existence of a junior welterweight title.

The supporting card promises action. Baby Joe Gans, Negro welterweight from Los Angeles, will meet Eddie Murdock, of Tulsa, Okla., in the 10-round semi-final, and Sammy Dorfman, New York lightweight, will tackle the heavy-hitting Eddie Mack, of Denver, in another 10. The bouts will not be broadcast.

KREMER SET FOR ROBINS

value to his smart aggressive receiving; he is one of the big shots in the Brooklyn batting order.

The Pirates came through with four misplays, a boot by Dick Bartell in the fourth round opening the way for a big Brooklyn inning. Three runs followed and the Flatbush crew recorded two more in the fifth to give them a safe total, although the Pirates fought back with much ardor.

Comorosky's round-tripper in the fourth was the first Pirate tally. A spunk drive in the sixth gave the Pirates two more runs and Uncle Robbie trembled. His bullpen was filled with relief hurlers.

Hollis Thurston fooled the Bucs until they became accustomed to his teasers. Commy started the pitcher on his way to the showers, but he stuck around until the seventh when Ray Moss was rushed to his assistance. Moss was in a jam in the ninth when Southpaw Fred Heimach, a newcomer, was rushed to the scene to work on some of our best lefthander hitters. The veteran did a fine relief trick, fanning George Grantham in the pinch.

GABBY STREET RENAMED

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, today announced the reappointment of Charles (Gabby) Street as manager of the team for the 1931 season.

The announcement set at rest rumors starting afloat that the Cardinals would have another new pilot next year. The team has changed managers at least once each year since 1925.

This season is Street's first as a major league manager and Breadon has been pleased with his services, although the Cardinals now are in fourth place. Street formerly was a catcher for the Washington Senators, having been Walter Johnson's battery mate during the latter's heyday as a hurler. In recent years, Gabby had been managing minor league clubs.

Rickey, manager for several years, was relieved in June, 1925, by Rogers Hornsby. Hornsby led the Cardinals to a pennant and a world series victory in 1926, after which he was traded to the Giants. Next Bob O'Farrell was made manager. Bill McKechnie relieved him after one year and McKechnie was sent to Rochester when the Cards failed to win a game of the 1928 world series. Billy Southworth was the next manager, but he was relieved in the midseason of 1929 by McKechnie, who was recalled from Rochester. McKechnie did not apply for the managerial role for 1930 and Street, who had been coach in the 1929 season, took over the reins.

Track Mark Falls At New Castle Races

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—The New Castle track opened the harness racing season in Western Pennsylvania with four races.

The favorites failed to win except in the 2:14 trot, which was taken by David Frisco, who marched off in front the first and second heats, but had to fight in the third which went to Palmer Harvester.

Guy Lon, a trim trotter from the Bennett stables, Indiana, accounted for the first event, winning the third heat of an elimination event that was interesting.

Palmer Harvester broke the track record in the final heat of the 2:14 trot when he stepped the oval in 2:08¼, lowering the record of 2:10¼.

The usual big list of scheduled games will be staged this evening on the local sandlots, all of the loops flashing interesting games.

Two battles are listed in the Central League. The St. John's nine will clash with Lincoln Civics at Hartman Park. The Saints are out to try and even up for that Sunday defeat.

Then in the Commercial and Industrial loop, the Rieck-McJunkin nine makes the trip to Camp Horne to meet A. H. Burchfield's outfit. The Milk Boys are rather popular at the camp and a good game should be on tap. The other game in the league finds B. & O. clashing with Mine Safety at Homewood Playgrounds.

In the Minor League, Jednota faces the Sankey club.

HALE, CRIMSONS CLASH

A big battle will be on tap in the eastern section of the Steel City loop when the East Liberty Crimsons meet the Hale Club at the Turtle Creek Stadium. The Crimsons are heading for the second half championship and the Creek boys are eager to stop them.

In the City League, Book Shoe clashes with the North Side Civics at the Salt Works grounds; Dormont goes to Stowe to meet Pop Geer's club and Homewood meets the J. L. Thomas club at Dean Field. Seeing that the Bloomfielders have been stopping all of the leaders, there is a chance that the East Enders will have a battle on their hands.

One of the feature games of the evening will see the debut of the Twentieth Ward Club in opposition to the Homestead Grays in the first sandlot game ever staged at the Langley High School field. The contest will get under way at 6:30.

Reliance Life battles North Bessemer at Wilson Park, while in the North Side Twilight League, Ingomar plays the North Siders and the Troy Hill Millers meet Fineview. St. George visits Jena and Union Printers oppose St. Adelberts in other games.

Fintext takes on Wilmerding at Warrington Park in the elimination series.

Waco Star Hits Three Homers In Inning

WACO, Tex., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Long-distance sluggers today had a new all-time record of three home runs in one inning and a modern record of 18 runs in one inning to shoot at.

Gene Rye, putfielder of the Waco Club of the Texas League, last night hit three times for the circuit in the eighth inning against Beaumont pitchers—the same inning that saw his team run up 18 runs as a part of a 20-to-7 victory.

Local Golfer Wins In Bedford Event

BEDFORD, Pa., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—L. M. Goss, Bedford, and F. B. Thomas, Altoona, who tied Tuesday for medalist honors in the invitation golf tournament for amateurs, came safely through their matches yesterday.

Goss defeated H. E. Spilman, Spencer, W. Va., six and five. Thomas had as easy a time, disposing of J. E. Gears, Cumberland, Md., seven and six. Goss won a second round match six and four from H. Hershberger, Bedford, and Thomas squeezed through to victory over M. Tenney, Cumberland, Md., one up.

H. F. Miller, Jr., Pittsburgh, defeated D. C. Line, Bedford, five and three in the first round and E. C. McLeod, Washington, Pa., six and five in the second round.

Mastro, LaBarba Box In Chicago Tonight

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The championship trails of a pair of the best featherweights in the ring industry, Earl Mastro, of Chicago, and Fidel La Barba, of Los Angeles, cross for the third time tonight in the Chicago Stadium.

DETROIT BUYS STOGIE STAR

WHEELING, Aug. 7.—President Charles Holloway of the Wheeling Stogies, announced last night that Frank Doljack, Wheeling outfielder, and leading hitter of the Middle Atlantic League, had been sold to the Detroit Tigers. He will report at the end of the Middle Atlantic League season.

Doljack, whose heavy hitting has made him one of the greatest individual stars ever to be seen in the livery of the stogies, has been smacking the ball all season around the .395 mark.

DIAMONDS TIE WITH JAYS

Fairmont and Jeannette staged a thrilling 13-inning battle in the Mid-Atlantic League yesterday, darkness interfering before either could gain the verdict. The score was 8-all when play was halted.

At Johnstown, the Johnnies defeated Wheeling, 10 to 5, in a night contest, and Clarksburg defeated the Colts in a 12-inning night game, 3 to 1.

Charleroi and Scottdale split a double bill, the Scots winning, 6 to 5, after losing, 11 to 6.

Long's Sport Comment

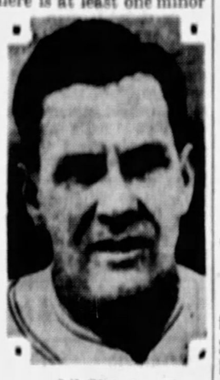
cunning left in his port wing, and evidently there is at least one minor league club that shares the opinion, as he is being given another chance.

The pitching career of the former Pirate southpaw was thought to have ended recently when he was released unconditionally by the Shreveport club, of the Texas League, but he has been signed by San Antonio in the same circuit for the remainder of the season and the management is hopeful that Wilbur will help lift the club out of last place.



Lil Stoner

COOPER IS NOT the only ex-Pittsburgh pitcher figuring in the Texas League news these days. Lil Stoner, whom the Pirates shipped to Fort Worth after his failure in an attempt to make a major league comeback this year, is the hurling sensation of the Lone Star loop. His latest feat was to hang up a new Texas League strike-out record by fanning 18 men in a game in which he held San Antonio to two hits. At two stages he struck out five batters in succession, and the only hits made off his delivery were turned in by Infielder Flippen. Earlier in the season, Stoner pitched a no-hit game. He is Fort Worth's mainstay in the fight with Wichita Falls and Waco for first place in the second half of the split season.

CARDINALS AID ROBIN CAUSE

MACKS' LEAD SHAVED BY SENATORS

Associated Press.

Rolling into the West where the National League pennant is waiting to be won, the Brooklyn Robins today have a most auspicious beginning of a crucial road trip to spur them on.

Straining to establish a lead that can stand the strain of slumps and battle with chief contenders yet to come, the Robins scored a 7-to-4 conquest over Pittsburgh in the opening of the Pirate series yesterday, while the St. Louis Cardinals rose to swat the Chicago Cubs and add to the lead of the Robins, now 3½ games in front of the league champions of 1929.

PINCH HOMER WINS

An extra-base hit, George Watkins' pinch hit home run in the seventh with one on, gave the Cards a 4-to-3 decision over the Cubs, but four doubles, three triples and a home run by Comorosky couldn't save the Pirates from defeat.

The Washington Senators cut the lead of the Athletics to 6½ games in the American League by downing Connie Mack's champions, 5 to 1. Sad Sam Jones held the A's to six hits while the Senators clubbed George Earnshaw in the pinches.

The third place Yankees made hay in the sunshine, opening a lengthy home stay with a close 4-to-2 win over the Boston Red Sox.

UHLE BEATS TRIBE

George Uhle toyed with the Cleveland Indians as Detroit belted Willis Hudlin, Jablonowski and Bean into a 9 to 1 defeat, making it six in a row for the Tigers. Uhle hit three singles and a double, as many hits as he allowed the whole Cleveland outfit.

The mightiest hurling of the day was turned in by Coffman of the St. Louis Browns in the opening game of a doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox. Coffman shut out the Sox 5 to 0 and allowed three hits but ancient Red Faber got just as far with less effort in the second game, pitching Chicago to a 5 to 2 triumph and an even break on the day.

The Boston Braves wound up a seven game series with the Phillies with a three run spurt in the ninth for a 5 to 4 victory. The Braves won five of the seven games. Randy Moore crossed the Phillies by slicing a pitchout into left field to drive home the winning counter.

The New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds were not scheduled.

UNIONTOWN KEEPS TITLE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Uniontown, 1929 champion of the American Legion Junior baseball tourney, retained the state title yesterday by defeating Reading, 11 to 7. The Western Pennsylvania boys were handicapped at the start when their shortstop, George Farr, was taken to the hospital with a high fever. His substitute, Howell, hit a homer in the first inning, but Reading ran up a 7-to-3 lead on timely hits off Uniontown's Negro pitcher, Talley, and infield errors.

Uniontown rallied in the eighth for seven runs on nine hits to win.

Saltrick, Coletti and Panzurick singled before the second out was made in the big eighth. Hreno singled, Howell doubled and Simon singled to tie the score and Delasandro returned to the mound, only to be greeted by Burns with a three-bagger to the distant right field fence. Saltrick and Coletti grabbed their second safeties in the inning to give Uniontown a three-run lead. The score:

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 7.—Harry Wilson, lieutenant in the air service is spending two weeks vacation here. He leaves August 18 to enter a coaching school in Chicago and will report on September 1 at West Point where he will be assistant backfield coach in football this fall. Lieut. CALLAHAN WINS

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Andy Callahan, of this city, smothered Johnny Farr, of Cleveland, in a deluge of lather to take the decision in a 10-round fight here last night. Farr was booked by fans who felt he had not extended himself. Callahan suffered a cut over his eye.

Steinke Walks Out After Razzing By Fan

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7.—(INS.)—Hans Steinke, wrestler, quit the ring in the middle of his bout here last night with George Calza because a fan called him a vile name and a "yellow German." Joseph Kelly, secretary of the Maryland Boxing Commission, announced today Steinke was fined $25 for his walkout.

The match was even when the remark was made and Steinke left the ring. He went to the man he suspected of uttering the slur and told him he was not a sport. Then he dressed hurriedly, returned to the ring and told the spectators he thought it best to quit before "losing his head." They gave him a rousing cheer.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7. — Dick Shikat, who recently lost the alleged world heavyweight wrestling championship to Dick Londos here, has been signed to meet Kola Kwariani, the Russian, at the Arena here Friday night of next week.

Sport Vignettes

Above you see further proof of the fact that a love for baseball is born in the hearts of all normal young Americans . . . . The picture shows Pie Traynor, sterling captain and third baseman of the Pirates, being followed by a group of young hero-worshipers during the Corsairs' visit to Charleroi the other day for an exhibition game . . . . It is another argument for "kid days" at the baseball parks or lower admission prices for the youngsters, who either will be the paying fans of the future, or, denied the opportunity to nurture their inherent love for the game now, will drift away to other sports and leave the baseball magnates to wonder in later years what has become of the old-fashioned boys who used to take to their game as a duck takes to water.

It appears our Carl Kauffmann entered the public links tournament with a title and an ambition to retain it and came out holding a bag marked "sympathy." . . . . A tough break for Carl, we calls it. . . . . Bowling alley proprietors are beginning to worry about the miniature golf course craze, and not without reason, for there will be a flock of the little layouts indoors during the coming fall and winter, and many of the former duckpin and tenpin enthusiasts will be devoting their spare moments to putting and pitching the little white pellet over and through obstacles instead of trying for strikes and spares on the maple runways . . . . Is there no limit to the changes this new fad will work in our daily routine? . . . . The visit of the Pirates to Ellwood City and Charleroi for exhibition games this week did much to stimulate baseball interest in these towns and environs and more of the same sort of missionary work close to home might not be a bad idea.

Two rattling good ringmen meet in the Jack (Kid) Berg-Kid Chocolate fight at the Polo Grounds, New York, tonight, and there is more interest in the scrap than in many of the recent championship affairs . . . . Berg, the cyclonic fighter, has many backers who think he will be able to halt the winning career of Chocolate, especially in view of the fact that he will have a weight edge of approximately 10 pounds . . . . But you have to string along with Chocolate if you have any money riding on the fight for the reason that Chocolate NEVER has been defeated in more than 150 amateur and professional encounters, and it isn't good business to bet against such a consistent winner . . . . Certainly, he has to lose some time, but he's a good bet even if he does lose to Berg . . . . Until he is beaten, it remains to be seen if the trick can be accomplished, and he's still a youth and not a washed-up veteran.

Don Saunders, former publicity director at Pitt, now is in business at Sterling, Ill., carrying on in the place of his father, who died some months ago . . . . Don wants to be remembered to the friends he left behind in Pittsburgh . . . . They say that one of old John L. Sullivan's pet superstitions was that the man who entered the ring first for a bout generally was the last to leave and often had to be helped out, and he usually contrived to have his opponents precede him into the fighting square . . . . Jim Corbett, a student of human nature and the fine art of goat-getting, saw to it that John L., entered the ring first the night they met and this little trick, along with his other badgering tactics, helped considerably to upset the ill-conditioned Noblest Roman of Them All . . . . Denny Southern, the new Pirate, obtained from the Phillies in exchange for Fred Brickell, was one of the best players ever to don spangles in the Mid-Atlantic League and was sold to the Quakers at the end of the 1926 season by the Cumberland Colts for $1,500.

Over in New York, they are saying that the Velodrome, which burned down there the other day, well might have been called the Hippodrome, for in it were staged some of the classic fistic "barneys" of recent years . . . . It was in the old 'Drome, a ramshackle building, that Benny Leonard hit Jack Britton while the latter was down and lost on a "foul," Eddie Shea was intimidated by gunmen into doing a flop to Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, the bantamweight champion, and Johnny Dundee and Jack Bernstein staged a funny-looking quarrel . . . . The Velodrome originally was built for bicycle racing and some big pedaling events were staged there.

Jim Corbett rates Jimmy McLarnin and Kid Chocolate the two most pleasing performers in the ring today . . . . He says Chocolate is not far behind George Dixon, the Negro star of another era . . . . Harry Seymour, once the major domo of local tennisdom, although no longer active in the councils of the game, still keeps an ear to the ground in the sport and maintains his friendships with all of the bigwigs of the "racket" from Bill Tilden on down the line among the players and with the leading moguls that we read about.—HARRY KECK.

PUNCHERS TILT AT MILLVALE TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two good punchers meet in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight. They are Mike Dundee, veteran, of Rock Island, Ill., and Jackie Rodgers, Negro star, of the North Side.

Mike Dundee

Dundee has the edge in experience against seasoned opponents and numbers the redoubtable Johnny Datto among his knockout victims. Rodgers has yet to box Datto, although he has been matched with him twice.

A knockout is possible either way tonight, for each man packs the punch to turn the trick. Each also is a sufficiently good boxer to win on points if he finds the other fellow can take his best wallops and keep coming.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, and Alex Simms, of Akron, O., box the eight-round semi-final. Georgie Peck and Georgie Bretsch, North Side rivals, are in the second bout and Terry Waner and Sammy Paris meet in the opener at 8:45 daylight saving time.

Between Rounds

Charley Johnston, of New York, brother of the famous Jimmy, will come here with Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion, for the latter's 10-round bout with Buck McTiernan at the Motors Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night. They are due Sunday. The Bowl card is complete. Billy Brent and Young Savior are in the semi-final. Frankie Gallagher and Lt. S. Carpentier in the second bout and Jimmy Perry and Angelo Vergiano in the opener.

Ray Collins and Art Forest box at Johnstown tonight. Johnny Chinde and Freas Johnson are in the semi-final and Jimmy Thomas meets Patsy Severo and Walter Straight opposes Frankie Moran in the preliminaries.

Baby Joe Gans hoses Eddie Murdock and Eddie Mack meets Sammy Dorfman in the two 10-round preliminaries to the Kid Chocolate-Jack (Kid) Berg fight at the Polo Grounds, New York tonight.

Fidel LaBarba and Earl Mastro strut their stuff in the Chicago Stadium tonight. Vet Littgren and Dan Gaspero are in the eight-round semi-final.

Harry Smith, claimant of the Negro middleweight championship of the world, as a result of having won an elimination with Jack McVey, hoses Joe Tinsley in defense of the title over the 10-round route at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., next Wednesday night.

Matt Adgie, Philadelphia's former fighting lumber heavyweight, will try a comeback against Big Jim Herman, of Hoskins, Pa., in the 10-round semi-final to the Jack Gagnon-Frankie Cawley bout in Philadelphia, August 18. Billy Wallace and Joey Hadfield box in Philadelphia tomorrow night.

Walter Hagen Fails In P. G. A. Test Play

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The professional golfers' championship at the Fresh Meadow Club, Flushing, in early September will not be the same old golf battle it has been in the dozen years of its existence. No longer will it be Walter Hagen against the field. Hagen, five times champion of the pros failed to qualify yesterday in the metropolitan district test at 36 holes over the course of the Cherry Valley Club.

The old master took 149 strokes to work his way around the sporty lay out while Horton Smith, his protege led the field with 138. Hagen missed a chance to qualify by four strokes for 146 was the highest.

MANAGER SUSPENDED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—The State Athletic Commission yesterday announced the indefinite suspension of Frankie Driscoll, promoter of Allentown, and Enzo Fiermonte, boxer of New York City. No reasons were given.

CAVE MAN STUFF

The story came to me the other day regarding Rough Bill, the captain-elect at old Hooey for next fall. Bill will be remembered as one of the toughest guards that ever played our gentle fall pastime. Bill is working his way through old Hooey and this summer is waiting on tables at Bar Harbor.

Knute Rockne.

Bill is one of the most popular lads on the Hooey campus and it seems this popularity is rather irksome to some of the Pansys who lead old Hooey's social whirl.

It also seems that one of these Pansys, the leader of the Prom, visited Bar Harbor recently. Seeing Rough Bill in a waiter's rig, he saw his opportunity and walking up he slapped Bill right in the face. Bill, who needed the money which the waiter's job brought, just stood and took it, except for a look of resentment. Seeing this look, our Prom Leader walked up and again gave Bill another smack. One of the group standing by said:

"Oh, Clarence, why do you treat that man so mean?"

"I can't help it," replied Clarence, "It's just the Tomboy in me."

EDITH CROSS UPSET VICTIM

EASTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—The California delegation, competing in the Maidstone Club women's invitation tennis tournament yesterday gave evidence of its power, when four of the West Coast stars qualified for the quarter-final round.

In the most surprising upset of the day's play, Miss Edith Cross, third ranking player from San Francisco, was eliminated by Miss Dorothy Weisel, also of California, but from Sacramento. The score was 6-1, 6-1. Advancing with Miss Weisel were Miss Marjorie Gladman, of Santa Monica; Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, of Oakland, and Miss Ethel Burkhardt, of San Francisco.

New Fixed Trust Shows Wide Diversification

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

A HIGH DEGREE OF diversification is shown by the newly formed investment trust, American Composite Trust Shares. The organization has been created to meet the large demand for participation in the ownership of a wider variety of strong common stocks than can be purchased by the average investor of moderate means.

The trust has been formed on the cumulative unit principle. Each share represents one-four thousandth interest in a unit, consisting of specified amounts 40 railroad, public utility, oil and industrial stocks. Seven of the issues are rating "Aa" by Moody. Seven are rated "Baa" and the remaining stocks have "A" ratings, giving the composite investment an "A" rating.

Geographical Diversification

THE STOCKS HAVE been selected to give geographical as well a wide range of industrial diversification. Another factor has been taken into consideration which was ignored by some of the previous fixed trusts of this type. An attempt has been made to keep the number of dollars invested in each stock to as near a percentage of the total fund as possible. To do this it has been necessary to vary the number of shares of each stock purchased.

The lowest number of individual shares of a particular stock placed in a unit is four, the highest is 24. This keeps the amount invested in any one stock close to 2½ per cent of the total.

The list of stocks includes nine railroads, 10 public utilities, four oils and 17 industrials.

No Substitutions Permitted

NO SUBSTITUTIONS may be made for any of the deposited stocks constituting a unit except in the event of a recapitalization, merger or reorganization. Stocks representing additional units will be assembled by the American Composite Shares Corporation and deposited with the Chase National Bank as trustee as the individual shares are sold.

The price of the shares is based on the market value of the deposited stocks plus a moderate fee to cover the operating costs, sales expense and the underwriting profit.

The owners of 1,000 shares may exchange their holdings for the underlying stocks at any time. The owners of smaller blocks of shares may exchange for cash equal to the proportionate market value of the deposited stocks.

Stock Dividends Retained

ALL COMMON STOCKS received by the trustee as stock dividends or split-ups will be retained and added to the unit to the extent that the number of new shares added to each unit can be divided by four. Any smaller numbers of shares received in this manner are to be sold and the proceeds added to income from dividends and the sale of rights.

All cash received must be distributed in dividends on June 30 and December 31 of each year. The American Composite Shares Corporation, which acts as the depositor, has agreed to pay all charges of the trustee for holding the stocks and carrying out other work necessary for the operation of the units. In return for this the depositor is entitled to have paid to it the interest allowed by the trustee on money held awaiting the semi-annual dividend payments. Since there is no cash reserve fund this interest will be comparatively small for each unit.

Had American Composite Trust Shares been formed on December 31, 1928, the dividends on each share would have amounted to slightly over $1 a share during 1929. At current market prices the trust shares have a value of about $10 a share.

MARKET SAGS IN DEMAND ABSENCE

Industrials, Utilities Lose In Increased Selling; Cotton Leaps Upward

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The stock market was left to the bears today, while bulls made merry in the commodity marts.

There was some liquidation of stocks by investors, who feared the crop crisis may have postponed business recovery, but the major portion of selling orders originated with floor traders. Professionals were more aggressive on the short side than of late, however, and a long list of important stocks sold off from 1 to 7 points or more, as the volume of trading increased substantially.

The day's quota of corporate and industrial news was not of a character to hamper the bears. Passing of the Goodrich dividend, payment of the National Family Stores disbursement in stock instead of cash and expectations of a reduction of the Warner Bros. cash payment late in the day, were not helpful to the cause of higher prices.

BRIGHT SPOT APPEARS

A bright spot in the gloom was an expression of opinion by President Shumaker, of the R. C. A.-Victor Company, that the working people of the country have substantial savings and only need reassurance as to employment to start spending normally again. "We are going to run our plant to capacity until it is proven that we are wrong," he said.

In the Federal Reserve Board's August bulletin, the financial community found some comforting reading. Member banks were said to be indebted to the Reserve system to only about one-twelfth their aggregate reserve balances, and to be entering the period when the demand for currency increased about $150,000,000 in an exceptionally easy position. Wall street bankers understand the New York Reserve Bank is prepared to purchase government securities to such extent as will offset recent and further losses of gold.

Call money renewed again at 2½ per cent, but the undertone was easier, giving rise to the expectation that the turn of the month firmness was passing.

COTTON LEAPS UPWARD

Cotton joined the upswing in commodities, while the advance in grains was slowed up by reports of local showers in the midwest. Estimates from Washington that crop damage may amount to $1,000,000,000 could not be interpreted by Wall street as hastening business recovery. It was recalled, however, that the severe stock market panic of 1901 was followed by crop failure, but that stocks recovered swiftly within a few months. The present situation, however, is in many respects dissimilar. If the depression in commodity prices has been definitely ended, nevertheless, bankers believe the longer term implications are decidedly favorable.

Such stocks as United States Steel, Radio, General Electric and General Motors were well supported. The market was inclined to rally at times, for a period during the middle of the morning, and again in the early afternoon. As a group, the utilities were hardest hit, but the decline was broad.

Eastman and Allied Chemical dropped about 7 points each, while Case and American Water Works lost 4 or more. Issues losing about 2 to 3 included North American, American Power and Light, Air Reduction, American Tobacco B, Atchison, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Corn Products, International Harvester, Warner Brothers, Allis Chalmers, Erie, Rock Island, Byers and Republic Steel.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—New jumps of as much as 4 cents a bushel in wheat and more than 2 cents in corn were witnessed early today. Rapid fluctuations occurred, however, trade being on a big scale and price changes swinging quickly, within limits of approximately 2½ cents. Buying rushes predominated, and wheat as well as oats outdid season high-price records. Drought damage to corn, roughly estimated in some quarters as totaling upwards of a billion dollars, formed the chief stimulus to buyers of all grain, but black rust crop injury in Canada gave additional incentive to buyers of wheat. Opening ½ to 3½c up, wheat later held substantial gains. Corn started ½ to 2¼c higher, but subsequently in some cases receded to almost the same as yesterday's finish.

Magnitude of the volume of purchasing appeared to be exercising far more influence on the markets much of the time today than actual fresh developments regarding crops. Special attention, nevertheless, was given advices from Canada that 3,000,000 acres of wheat nearest to Moosejaw and Regina will hardly yield enough for seed, as a consequence of premature ripening and of black rust. Another factor receiving particular notice was a statement from a leading Chicago commission house that after such a period of drought and heat as the corn crop has gone through only a limited amount of repair of the damage suffered can be expected, even though weather conditions become more satisfactory.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Marten & Co.:

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Curb prices took a downward trend today, trading was somewhat more active than in the recent stagnant sessions when price movements have been so indefinite, but the volume of offerings was rather moderate and was well absorbed.

Selling by traders who had grown tired of waiting for an advance and renewed activity by the bears, especially in the utility group, sent the list lower from the opening. There were intermittent rallies which went some distance toward recovery of the declines, but the tone remained heavy.

Specialties were fairly steady. Call money renewed on the Curb at 3 per cent.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

DROUGHT SEEN AS BOON TO FARMERS

Curtailing of Crops May Bring Needed Equilibrium By Overproduction Cut

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The question has been raised whether the drought in the agricultural district constitutes farm relief or a disaster to national well being.

Paradoxically enough, a calamity such as a drought, which might if uninterrupted to ruin, radically curtail crops, could considerably help to restore the disturbed equilibrium between supply and demand, and thus contribute to better prices for farm products. But such relief is blind and unreliable. It might diffuse its benefits unequally, working great hardships on farmers in some regions while promoting the prosperity of agrarians in others. For example, total destruction of the crop in region B will reduce the national supply of corn, and tend to bring about higher prices. Accordingly, farmers in region C, which has been unaffected by the drought, will benefit from higher prices. For them, the visitation from nature will be a blessing, but the farmers in region B will suffer dreadfully from lack of income.

Mr. Rukeyser

PERILS OF DROUGHT

Accordingly, farm relief through a drought or other act of nature is highly dangerous, for being subject to blind forces it may, of course, go too far and not only destroy the unwanted surplus, but might even impair essential supplies. In the latter case, hard times change from psychological man-made troubles growing out of the price and money economy into real suffering result from shortages.

Striking improvement in recent decades in agricultural and industrial production have changed the economics of the world. Formerly business troubles tended to grow largely out of the niggardliness of nature. Now they sometimes spring from the excessive bountifulness of nature. In recent months we have been suffering from the perils of plenty. These troubles originate not from uncontrollable, supernatural forces, but from the imperfections of man-made economic arrangements. In Biblical times, the business cycle consisted first of seven years of plenty and then seven years of famine. Nowadays depression comes from overproduction, or rather a lack of balance between production and consumption, rather than from an insufficiency of products.

LEGGE'S SUGGESTION

Alex Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, has wisely suggested that if drought unduly curtails the corn supply that wheat, which is cheap and in excess supply, be substituted for corn and used as stock feed. He insists that at prevailing prices it has better feed value than corn.

These anomalies, which create depression in the face of plenty, result from the fact that the object of private business is to make money, or profits, rather than to create goods. In a socialized state, the emphasis might conceivably be placed on the production of goods, but even so, a directing authority would have to decide the relative amounts of various products which should be made.

If a drought is a possible agency for farm relief, why not deliberately start self-inflicted droughts by setting fire to excess farm products? There are two answers to this hypothetical question. In the first place, the individual farmer is not interested in curtailing the general supply and boosting prices in general. He wants to realize as much cash as he can on his own crops as an individualist. Secondly, from the social standpoint, it is economically destructive to produce commodities merely to employ labor, and then to throw away the product. Given time, managers could find useful, constructive ways to employ labor. The business problem is to seek perpetually to attune supply to demand, and, as efficiency releases workers from old trades, to find new outlets in novel activities. Moreover, greater efficiency brings the promise of shorter working days and working weeks.

SPECIAL AID NEEDED

In the present emergency, it may be necessary to extend special aid to hard-hit districts, even though farmers in general outside of the stricken areas may be helped. A drought here may penalize American farms and help agrarians in Argentina, Canada, Australia and Europe, through boosting world prices in cereals. The administrative approach to this problem, therefore, cannot be placed on generalized theory, but on an actual fact find survey of conditions in specific local areas. The differing effects of drought on various farmers explains why some authorities have called the lack of rain a boon, whereas others have denounced it as a national calamity.

Furthermore, even if it should raise prices for farmers, such a result would hardly be favorable from the standpoint of consumers.

Grasp of Banks on Bond Field May Result in Separate Exchange

The growth in power of the commercial banks in the bond field is certain to lead to the demand for a separate exchange for bonds, according to the opinion of one bond dealer. This idea often has been discussed in the past, but the subject always has been dropped without anything definite being accomplished. It was pointed out that the large banks underwriting and distributing bonds would like to become members of the exchange on which the issues they sponsor are dealt in. This, of course, is impossible under the present exchange rules. Some Wall Street observers even go so far as to say that some day the banks will gobble up the brokerage business as they appear to have the investment bond business. There was considerable discontent among brokers during the big markets over the way some of the largest traders placed their orders through banks instead of directly through brokers. The banks, of course, had to buy and sell their securities through regular brokers and pay commissions, but they had the advantage of the large deposits of the traders instead of the brokers.

One rather unique method of avoiding failures on stock exchanges was put forward and aroused considerable discussion. The belief was expressed that there would be no failures if all regular members of the exchange were held liable for the debts of each individual member. In other words, if the membership as a whole had to make good on the failure of an individual member the character and business methods of each member would be more closely scrutinized.

Higher grain prices were not reflected in the farm implement shares marketwise yesterday. On the other hand, farm implements weakened on reports from Chicago that drought and heat in the Middle West would have an adverse effect upon sales of corn machinery, tractors and equipment for fall plowing. It was considered likely that hardships encountered by farmers this year would drive many tenant farmers off their farms and thus bring some second-hand equipment back on the market.

Reduction of $38,228,992, or 1 per cent in brokers' loans as reported by the Stock Exchange for July, can be considered favorable in view of the fact that there were many periods of strength during the month. It reflects, however, the small outside interest which existed in the market. Total stock exchange loans is now $2,689,482,297, compared with $7,473,794,294 on July 31, 1929. The peak was reached on September 30, 1929, with $8,549,383,979, while the low record was $2,767,400,514, made on May 31, 1926.

The smaller volume of dealings in recent sessions has affected sentiment to a considerable extent. Few persons other than floor traders are willing to take a position in the market. Predictions are being made that prices will fluctuate within a comparatively narrow range for some time, with short-lived spurts and swings from time to time as a result of changing conditions within the market. A number of operators have left for vacations, which will last until after Labor Day. That will have a tendency to contract transactions.

Estimates of earnings of United Carbon have been revised downward due to the effects of smaller automobile and tire production. Another influence is the natural gas business. The company is expanding its distribution of natural gas, but because of the depression in industrial activities, sales have not increased as largely as many had predicted. The outlook still is considered uncertain. It is probable, however, that earnings will just about cover the $2 a share dividend this year.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Bond prices moved irregularly on the New York Stock Exchange today. High grade rails, whose quoted value has noticeably appreciated this week, were firm, but there were some deflections in second grade issues. An easier tendency was apparent among utilities, although losses were small. A mixed movement took place in foreign issues, within a range of a fraction of a point from yesterday's closing figures.

In today's trading, legal carrier issues were firm and some made moderate advances. Among these were Baltimore and Ohio 5s.

Oil company bonds were active among the industrials and showed rising tendencies.

German issues continued to profit from a good inquiry.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows. (In quoted in cents except United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

STUDEBAKER PLEDGE

DAILY TRUE STORY

Willie Decides

"Listen, little wife, this year I decide on where we go on our vacation . . . what's that? . . . No, I haven't decided as yet, but I shall. Remember for the last four years you did the deciding . . . Huh? . . . sure I know we been married only three summers, but the summer before we were married you did the deciding for us.

"When shall I decide? Oh, when I get around to it—plenty of time . . . Huh? . . . What you got to do to get ready? aw, horse-feathers. You'll wear the same whether we go to Silver Beach or Strawberry Hill . . . Bathing suit? . . . there's fresh water at Strawberry Hill . . . "Well, if you want to know I have decided . . . it's Strawberry Hill one swell place . . . Now what? . . . Aw, puffle. What if Mrs. Larsen is going to Silver Beach, you ain't married to her, you're married to me—Eh? . . . Wise-crackin, are you? . . . I ain't much to be married to, huh? . . . you seemed glad enough to yell 'Yes' the minute I said anything that sounded at all like a proposal . . . Now listen, Emmy, it ain't going to get you any vacation to the beach to call me a brute.

"Why? Why? Well, for one thing, Chuck Conner is going up to Strawberry Hill, and there's a better golf course there, and me and Chuck like to play. What of you? Get this, Emmy—it won't cripple your style in the least—you can throw just as much bull on a mountain resort veranda about your rich and titled relatives in England as you can on a beach hotel veranda. What's that? Yes, I admit you got a cousin who married a Lord Goofus. Huh, Lord Galgren? What's the odds—that isn't the point at all. I been letting you tell me just where to go on my vacation for four years—and as I do the work and bring home the little old pay envelope, I got a wild-eyed hunch it is up to me to be permitted to decide one year out of every five where I want to go.

Mountains Cooler

"Atta girl, Emmy. I knew you would get a little sense after I put my foot down and let you realize that when I say a thing I mean it. I was thinking yesterday to myself, . . . Hey? Naw, it didn't give me a headache to think—quit trying to wisecrack and give me a listen now and then. I was thinking to myself and I said, 'Dickey, old scout, enough is enough and four years is enough, and this year you not only do the deciding about vacation, but you go right where you decide it will be.' That's why I breezed in tonight and tipped you that I, me, myself, all alone and unaided, would decide on the vacationing place. And furthermore——

"Now, listen, Emmy. It's cooler up on Strawberry Hill where the gentle beffers zoe—Huh? . . . I didn't say beffers zoe, I said zephys blow, you you know it. Anyway, down at Silver Beach the sands are as hot as—— How do you know what I was going to say? . . . You know a whole lot that isn't so, and all you get at the beach is sand in your shoes and ptomaines in your tummy from stale seafood. . . . What are you laughing at? . . . They do not—they grow everything right on the farms there. . . . Tin cans? A mountain of 'em? How do you know?

"Yeah? You been to Strawberry Hill? I didn't know that. When was it? . . . That was before I met you and let you rope me into matrimony . . . Aw come now, Emmy, I was only joking . . . Oh, all right. I begged you to marry me. I'll admit it—every man's a sap some time or other. . . . Yeah? Well, you haven't starved, have you? You got exactly 27 dresses in your closet and 14 pairs of shoes. . . . Now wait, listen. I got my tux and three suits and three pairs of shoes. Did you have 27 dresses and 14 pairs of shoes when I first met you?

"Oh, all right, Hon—don't get sore about it. I suppose some of those dresses I counted are just rags, like you say. I expect any time to come out of th' office and find you down on the street selling chewing gum. . . . Ha-ha! Sure that's a hot one.

"What's that? What the heck's an Alpine suit? . . . Who's going to climb mountains? The Alps are in Spain . . . . . Huh? Oh, all right, Switzerland, then; what the heck's the difference! No, I don't suppose we ever will see 'em as long as you yelp about Alpine stocks and Alpine dresses and shoes and all . . . What! . . . . Well, for Pete's sake, you don't sit straddle of Strawberry Hill and ride it. What the heck do you want of a riding habit? . . . . . Oh, they had hosses up there when you were there, eh? . . . . . They had hosses in Rome when them Anglo-Saxons got there . . . . . now what the devil you laughing about? . . What if it was the Romans who did go to Britain? What if it is Saxons . . . . . you get what I mean.

Rates High

"Sure, all right. If I play golf you ride horseback . . . . . see if I care . . . . . Wha-a-a-at? Four dollars an hour for a horse? And five more for a riding instructor? . . . . . Are you sure? . . . . . Well, who needs a riding instructor? You sit on a horse, that's all . . . . . Do you have to pay some livery stable bandit five bucks an hour just to tell you how to sit on a horse? . . . Sure I can ride.

"There now—you do get sense now and then, Emmy—you are a swell little wife at that. I had a hunch you'd like Strawberry Hill better than Silver Beach, only you got to do just so much talking . . . Mrs. Claxton spent how much for that? . . . bridge prizes? Say, what did she give for prizes, diamond tiaras? . . . Aw, come now, Emmy, what if she did give five bridge parties and spend six hundred in all, she was probably at Bar Harbor or Newport, or . . . Get out!

Why, it can't be! She was at the Strawberry Hill House? . . . And a woman is nobody if she doesn't give bridge parties? . . . Well, you are going to have one swell summer riding hosses at nine bucks an hour, and ripping up twenty-dollar doeskin Alpine breeches . . . Me? Be your self . . .

"Sure some do——bet a dollar a ball? . . . Me? Never . . . Oh, well yes that time but . . . Uh huh, we did . . . what if I did lose eight bucks that day . . . Huh? . . . Pool privileges? . . . Since when have you been a pool shark? . . . Oh, why didn't you say so . . . sure, swimming pool. I read about it, but up there all you have to do is jump in any of them ponds . . . Huh? May Crocker told you about that? . . . Aw she's a big bluff. Twenty bucks a week for locker and pool privileges? That's out . . . yes, sir, I said 'Out' . . .

"Hey . . . quit . . . turn off th' water . . . quit sniveling . . . all right, all right, Emmy, if you are going to be laughed at and looked down on, you can have pool privileges.

"Me? Only a few golf clothes and a few clubs . . . How much? . . . Well, what if I do spend 60 bucks on myself now and then, didn't I blow a hundred and a quarter for an evening dress . . . No I'm not throwing it up at you.

Expensive

"Well, the clubs are extra . . . not much . . . What? . . . not much . . . all right, ALL RIGHT! If you must know, 95 for the sticks, new caddy bag and—er—er . . . Yes, I'll need a couple dozen balls . . . what? Oh, the usual buck each . . . Say, what are you figuring? . . . How much? . . . No such thing. I'm not figuring on spending $18 . . . Yes, I see the figures . . . All right, all right, I'll give you $18, too; that will get you your clothes . . Hey, how's that?

"Well, who do you think I am, Creases? . . . I said Creases . . . I don't know how you spell it; where's your classic education, . . . I mean the rich guy . . . If I'm spending that for my amusement you want the same? . . . But I offered . . . Sa-a-ay, since when wasn't clothes your amusement? . . . But . . . Now listen . . . look here, Emmy . . . Say, let me . . . All right, I say ALL RIGHT . . . Sure, I'll give it to you . . . so it's settled we go to Strawberry Hill.

"Atta girl . . . sometimes I think you got sense . . . I thought a woman couldn't be fair, but I done you wrong . . . You admit I got a right to decide where I'll go on my vacation once in five years.

"Who? What show? At Silver Beach? . . . Are you sure? You read it? . . . He going to rehearse all sixty of them girls there all summer? . . . Gosh. Say, now what are you writing . . . figuring? . . . That's easy, you get a few new clothes and the three hundred bucks . . . Very well, three-eighteen . . . Gad, you don't miss a trick.

"Funny Zolly's Follys girls are going to rehearse at Silver Beach all Summer . . . What, my dear? . . . Why? . . . don't tell me that croonin' sap is going to be at the Strawberry Hill house all summer—well, I'll be playing golf and you'll be riding hosses or climbing imitation Alps . . . You'll what? . . . Have you gone goofey over a wet smack who blows his brains into a cheap saxophone and croons love-dribble through a megaphone? . . . And say, what's this . . . HOW MANY evening gowns? . . . Who ever . . . What you going to do, start a dress shop up there? . . . And tea gowns? . . . Are you going to drink tea all day . . . for bridge? . . . Listen, Emmy, you are going to be pretty busy. . . .

Changes Mind

"Well, I expect to eat and sleep. You'll be there every day—of course. I'll play a little golf—Hey, what's that?—two thousand three hundred? TWO THOU—quit your kidding—nobody could wear that much clothes in a million years. Say, don't turn on the weeps like that——be sensible—but how do you know it's so stylish up there? Oh, over to the pavilion—and down to the Lake House a car for the season? Quit kidding.

"I don't believe it—Strawberry Hill is just a nice, cool, sensible summer resort—I know you said you were there. Who? Charlie Mason? You mean the 'pain-in-the-neck' you used to go around with before I took his place. What's the joke? I don't see any joke—I didn't say I was another pain-in-the-neck. How do you know Charlie Mason is going to be there? He what? Owns the Strawberry Hill Stables now? No wonder you wanted to go up there—no wonder you wanted to ride horseback. Now, look here, Emmy, you are all wrong about the Strawberry Hill house.

"Don't argue . . .

"Have you got the brass nerve to sit there and tell me that I wanted to go to Strawberry Hill? . . . Daffy yourself. I said we'd been at Silver Beach three summers and we liked it there . . . Yes, that's what I said, and you know it . . . Don't you remember that I told you that for once I would decide on where we'd go on our vacation? . . . Sure I did . . . I said Silver Beach and I meant Silver Beach . . . there now Emmy, I knew you'd be nice . . . because when your Willie decides he doesn't mean maybe . . . he decides!"

PHILO VANCE HAS RIVAL IN OZARKS

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Recorder Perry had a smile all over his face, Monday. You know that hat I left at Weber's restaurant two or three weeks ago, he said. Somebody took it. Well, I put a notice in the paper saying I knew about who took it. It had to lie among a few people, I figured. I told them you remember to leave the hat where they found it—and Saturday night Ed called up and told me my hat had been left hanging up in the restaurant. Everything about it was O. K., except it was very dirty. A good cleaning will make it like new.

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—I have lots of boy friends but really like only one and he has lost interest in me. It breaks my heart, and I cannot forget him. What can I do?—AGGIE.

Ans.—

After psychoanalyzing your handwriting, Miss, I have come to the conclusion that it would be unduly optimistic to expect you to do very much about it. At that, I think you might think of something better than annoying people who, though it may sound cruel to say so, are not at all interested in your personal affairs. Don't you suppose Aunt Bella has worries of her own? Did it ever occur to you that during the still watches of the night she has plenty of home-grown tragedies to think about: thwarted ambitions; dreams that have burst like bubbles, friends who have betrayed their trust, and what not? I don't guess you'd ever looked at it in just that way, had you, now? If I ever succeeded just a little bit in bringing home to you the troubles other folks have to contend with, I will feel that this waste of time has been well expended.
—Aunt (Sunbeam) Bella.

Peace in Anthracite Region Seems Assured

Every Pennsylvanian should be happy over the prospect of five more years of peace in the anthracite region, scene of so many battles between capital and labor. At this writing ratification of the agreement between the United Mine Workers and the operators, in the negotiation of which Philip J. Murray, of Pittsburgh, international vice president of the miners' union, played a prominent part, seems assured.

It is of no little importance to Pennsylvania and the nation that 158,000 miners, whose wage contract expires August 31, are to remain at work.

Concessions were made by both sides in the controversy. The operators abandoned their demand for a reduction in wages and consented to the establishment of the "checkoff" system of collecting the miners' union dues. The union promises co-operation and efficiency in the mining of coal and pledges itself specifically to eliminate illegal strikes and shutdowns.

Congratulations to both sides for their willingness to make sacrifices. Another prolonged struggle between miners and operators would be disastrous. The settlement now arrived at will have a stabilizing effect that will be felt far beyond the limits of the hard coal fields.

Pittsburgh Is Fortunate In Having Good Water

The drought is serving the good purpose of directing attention to the purity of our drinking water, a "selling point" for Pittsburgh of which we do not make as much use, perhaps, as we should.

While other communities, deprived of their ordinary sources of water by the long dry spell, seek for new sources and anxiously inquire of the State Health Department if it is safe to use old wells, Dr. C. B. Maits, Pittsburgh director of public health, states that no city has more wholesome water than we have.

Typhoid fever statistics confirm the statement. Pittsburgh had only 10 cases, two deaths from the disease, in the first six months of 1930. We now have one of the finest records in respect to typhoid. But prior to the building of the Aspinwall filtration plant we had one of the worst, with thousands of cases yearly, mostly attributable to bad water.

A general warning has gone out to towns drawing on new sources of supply for water to boil it. Pittsburghers, with memories that go back to the city's experience of years ago, should be grateful at being spared that necessity.

Connellsville's Courage Certain to Bring Reward

We like the spirit of Connellsville, as shown in a Board of Trade meeting a day or two ago. There is a town that is bound to go ahead. Connellsville typifies the poet's "Invictus"—the unconquered. Under the bludgeonings of fate its head is bloody but unbowed.

The first serious blow fell when by-product coke ovens came into general use, putting the old beehive ovens out of business. Connellsville's prosperity seemed inseparable from the beehive coke business.

At about the same time as the decline came in the coke industry the bituminous coal industry began to languish, and, as everybody knows, it has not begun to recover yet.

Connellsville did not succumb to these blows, but with characteristic courage and energy sought and acquired new industries, diversified in character. It now has a score of manufacturing and industrial plants of one kind or another, and it is worthy of note that none of them is idle.

The latest blow was the closing of three banks. That was almost enough to dishearten anyone. But it has not disheartened Connellsville. The Board of Trade is merely stimulated to consider plans for "a more wholesome Connellsville, with better stores and better business."

A town with that spirit is unbeatable.

Another Happy Reunion Of Eightieth Division

The annual reunion of the Eightieth Division, which opens in Johnstown today and continues until Sunday, is the eleventh—which reminds us that time is flying and that even the most youthful of those gallant boys who went to war from Pittsburgh in 1917-18 are now mature men.

The Eightieth Division reunion has come to fill the place once held in this section by certain gatherings of Civil War soldiers, now, alas, so few in number that some of their organizations have had to be disbanded.

In one respect the Eightieth Division carries on the traditions not only of the Union soldiers of the Civil War but also of the Confederates, for it was recruited from the sons of men on both sides of the struggle of 1861-65. Drawn from Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Virginia, the men of the Eightieth, serving together under the same flag, typified the ending of animosity between North and South.

The reunion will be a joyous occasion, of course—but the joy will not be unmixed with sadness as thoughts turn to the valiant comrades who fell in France, or for whom taps has sounded since the war.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Ghost Pictures

We will believe in those Conan Doyle spiritual messages when some publisher buys the American rights.

A Yorkshire gentleman, if possible, claims to have snapped an ethereal snapshot of Sir Conan with his angel wings flapping like loose fenders.

There are three faces on the photograph. Sir Conan had only one face when he was alive. "Bugs" Baer

One of the faces bears a marked resemblance to Conan.

The other two are in case of a tie.

Or they belong to Lon Chaney.

All of which adds up into a respectable sum of spasmodic ectoplasm. We have never discovered the exact texture and durability of well woven ectoplasm.

In spiritualistic seances it resembles clouds of form-fitting smoke with an all-cotton woof. You give the medium two dollars for the silly satisfaction of seeing it. Which is the first instance of purchasing fog straight from producer to the ultimate sappister.

Even if we could get into communication with Sir Conan it is one number we would hate to dial.

A man is dead when they start kicking his estate around and his second cousins grab the umbrella stand and the bowl of goldfish. Sir Conan did his work well on this earth. And even a golfer is content to let the dead rest in peace if you allow him to tee up on the mound.

From now on the gnome-like creatures who call themselves psychic will establish rural free mail delivery with Sir Conan. Any time a great man dies you will find hundreds of mental jelly beans who rush in where even the police would write a letter.

It seems to us that Houdini spilled the business of spiritualism some years ago. Yet, the minute Houdini went to his uncollectable reward, a brigade of scrammy mediums claimed to have talked with him.

If they think they did then we should pass an amendment against high-proof ventriloquism.

When a ghost is leading the grand march that's one dance we are going to sit out.

And another thing about those photographs of Sir Conan. They are all made with leaky dollar cameras.

We'll believe those pictures when they grab him with the news reel.

GALEN

By Archibald Henderson

It has been well said that Galen was to the medical profession what Aristotle was to the scientists. He represented one of the last survivals of Greek culture at its highest. In genius and skill, we may almost think of him as an equal and "centemporary" of Roger Bacon. Had not the thousand years supervened between Galen and modern times, medicine today would be vastly in advance of its present position.

Galen was born in Pergamus, in Mysia, of Greek parents, about the year 130 A. D. It is probable that he derived his genius from his father, Nicon, an educated and cultured man. The profession of medicine was chosen for young Claudius Galenus by his father; and he began its study at the age of 16. After studying in Smyrna, Corinth and Alexandria, he finally settled down at the age of 32 in Rome, where he lived for the greater part of his life.

Galen was a "swell," a nifty dresser; and he became the fashionable physician of the day. But his success was founded not on the fantastic prescriptions and futile "remedies" of the medical books of the day, but on his own studies of physiology and anatomy, backed by common sense and an acute power of analysis. He had only one master, Hippocrates, but, he was not slavishly subservient, even to that great authority. When he effected some remarkable cures, his fame spread far and wide. The wealthy and aristocratic sought his services, and one rich lady paid him the equivalent of $2,000 for two weeks' attention. Today he would vie with the Mayos, Welch, Kelly or Young.

The word "arteries" means "air-carriers"; and in Galen's day the arteries were believed to carry air from the heart to the brain and other parts of the body. At that period, the dissection of the human body was vigorously forbidden; but Galen dissected monkeys and other animals, including an elephant.

By opening an artery in a living animal, he discovered that it was filled; not with air, but with blood. Yet we call these blood vessels arteries or "air carriers" to this very day.

Galen was a most voluminous writer. In all, he wrote 78 books and 14 essays. Amidst a lot of fanciful theories and erroneous notions, Galen accumulated a great mass of valuable knowledge in physiology, medicine, anatomy and therapeutics. He made many discoveries regarding the nervous system, notably that the sensatory nerves originate in the brain, the motor nerves in the spinal cord. His knowledge of the organs of chest and abdomen was accurate and detailed. He is the founder of nervous physiology. His name is immortal.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Why did you do it?
Why did you tell that lie?
Why did you run away?
Why did you carry that vicious gossip?
Why did you lose your temper?
Why did you cheat?

You didn't want to do it. You were horrified when you found yourself doing it. Yet for some mysterious reason you went right ahead and did it. And you don't know why. What possessed you? What turned you into an entirely different person?

Nothing, partner. You weren't an entirely different person. You were just the same person. AND YOU DID THAT THING BECAUSE FOR DAYS OR WEEKS OR YEARS YOU HAD BEEN PLANNING AND PREPARING TO DO IT.

Not deliberately planning and preparing, of course. You didn't sit down and say, "On August 7, 1930, I shall tell a lie." Yet you got ready to tell that lie as surely as though you went into training.

YOU GOT READY TO TELL THAT BIG LIE BY TELLING SMALL ONES. Tiny fibs they were at first—fibs that barely jostled the truth. And most of them you told to yourself. Surely it didn't hurt to fib to yourself. But it did. Little by little those fibs undermined your sense of honor. With each new fib the habit grew easier, seemed less shocking, until today you told that really outrageous whopper.

And now you want to believe that that lie happened accidentally—that it was the result of some sudden, vicious impulse beyond your control. Don't kid yourself, stranger. You built that lie with your own twisty bronchials, your own tricked conscience.

And it's the same with that act of cowardice. You didn't duck and desert for the first time today. You've been practising that act for these many moons. Shunting responsibility. Making alibis. Passing the buck. Getting out from under. Making cowards isn't done over night. You've got to work on the job. You may not think you're working on the job. You may be horrified when that yellow streak shows up. But you did the planting, my lad.

Nothing comes to harvest of a sudden. Seeds must be sown before they can ripen. But what you sow will surely ripen!

TODAY YOU ARE SOWING THE SEEDS OF WHAT YOU WILL BE TEN YEARS FROM NOW. TODAY YOU ARE BUILDING A LADDER THAT WILL LIFT YOU INTO HEAVEN OR A CHUTE THAT WILL DROP YOU INTO HELL.

AND YOU'RE DOING IT BY YOUR MOST INCONSIDERED, TRIVIAL ACTS!

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

A lawyer always tells his client not to give up hope, and generally promises to save him, no matter how desperate the poor guy's case is.

Somehow the lawyer is hardly ever there when the prisoner sets down in the electric chair. That makes it awful embarrassing for the prisoner, because he don't know where to turn for encouragement.

Anyhow, there was a nice gangster that had a good lawyer. The lawyer stood in with the judge pretty well, and he told his honor a hard luck story about his poor client, who was about to be electrocuted. This here judge was the one that done the sentencing.

"Judge, I tell you," says the lawyer, "this poor guy is a great athletic fan. He used to play baseball and ran the high hurdles and he wasn't so bad at swimming and tennis. It's all right to bump him off, but the poor guy wants to see one more athletic event or some game before he dies. Won't you give orders to let him see a game, and I'll see that you get a lot of publicity in the papers for it?"

So the judge wrote to the warden, "Let this guy John Callahan out in custody of his lawyer to see one athletic event before execution. Signed, Dickerson, Judge." Then he added, "The prisoner may choose what event he wants to see."

So the lawyer got John to pick the Olympic games in California in 1932.

Galveston Island

When I return to the island again,
The island that sleeps in the sun,
The fresh, sweet wind and the spray's white rain
Bring back bright days that are done.
The blue Gulf sings and the island dreams
Under the sun and moon,
While great waves toss and white spray gleams
And winds through the palm trees croon.

There is nothing of change in the shining beach
Or the circling gulls above;
Unchanged are the waves that climb and reach
Down the wide expanse I love;
But those sun-brimmed hours so far away . . .
Were they once of my life a part?
They are now no more than the last tide's spray
To the ocean's throbbing heart.

Yet the oleanders, red and white,
And the sand dunes by the sea
Bring back those other day's delight
And the self I used to be!

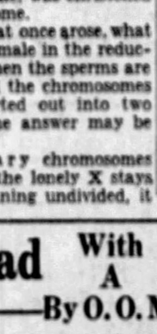
THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

CHAPTER SIX.
What Determines Sex.
SEC. 1. THE NORMAL CAUSATION OF SEX.

We propose to devote a whole chapter to the determination and development of sex here, for three reasons.

First, because it throws much light on developmental physiology; it illustrates with exceptional clearness the way in which genes, internal secretions and so on work together in individual development.



H. G. Wells

Secondly, because it is one of those fields which have been enormously illuminated by recent work.

And, thirdly, because it is good to tell simply, clearly and cleanly in terms of genes and gametes, matters too often treated in an atmosphere of shame and dingy heat.

First, we will consider that central problem, what determines a child or a young animal shall be male or female? A rich variety of views has been put forward on this question: the sex of one's offspring is due to the quantity or quality of the mother's food, to maternal impressions, to auto-suggestion; one ovary makes boy-eggs and the other ovary make girl-eggs—these and many others.

Some of these notions still have their advocates. We need not examine these ideas in detail, for the essential mechanism is now known, and it has nothing to do with any of them.

About 30 years ago it was discovered that in certain plant-bugs the number of chromosomes differs in the two sexes. The female has an even number a pair of each kind; the male has an odd number, one less than the female. In the males, a member of one of the chromosome pairs is absent. The peculiar chromosome, paired in the female, but single in the male, was christened the X-chromosome.

The question at once arose, what happens to the male in the reduction division, when the sperms are being made and the chromosomes have to be sorted out into two equal sets? The answer may be guessed.

The ordinary chromosomes paired up, but the lonely X stays by itself; remaining undivided, it goes to one or other of the two resulting haploid cells.

So that half the sperms, in these plant-bugs, have X-chromosomes and half have none. In the female the reduction division is, of course, perfectly normal, since the number of chromosomes is even, and every one of her egg-cells contains an X-chromosome.

The eggs, then, are all alike, but the sperms are of two kinds. Now, when a sperm with an X-chromosome fertilizes an egg, the resulting zygote will have two X-chromosomes—that is to say, it will be a female. If the fertilising sperm lacks the X-chromosomes the zygote will have one only, and so it will be a male. Clearly then the sex of the offspring depends on which kind of sperm meets the egg first. After fertilization all is settled.

There is the secret or sex-determination in the plant-bug. Since the plant-bug is not an unique organism, but simply an example of the general rule, there in its essence we have the secret of sex-determination in ourselves.

It is a simple secret. Sex is no more than a Mendelizing character dependent upon a chromosome. And the primary decision, whether the future embryo will be male or female, occurs, therefore, at the moment of fertilization.

But in minor details the process varies from species to species, from group to group. Sometimes the X-chromosome is not alone in the male, it may have a very much smaller companion. In this case the sperm which gets the full-sized X-chromosome is the female-producer, while that which gets its dwarf companion (or Y-chromosome, as it is called) is a male-producer.

Sometimes the X and Y chromosomes are very nearly equal in size, but nevertheless distinguishable by a slight discrepancy in length, or by some twist or trick of shape. Sometimes they are exactly alike in visual appearance, but even in these cases their existence and their differences can be demonstrated by breeding experiments along lines to be discussed in section 4.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

BERLIN.—Berlin's flughaven or airport is the largest and most complete in the world. In a half hour's time I saw passenger planes tumble, swoop and spin out of the sky from Copenhagen, London, Paris, Moscow, Amsterdam, Dresden and Liverpool—16 of them. It all had a clock-like precision.

The big landing hour is between 5 and 6 in the evening, when there is a daily average of 45 passenger planes. It is the hour, too, when continental newspapers arrive by air. Berlin's airport occupies a square mile and with great foresight was built within 10 minutes' taxi ride of the city.

The ground was once the parade field for the Kaiser's crack Prussian troops that goose-stepped to martial music once a year—a gala day for Berlin. A taxi driver pointed out the big tree under which the Kaiser, resplendent in his favorite uniform of Prussian blue and gold, stood to watch proceedings.

Germany efficiency has proved fortunate for its airplane industry. They have had fewer accidents and their traveling rates are only a shade higher than first-class railroad fares. One may fly to Dresden in an hour, to Hamburg in three hours and to Paris in five.

The visitor is taken to the airport the first thing. Berliners regard it as Germany's greatest after war achievement, and it doubtless is. There are acres of restaurant tables under gay umbrellas, where one may be refreshed while watching the dramas of takeoffs and descents.

When the siren shrieks its mighty screech everybody gazes skyward and soon a black speck becomes a graceful plane zooming to the huge cement landing. As each plane lands a loud speaker broadcasts a band or orchestral tune. All planes, too, are equipped with radio.

At one blast from the official whistle eight sparrow-like spots, the size of a man's hand, dotted the horizon, and as though especially drilled made a precipitous drop at almost the precise second. It may not be exciting to read, but your heart loops the loop seeing it. At any rate mine did and it's a sturdy ticker.

I spent formative years in Cincinnati, then a beer-drinking community, and it is a big temptation to tank up to the ears with the foamy brews here for a few days, run myself through a wringer and climb back on the water wagon again. So far I have resisted. I noticed in one bierstubl they stick thermometer in your beer glass and if the beer is not the proper temperature they take it away. Watching things like that makes you talk out loud to yourself on main streets.

Frauleins sell oiled packets of salted pretzels in beer-drinking places. I love pretzels and always munching them I think of Lew Fields, exploding like a bottle of pop to Joe Weber, that "a pretzel, Mike, is a cracker with the cramps."

We drove by President von Hindenburg's Berlin palace today. In American circles here it is "The German White House" and situated, ironically enough, on Wilhelm strasse. Hindenburg at 83 is a popular idol. At the moment he is in Bavaria. His successor, a militarist, is already picked, they say.

Outside of a few headwaiters in New York no one ever calls me "Mister." But here I am "Herr" to everybody. I must be acquiring dignity. Or Kultur. Or maybe they are just having fun.

This afternoon I cane tapped about the Kaiser's Berlin palace, the royal stables, the huge beflowered plazas and war-like statuary. The former palace of the Crown Prince, a light tan structure, is like all the rest—a museum—save for one floor reserved for Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, who comes to Berlin each month for a few days. Germany and Holland are "necking" as never before. German manufacturers operate in Holland, sub rosa, on a tremendous scale until the "Made in Germany" aversion is a memory.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Whenever you see persons enjoying things you cannot command you begin to think along the line that you have not had a square deal.

You have the desire and the ambition to live in a beautiful home, to have your family well dressed, to provide for them and yourself with the luxuries others have.

Sometimes you wish you were the sort who are contented with simple shelter and enough food of the plainest quality.

You think persons are happy because they haven't brains enough to desire anything better than they are able to procure.

You think you would be happier if you were more ignorant and less ambitious.

At times you rail at the unfairness in your case, since you were created with a sense of beauty and a love of comfort and have not the means to supply them.

You say some work less than you do, receive more money and don't know as well as you do, how to spend it judiciously.

But those who seem to work less and receive more are doing the thinking for others and you may be the kind that requires a thinker to direct your efforts.

If you are in a rut, if you have reached the limit of your productiveness why not become resigned to the fact and get what enjoyment your circumstances will permit.
